WOULD WELCOME VILLA AS VISITOR

Guardsmen Complain That Camp Life at Douglas is Growing Monotonous.

MANY SEEK DISCHARGE

Privates Caulfield and Collins Capture Six-foot Rattlesnake—"Movies" Enjoyed by the Troopers.

By JAMES J. McNAMEE.

Douglas, Ariz., Sept. 19.—Despite the order that has been generally circulated through the camp to the effect that further applications for dependency or college entrances discharges would not be honored, the brigade adjutant's office during the past week has been flooded with such documents and from all indications they are being shipped through to Washington. Four have been returned within the last forty-eight hours and many enlisted men and officers are anxiously awaiting returns on scores of others. If all are granted the ranks of the Jersey units here will be greatly depleted.

First Lieutenant Herman Bertram, of the squadron headquarter's staff, and Sergeant Donald McGee, of Troop D, left for home tonight on dependency discharges and similar discharges were received by Corporal Robert Mason, of Troop B, and Private Richard Anthony, of Troop C, who left for the east this morning. Sergeant McGee was mustered out of the Federal service here, but the other three will have to go to Fort DuPont.

Dozens of inquiries are made at the headquarters regarding applications every day and the rule barring such discharges is looked upon as little more than a farce. The men are all required to have good reasons for their dismissal demands, but then, nearly every man here has some good excuse to advance for his not being kept here and unless some limit is put to the number of discharges there will soon be some ragged outfits here.

The reported success of the First Squadron of Cavalry's eight day hike, the first half of which has been completed, is the cause for activity on the part of other unit commanders to organize similar expeditions and it would not be surprising to see the Fifth Infantry or the artillery batteries start out on an eight or ten day excursion the first part of next week.

Considerable trouble has been experienced in keeping horses and mules in good condition and several have died within the past twenty-four hours, all belonging to the cavalry. The animals do not seem to get acclimated to the heat here and none of them are rendering the service that they would in the east. They have been doing little hard work but as yet no shelters have been built over the picket lines and the animals are forced to stand out in the blazing hot sun all day. In the regular army camp roofs have been erected over the horse stables and the animals are in better condition.

A six foot rattlesnake, said to be thirty-five years old and the biggest yet seen in camp, was brought in yesterday by Privates John T. Caulfield and Ferdinand Collins, of Troop D, who were sent in from the eight day hike. The reptile had been slain by officers of the advance guard on the hike and was a fine specimen of the rattler.

Weather conditions during the day here seem to be getting worse instead of better and frequently the afternoons are too hot for even the lightest kind of work. On the other hand the nights are unusually cold and even those soldiers who are fortunate enough to own three or four blankets are complaining of the cold.

The Y. M. C. officers in charge of the Plainfield building last night staged their first motion picture exhibition. A modern movie machine has been set up and many enjoyable evenings are anticipated. In weeks past the men have flocked to the numerous good movie shows in the city of Douglas, but since their funds began to run low they have been forced to keep within the camp streets and the Y. M. C. A. offering is a welcome one.

A number of the outfits are profiting considerable by the operation of private canteens, root beer, soda water, cigarettes, cigars, crackers and similar articles being sold. The companies owning these money making centers take charge of them and the profits are put into a treasury to be used for the welfare of the men.

Camp life at this time is duller than it has been since the tents were pitched here. In the afternoon only those on detail are stirring about camp and all conversation concerns home going. The drill work and other military routine has been cut down to a minimum and the officers as well as the enlisted men show signs of becoming tired of life on the border. Villa would be a welcome visitor here now, if even he only stayed a day or two, just long enough to stir up some excitement and relieve the monotony.

TROOPERS AND HORSES TIRE ON LONG "HIKE"

Private Caulfield is Sent Home Because of Slight Injury to Knee.

By JAMES J. McNAMEE.

Douglas, Ariz., Sept. 19.—Although the first half of the eight day hike has not as yet been completed a number of the horses in the First Squadron of Cavalry, which is taking the long trip under command of Major Hobart Brown, have gone lame and will probably have to be sent back here. The riding thus far has not been hard and it is expected that the worst is yet to come. Several of the riders have also been worn out and two were returned to Douglas last night, one because of illness and the other because of a slight injury. First Class Private John T. Caulfield was sent home because he received a glancing blow on the knee cap from a horse's hoof and Private Ferdinand Collins, of Newark, is suffering from a cold. Both are connected with Troop D. Private Richard Anthony, of Troop C, was notified of his discharge yesterday afternoon and returned with Caulfield and Collins.

The hikers reached Hereford last night and had covered about thirty-two miles. They resumed their trip this morning and are expected to reach Fort Huachuca, the destination, late today.

During the journey the men have been on army rations and all are keenly enjoying the outing. The trip is about sixty miles each way. Mail is being brought from the camp to the cavalry every night and the camp officers are constantly in touch with those in command of the squadron. Sleeping is a little uncomfortable because of the cold, but this is the only kick the men have to lodge.

MATLACK CLASS PLANS FOR HALLOWE'EN PARTY

An executive meeting of the officers and chairmen of the different committees of the Maltlack Bible Class was held at the home of the class president, Miss Marie Moore, of Westervelt avenue, Thursday evening. Every officer and chairman now in office was in attendance, and with the class president as an enthusiastic leader, discussed plans for a Hallowe'en party to be given at a later date.

Every effort is being made that this event may be a success as the last sociable arranged by the present executive staff of the class. The annual election of new officers will take place at the Octoebr meeting.

REFORMED CHURCH WOMEN ORGANIZE MISSION SOCIETY

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Netherwood Reformed church was organized at the parsonage of the church Thursday afternoon. Mrs. David Morris, of Brooklyn, a member of the Woman's Board of Domestic Missions of the Reformed Church was present, and in a very interesting address told of her recent visit to the Indian missions in the West.

After the address the society was organized by the election of Mrs. W. H. Morris as president; John H. Reid, vice-president; Mrs. McClellan Staats, secretary, and Mrs. H. M. Burkey, treasurer. A large number of ladies were present and the society starts with every prospect of success.

"DRY" CANDIDATES WILL BE IN PULPITS TOMORROW

Most of the churches will devote the Sunday evening services to the no-license cause. The four candidates will be present at the Park Avenue Baptist church, and later visit some of the other services.

Rev. Mr. Ralston and George H. Batchelor will address a meeting in Hope chapel at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

R. H. Depew will speak at a meeting in Mt. Zion church at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening.

MISSIONARY ALLIANCE.

The Christian and Missionary Alliance has taken down their gospel tent, and will now hold their services in the German Reformed church at Duer street and Craig place, one block from postoffice, Sunday and Tuesday evenings at 7:30. The series of sermons on the "Second Pre-Millennial Coming of Christ" will be continued on Tuesday evening. The public is invited to attend.

PETERSON-BJUHR.

Miss Sarah Bjuhr, of Plainfield, was married yesterday in New York city to Carl Peterson. The ceremony was performed at 10:30 a. m. Both are natives of Switzerland. They will go for a honeymoon to Michigan, after which they will be at home in New York.

CITY BILLS DUE.

All bills against the city must be in the hands of the city clerk by Monday night.

CODDINGTON MAY RUN FOR MAYOR

Democrats Agree on Him to Head Ticket for City Offices.

HAS NOT CONSENTED

Stewart and Lapsley Both Refuse to Accept Honor—Calkins Will Return Home in Time to Cast Vote in Primary of Tuesday.

Judge W. A. Coddington is being urged by he party leaders to become the Democratic candidate for Mayor and his name will be formally presented to the Plainfield Democratic Club at its meeting Monday night. Judge Coddington has not consented to make the race but a strong pressure is being brought to bear upon him toward this end. A meeting was held last night when it was decided on him as a possible candidate and delegations of Democrats will call upon him before now and Monday.

Howard G. Lapsley, who was mentioned as a possible candidate for Mayor on the Democratic ticket, announced today that he had decided not to seek the office, at the same time thanking his many friends for their kind consideration in the matter. Mr. Lapsley stated that inasmuch as he is subject to call for military service he did not think it would be wise fir him to enter the campaign as a candidate for any office.

Former Mayor Percy H. Stewart's name has also been mentioned for the Mayoralty, but it is understood that he will not consider the proposition. DISCUSSES UNION COUNTY SITUATION

Assembly Candidate Atkinson Thinks Contest Will Be Close.

William Mayo Atkinson, one of the Democratic candidates for Assembly, in speaking of the probable results in the primary and election says:

"In my judgment Union county will be close this fall. The national ticket is running strong as is also the popularity of H. Otto Wittpenn, the Democratic candidate for Governor. This means that there is a strong probability that the three of the five aspirants who are successful in getting the three Democratic nominations for the Assembly stand virtually an equal chance of election with the three present members.

"It is therefore of interest to all citizens whether Democratic or Republican as to what is the position of the possible or probable Assemblymen on the issues that confront the municipalities of Plainfield, Cranford, Westfield, Rahway, Summit and the Roselles as well as other places.

"Although a native of Elizabeth all my life I have visited other places in the county a great deal, and I know many people in them, and have practiced law throughout the county. They are growing rapidly and their municipal needs require careful attention. If nominated and elected everybody in the county and every interest whether coming through a board of trade or as individuals will find me at Trenton as representative of all and every part of Union county."

FIREMEN'S PENSION FUND IN FLOURISHING CONDITION

Ten years ago Plainfield's firemen had no pension fund to help them if they became disabled or unable to work because of any accident, but today the fund that Assistant Chief Jennings started in 1905 has grown so that the men need not fear for help from at least one source.

Before Chief Jennings started the fund it was the habit of people who had had fires put out by the local laddies to give them a dinner or something else of the sort. One time there was a fire on Eighth street and when the owner of the property gave $100 to the men, Chief Jennings hit on the idea of putting it into the bank and adding all other contributions to it. Today the fund has assumed such proportions that after this when a man is retired he will receive a pension.

FRENCH ALMOST INTO COMBLES

ARE IN THE SUBURBS

Take Miniature Fortress There—55,800 German Prisoners Have Been Taken Since July 1, Says Official Paris Report.

Paris, Sept. 23.—French troops are today engaged in a fierce struggle with the Germans on the very outskirts of Combles. The fall of the town, which forms the apex of a sharp salient into their lines north of the Somme, is believed to be near.

A house in the suburbs, which had been turned into a miniature fortress, has been captured in hand-to-hand fighting and about a hundred German prisoners, including three officers, taken.

Between the Le Priez Farm and Rancourt the Germans made another fruitless attempt to recapture positions recently taken by the French. They advanced in great strength in massed wave formation, but were beaten back by artillery before they could reach the French lines, and retired to their own trenches after suffering great losses.

Simultaneously General Foch's troops pushed forward to the southeast of Combles, tightening the ring around the town. In this action forty prisoners were made.

Take 55,800 Prisoners.

Paris, Sept. 23.—The official French report asserts that since the Somme offensive opened, on July 1, 55,800 prisoners have been captured, of whom the French took 34,050.

This is the greatest number of Germans captured by the allies in a similar time since the war opened and shows a break in Teutonic morale, military men say.

PROGRESSIVES ARE IN COLGATE RANKS

Camden Gives Rousing Reception to Republican Candidate.

Camden, N. J. Sept. 22.—F. Wayland Ayer, one of Camden county's most influential citizens, threw open the doors of his home here this evening to give the Republicans of the county an opportunity to meet and converse with Colonel Austen Colgate. Five hundred Republicans, including the most prominent office holders and leaders in the Republican ranks of Camden county, took advantage of Mr. Ayer's generosity. The reception was distinctly informal, and the men who are positive of rolling up a big vote for the Colonel in Camden county next Tuesday, despite the recent desertion of some leaders from whom Colonel Colgate said this evening he had previously received assurances of support, stopped to listen to a speech which he delivered toward the close of the reception. A notable feature of the affair was the presence of a large number of Progressives, who confirmed their recent united endorsement of Colonel Colgate's candidacy in this county by welcoming him warmly this evening.

"I am a business man," said Colonel Colgate. "I know the needs of the State and I have accepted the candidacy for Governor with a full appreciation of the responsibility of that office. I don't intend to tell you of all the good I have done in my official life," he said further on. "I compressed all that in book form some time ago, so that I would not be obliged to go through the whole story every time I met somebody who wanted to know about me. It is all there, the bad as well as the good. A New York newspaper recently favored me with an editorial which said that I am the only candidate in history who dared to print the record of all his official acts."

Colonel Colgate reiterated the pledge he has made throughout the State that the managers of the fight in Camden county conduct it along honest lines, above board and without any display of rancor.

In conclusion he said: "I feel very confident I am going to win, particularly because of the assurances I have received from Hudson county, which has been subjected to a terrible bombardment for the last few months, that it is going to stand back of me. Those who are against us are beginning to worry. We are going ahead quietly collecting the votes, adn I think they are going to be plenty and ample."

Notable among those who attended the reception were William T. Read, State treasurer and former State Senator William J. Bradley.

Colonel Colgate was met at the Reading Terminal upon his arrival by a committee headed by Harry R. Humphreys, the Camden county leader, and escorted to Mr. Ayre's house. He remained there over night.

FINED $20 FOR SELLING LIQUOR TO MEN ON SEWER JOB

Frank Nero was fined $20 when arraigned before City Judge William G. DeMeza in city court this morning, charged with the illegal selling of liquor. Nero is head of the commissary department conducted by the contractors at work on the sewer and was arrested on three separate charges, but this morning received a suspended sentence in two.

Nero was arrested after quite a little disorder had been evidenced at the camp where the laborers live at Rock avenue. The attorney for Nero in court this morning said that the men refused to work unless they could get beer and so Nero had served them along with the provisions they got. Since the police had stopped them from selling it only ten of the men remained, according to the testimony of Nero. Judge DeMeza this morning said that it made no difference what the reason for doing so was he would follow the law in every case of illegal selling that came before him.

WEDNESDAY FIXED FOR BIG TIE UP

750,000 Men Are Ordered to Quit Jobs on That Day.

VOTE ON THE STRIKE

Police Admit Brooklyn May Be Involved—Send Reserves There—Disapproval of Radical Action is Reported From Many Sources.

New York, Sept. 23.—Union locals throughout the greater city today are voting on the order to suspend work simultaneously Wednesday morning.

The order for a general walkout, issued yesterday by representatives of organized labor after a three hours' conference, and said to be the most radical action ever taken, in this country, is not binding on any union, and in a majority of cases must yet be voted on by individual locals.

That there is a decided disapproval of a general strike by several important unions is the report of Police Department inspectors, who for a week have been trying to learn the sentiment among different trades.

Danger of the great traction strike spreading to Brooklyn was acknowledge today by the Police Department when additional policemen were sent to every precinct in that borough to be held for emergencies.

Early in the day it was announced that strikers from New York had invaded Brooklyn with the intention of attempting to persuade B. R. T. men to join the great strike, and fear of trouble led to the strengthening of the police forces across the river.

LITTLE GIRL OBJECT IN PATHETIC CASE

Court Proceedings for Custody of Child Saddest in Local Police Annals.

One of the most pathetic cases in the annals of the local police court was tried this morning when, after a two hours' hearing, Judge DeMeza awared the temporary cutody of six-year-old Helen Wunderlick, daughter of George and Anne Wunderlick, to Miss Mabelle Phillips. Wunderlick and his wife have been separated for some time and she has been caring for the child, but in a complaint made by he Charity Organization they sought to take her child away from her on the grounds that she was not fit to be her guardian.

As the case progressed a different aspect was put on it and a reason for Mrs. Wunderlick's actions that have caused her to become partially unbalanced came to light, with her husband being to blame. Wunderlick did not show the slightest concern in court this morning when it was brought out that he was the one that was really responsible for existing conditions and even said that he had given her a chance. Moved by pity for the woman before him, Judge DeMeza scored Wunderlick in a way he has not done before in the six years he has been on the bench.

Both Mrs. Wunderlick and her little daughter became hysterical when they thought they were to be separated and it was a scene that dimmed the eyes of all in court when the little child, just old enough to realize a part of the proceedings, ran to her mother's arms. Mrs. Wunderlick was allowed to keep her child over Sunday and it is probable Judge DeMeza will reconsider his decision to give the custody of the child to Charles Jaeger, Mrs. Wunderlick's father, with whom she now lives.

He spoke on the tariff and the legislation rush through by President Woodrow Wilson to prevent a railroad strike which, in his opinion, was unconstitutional. This legislation virtually gave a certain class of railroad employes ten hours' pay for eight hours' work and left over 1,600,000 of other railroad employes "out in the cold," so to speak, Mr. Brennan said. He decried the war tax fixed by the Democrats when this country was not at war and spoke of the testimonial the labor leaders gave Hughes upon the completion of his term as Governor of the State of New York, which was to the effect that no other incumbent of the Gubernatorial chair of the Empire State had ever done so much for labor.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Queen Marie, who will head the activities of the Red Cross in her kingdom now that it has joined the war, has only one rival for beauty and elegance of dress among the feminine royalties of Europe, and that is her cousin, the Queen of Spain, who was like herself, an English princess. As becomes an English princess, Queen Marie is tall, graceful, blue-eyedand golden-haired, which mages her beauty even more striking among the darker women, of a Southern type, who surround her at the Rumanian court. She is the daughter of the Duke of Edinburg, and lived in England practically all of her life, with the exception of one year in Germany, before her marriate at sixteen to Prince Ferdinand, who two years ago became King of Rumania. She has always been a great favorite at Bucharest, her fondness for the semi-orientalism of her new home and for the picturesque Rumanian national dress, which enhances her beauty, being very pleasing to her people. The Queen has five children, of whom the eldest, Prince Carlos, is 22. The third, Princess Marie, a girl of 17, and like her mother a beauty, is spoken of as a possible match for the youthful Prince of Wales.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, who was recently re-elected president of the National Woman's Suffrage Association, which is taking an active part in the Presidential campaign and making it cause an issue of the fight, has seen the suffrage movement grow from impopularity to wide recognition during the time she has been a suffrage lecturer. She was for nine years president of the International Woman's Suffrage Alliance before her election in 1912 as president of the American Woman's Suffrage Association in 1890-92. She wac active in the successful campaigns in Colorado and Idaho for equal franchise, and aided in the movement that secured a clause in the Louisiana constitution giving tax-paying women the right to vote on all questions submitted to other taxpayers. She has lectured in hundreds of cities of the United States and in almost every country in Europe, on suffrage and economic questions relating to women. Mrs. Catt is a native of Wisconsin tnd began her career as an educator, being at one time superintendent of schools at Mason City, Iowa. She is a resident of New York.

Mrs. Bessie C. Turpin of Omaha, Nebraska, is the sponsor of an ambitious project to organize the widows of America, into a union to be called The Society of American Widows. Most widows are mothers, avers Mrs. Turpin, and when thrown upon the world to support themselves and their children encounter obstacles unknown to the smoother career of the single business woman. The union's platform is a sensible and practical one, relying upon some humane sympathy for the difficulties which best the bereft wife and her little ones, and here are some of its more salient details:

Obtain from merchants a ten per cent. discount on all purchases.

Establish a sewing department, an employment bureau, reading, rest and lunch rooms, and a day nursery in the business districts of all large cities.

Build profit-sharing apartment houses, including gymnasium, music and assembly rooms, to be occupied by widows and their families at a low rental.

Publish a monthly magazine to deal with widows' problems and arouse interest in the movement in every city.

LITERARY

THE ORIGIN OF OUR HOLIDAYS.

"First and last enough sentiment has been expenuded upon American politics to equip a regiment of poets laureate. Distinctly American holidays are full of it. Fourth of July of course, made itself. The twenty-second of February became one by common consent. It had its origin in a convivial supper in a New York tavern in 1783, when a company met to listen to an original ode and drink innumerable toasts. Enthusiasm survived the wine, and as the gentlemen went gaily and unsteadily home they swore to meet again on future anniversaries. Regarded at first as a purely party custom, it breadened beyond Federal circles to take in all Americans. Jefferson's followers attempted a similar observance in his honor, but he countered with another bit of sentiment, refusing to divulge the date, on the ground that only the birthday of the nation should be so treated.

"Thanksgiving was sectional and religious as well as political, and sentiment graced it plenty. One of the customs that lingered in the good old New England households until the middle of the last century was to lay five grains of corn upon the plate of every person at table in memory of a day in early colonial history when five ships came sailing into harbor just in time to chase away the specter of famine. It was Washington who appointed the first national day of thanksgiving at the instance of Congress, after the adoption of the Constitution. For many years, however, annual observance of the day remained a matter of State action, virtually confined to New England. Like the twenty-second of February, it became a national ustom only gradually; unlike the twenty-second of February, it spread largely through the influene of a woman, Mrs. Sarah Jane Hale, who advocated it for twenty years, in the editorial columns of 'Godey's Lady's Book.'"—Helen Nicolay, in the October Century.

How to Increase Your Salary.

In the October American Magazine, there is an article about the largest country store in America. Three young business men with ideas took hold of the business when it was stagnating and made it what it is today. One of the young men says in this article:

"Greet all customers pleasantly, and make them feel perfectly at home when they reach your department. Concentrate all your interest and all your energies on the sale in hand, not allowing your thoughts to be distracted in any way.

"Take every 'looker' seriously, by making an unusual effort to close a sale, even though the odds are against you. The more honor comes to you to get a sale of this kind. When it takes two hours to sell a pair of shoes you know you have won a voctory worth while.

"If we only had more of the sticking quality we would get more business.

"Keep your stocks completely filled up, so that there may be no loss of sales of merchandise actually on hand. Keep a list of 'outs' and 'goods called for,' and get your buyers to order as soon as convenient.

"Introduce new merchandise, try to interest every customer in something not asked for, and strive to do it in sch a way as to add to your sales.

"I was pleased to see a salesman trying to sell a fifteen-cent razor. One sale often suggests another. A customer buying a pair of shoes usually needs new socks or stockings. Most all shoe customers will buy a shoe cleaner or polish, and so on ad infintum."

DO YOU--

Maintain a polluted well and then
Complain about the undertaker's bill?

Think screening is too expensive and then
Blame your malaria on the climate?

Insist on sanitary cigar factories and then
Use a public cigar cutter?

Carry a fine handkerchief and then
Forget to cover your mouth when you cough?

When Parasols Began.

Parasols when they first came into use must have been cumbersome. Henri Estienne, writing in 1578, speaks of a parasol as capable generally of sheltering four persons from the sun. And when they diminished in circumference the material still remained of the heaviest. Red velvet parasols with heavy gold fringes, were carried by ladies of fashion in the days of Louis XIV. At that time it was possible when crossing a bridge in Paris to hire a parasol at one end and deposit it at the other, the charge for the accommodation being a sou. Under the regency fashion went to the other extreme. Men's parasols folded into the shape of a three cornered hat and could thus be carried elegantly under the arm. Ladies' parasols were hung so that they could slip into the pocket, for ladies had pockets then.—London Spectator.

Seven Bells.

Everybody who knows anything about nautical matters understands the methods of keeping time at sea—eight bells every four hours. From 6 to 8 in the evening is the second dogwatch, but on British ships seven bells (half past 7) of the second dogwatch is never struck. All other ships, even the American, strike these bells. During the Napoleonic wars there was a great mutiny in the British navy. The crews of the fleets lying at Spithead and the Nore agreed to rise simultaneously against their officers. The signal agreed upon was seven bells of the second dogwatch. The mutiny actually began at the arranged time, but failed, the ringleaders being executed. Ever since then seven bells of the second dogwatch has never been struck on British ships, naval or mercantile.

Rev. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, will preach on the subject of "The Constitutional Doubter," at the service tomorrow morning. In the evening the subject of the sermon will be "The Value of Public Opinion." Wednesday night the pastor will preach on the theme of "Is the World Getting Better?"

—When discontent reaches a certain point, the furnished room advertisements become very interesting some people.

The Only Candidate for Governor Who Stands Squarely for Local Option and Home Rule is

George L. Record

Both Edge and Colgate, his Republican opponents, voted against the Gaunt Local Option Bill in the Senate of 1916.

It was George L. Record who, as counsel for Jersey City, compelled the railroads to bear something like their just share of taxes and thereby added $30,000,000.00 to the revenues of New Jersey. High as your tax rate is today, it would be much higher if this railroad money was not being distributed to educate our children.

It was George L. Record who, as counsel for the working men and women of Trenton, forced the trolley company there to restore six tickets for a quarter.

It was George L. Record who opposed the Public Service Corporation lawyers when they tried to have 90 cent gas declared unconstitutional by the courts. Record won—and saved the gas consumers of New Jersey a millon dollars every year.

Record is a man with convictions and a passion for justice. He wants to put through a definite program of legislation in order to bring about justice for the average man, who does the work and bears the burden of our civilization. He has labored for over twenty years, in season and out, for the adoption of his great constructive program.

He stands for Local Option, Home Rule, and Municipal Ownership; he believes that public utility companies do not pay their just share of taxes and would increase their taxes on franchises; he wants to attract new industries and people to New Jersey by exempting from taxation buildings, merchandise, machinery, household furniture, and all farm improvements.

Record's program has been consistently opposed by the men in control of the party machines. It is well known that both party machines are controlled by the Brewery, Public Utility interests. Both Edge and Colgate, in the 1916 Senate, not only voted against the Gaunt Local Option Bill, which was killed in the interests of the brewers—they also voted for the Kates Jitney Bill, intended to drive the jitneys out of business, for the benefit of the trolley companies.

On Primary Day, Tuesday, September 26th, when you are alone with your conscience in the polling booth, do your part by putting a cross (X) before George L. Record's name.

RECORD FAVORS MANY PROGRESSIVE REFORMS

Republican Seeking Gubernatorial Nomination Proposes Advanced Program.

George L. Record, one of the candidates for the Republic nomination for Governor, has been making his canvas for nomination on a definite platform, of what he hopes to achieve if nominated and elected. His platform, as furnished by his publicity bureau, contains the following planks:

1. Pass laws giving to each municipality the following Home Rule or Local Option powers, to be exercised only when a majority of the voters of the locality so vote at a general or special election:

(a) The power to prohibit or license saloons, as provided in the Senate Local Option Bill of 1916.

(b) The power to make and amend its own charter.

(c) The power to own and operate gas, electric light or trolley service.

(d) The power to exempt from taxation, in whole or in part, buildings, machinery, merchandise, household furniture, farm implements, and animals, and the cost of such farm improvements as ditching, draining, fencing, etc.

(e) The power to regulate jitneys.

2. Pass a law increasing the tax on gas, electric light, water and telephone franchises from 2 per cent. on gross receipts to the same rate as is paid on trolley franchises, to wit: 5 per cent. on gross receipts. This will increase the revenues of the State $1,000,000 a year.

3. An Equal Suffrage constitutional amendment.

Treating a Cut.

When you have a cut, a scratch, a bruise or any other kind of injury paint it with iodine. As soon as injured dip a toothpick with cotton rolled on the end of it in the iodine and paint over the wound without washing. The iodine will kill all germs in the dirt that gets into the wound, while washing only drives the germs farther into the flesh. When painted with the iodine wrap the injured part in a clean cloth for a couple of days.

A Submarine Record.

Although the submarine is, in a way, nearly 300 years old, yet the first under sea destroyer to sink a hostile warship without also sinking herself was the E-9 of the British navy, which in September, 1914, blew up the German cruiser Hela in Helgoland bight.—Argonaut.

A Terrible Slight.

"What do you think? A man brought back the umbrella he took from our hall stand."

"H'm! It speaks well for the honesty of the man, I should say, but it is a terrible slight to the umbrella."—Exchange.

BUILDING PERMITS GROW FOR VARIOUS KINDS OF STRUCTURES ALL OVER CITY

Five Filed During Week for Total of $23,300—Dwellings in the Lead With Several Alteration Jobs and a Few Garages.

PERMITS BY WARDS AND KIND OF STRUCTURE.

2	1	300	0	1
3	1	5,000	0	1
4	5	14,650	1	4
	10	$23,300	2	8
	8	8,125	3	5
Sept. Total	18	$31,425	5	13

With a total of ten permits for the week, building took a big jump during the past few days and nearly tripled the representative outlay for the month. The Fourth ward led in both the number of permits filed and aggregate amount of them. As a whole, however, they were scattered through all the wards and were for both new structures and alterations or extensions. Garages took a fall over previous weeks and were led by dwellings in the number of permits filed.

Raphael Farrano, of Scotch Plains, filed the largest permit for the erection of a building in the First ward, it being for a two and a half story modern dwelling to cost $2,800. It will be erected on Raymond avenue, be of frame construction, 24x24x26, and have six rooms and bath. City Judge William G. De Meza filed a permit for the erection of a frame garage on his property at 52 Sandford avenue to cost $600. It will be 19x22 and be built by Charles Bicknell. Dr. Albert Pittis is to build an addition onto the rear of the building at 178 East Front street to cost approximately $150. It will be of brick, the same as the main structure, and extended over the first story, making the entire building two stories in height. It will be 4x10x22 and built by Ambrose Smalley.

The Second ward had only one permit for $300. Walter Temple, the coal man, is to erect a barn at 747 South avenue for the shelter of horses and wagons to cost that amount. It will be 60x60x15, of one story in height and fireproof construction.

The permit in the Third ward is for the erection of a house at 903 West Sixth street to cost $5,000 for Bertha Livingston, of 7 Grove street. It will be two stories high, of frame construction, and 32x32x42. Fred Tinklestein will do the carpenter work.

Plans were filed by the Bloom Construction Company, with offices in the Babcock building, for the erection of two dwellings at 1208 and 1210 West Third street, in the Fourth ward, to cost $4,000 apiece. They will be of two and a half stories in height, have all modern improvements and be 26x26x24. Each dwelling will be for one family and will have eight rooms and bath. Fred Lancaster is the architect and the Bloom Construction Company will do its own work. Felmey Brothers, of 336 Emerson avenue, filed plans for the erection of a four-family dwelling at 2645 West Front street to cost $4,000. It will be of frame construction and two stories in height. It wil be 32x32x49 and have two families on the first floor and two on the second floor. Lancaster drew the plans and they will do the carpenter work and have Watson Payne for the mason work. Dr. Charles Lufburrow filed plans for alterations to the store building at 339 West Front street. Three feet, six inches will be taken off the Central avenue side of the structure and a brick addition 9x9x15 and one story high will be added to the rear. It will cost about $2,600, Townley Brothers having the contract.

ENGLISH THATCHED ROOF HOUSE

DESIGNED BY CHAS S. SEDGWICK, ARCHITECT.

THE accompanying design is for a suburban house and is commonly called "an English cottage." It has a frontage on the long side of 57 ft. for the main house and a kitchen extension of 18 ft., the depth is 26 ft. The design is for brick veneer on frame construction up to the second story belt course and above finished in cement stucco on metal lath. The roof is steep pitched and all of the cornices and gables finished in the English method, with the roof rounded over and shingles put on in thatched form giving the quaint and foreign look that is much in vogue at the present time. It is estimated to build for $7,500 to $8,700 not including heating or plumbing.

The arrangement is good with a large living room across the left front with wide piazza, that may be inclosed and glazed if desired, and a wide terrace from the central porch entrance extended to the left around the end of house. The whole of the first floor is finished in fumed oak with heavy beamed ceilings and timbered arch ways connecting all together with a recessed alcove for fireplace and books and the main staircase. The culinary department, with kitchen, pantry, etc., is ample in appointments. On the second floor are four good chambers, ample closet space, bath room, etc., and servants apartments in the third story, also a large amusement room. The finish of second story is white enamel with red mahogany doors.

There is a full basement and completely equipped with every modern convenience, from the heating plant to the laundry, drying room, vegetable cellar, servants bath room, etc. The exterior walls are of dark oriental brick in first story and light cream cement stucco in second story and all shingles stained dark reddish brown, with all sash white, making a very artistic combination.

WORK ON AUTOMOBILE PLANT IS COMPLETED

American Motor Plant on West Front Street Now Ready for Use.

With the laying of the floor in the main factory building yesterday afternoon, the plant of the American Motors Company, builders of the American Six, was completed, and a call has been sent out for men. In another two weeks work will be well advanced on the first cars to be built in Plainfield's latest automobile factory and by the middle of November a number will have been turned out.

The administration building has been completed for several weeks and the office staff has been working on details preparatory to the starting of work. The main building is now ready with the exception of a few minor details that can be completed at leisure. No more building will be undertaken until spring, when the factory space will be greatly enlarged.

For the present the company will employ one hundred and twenty-five men, drawing them as much as possible from Plainfield and vicinity, but for the skilled labor positions where a knowledge of a special kind of work is necessary the men will be obtained from the main factory of the corporation, the Chevrolet plant. As the size of the factory increases and the output is made larger the number of men will be added to until in the course of a few years five hundred may find employment.

While the car will be a six-cylinder machine of light build similar to a number of others on the market, it is to have several attractive features that should become popular with the public. For the present only six cylinder cars will be turned out, but as the output increases four and possibly eight-cylinder cars may make their appearance.

ADDITIONS FOR HOPE AND BETHEL CHAPELS

Congregations of Crescent Avenue Church Parish to Discuss Improvements.

The rapid growth of the Bethel and Hope chapel Sunday schools has so cramped the limited space of the present structures that steps are to be taken to enlarge them by building additions. The matter will be decided at a congregational meeting of the parish of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church to be held next Wednesday night.

It is thought that the improvements as now planned will cost approximately $18,000. Plans have already been drawn and rough estimates obtained. It is expected that those at Bethel chapel will cost in the vicinity of $6,000 and those at Hope chapel $10,000 or $12,000.

The officers of the Crescent Avenue church have held a number of meetings to discuss the proposition and seem to be in favor of building additions to both edifices so that the Sunday schools will not have to be divided. The larger part of the congregation is also in favor of expending the money for the improvements and it is probable that some definite action will be taken at the coming meeting.

IN THE SUBURBS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Building in this place is still very active, as a number of new houses and two new stores are nearing completion. James Abruzzi, of this place, is planning the erection of a grocery store which will have a two-family apartment overhead. The building will be erected on his property, which he recently purchased from the Hamilton Realty and Construction Company. John Geary's new post office building is expected to be finished in a short time. Nicholas Valincinit expects to open his new grocery store, which is located opposite the Spicer plant, in about a week. The foundation has been completed on John Boris' new home and the carpenter work was started yesterday.

DUNELLEN.

A large veranda is being built on the former Benward homestead, Dunellen, now being remodeled as the First Baptist parsonage. The carpentering work is being done by the Apgar Construction Company, of Dunellen.

Ivan Hardingham and family have moved into the house on Mountain View Terrace, Dunellen, owned by his father, W. H. R. Hardingham, and which the latter recently vacated.

Improvements in the plumbing line are being made this week at the residence of Frank Penrose in Dunellen, the work being done by Contractor Otis M. Webber, of Dunellen.

Work has been hustled right along on the H. Clifford Smith storage building and garage in Dunellen, and the concrete walls are rapidly mounting skyward.

A contract for wiring two new houses on Duer street, North Plainfield, owned by C. C. Schreiner, of Brooklyn, has been secured by Contractor Edward J. Herlich, of Dunellen.

The house on Front street owned by Jacob Fisher and tenanted for some months past by A. E. Smith and family, has been sold to Robert Roskell, of North avenue, who will take possession at an early date.

Valmere, the residence of F. Percy Vail for many years, which was sold to parties with the grounds of about thirty-five acres for development recently, has been disposed of to Edward VanWinkle, a patent lawyer, of New York City. The plot sold is 385 feet front on the New Market road by 250 feet deep, but does not include the cottage facing the Lehigh Valley railroad, which will be removed to a plot of ground next to the residence of J. Y. Rupell. The new owner will probably take possession and remove to New Market in the spring.

BUILDING CONTRACT.

The following local building contract has been filed in the office of the County Clerk at Elizabeth during the past week: Cohen and Isroelsky Building Company with Merchants and Traders Realty Company, entire work six new buildings, Plainfield, $10,800.

MANY DWELLINGS FOR EAST AND WEST END

Plans Out for Erection of Nearly One Hundred Residences.

Plainfield will expand during the next year in the east and west ends greatly, according to reports of dwellings that are soon to be put up. The H. C. Lockwood Comany has already started the erection of nine houses with all modern improvements in the Hillside Terrace section in the East End and before they are through operations they expect to have builth over thirty houses. They will all be of the latest type and sell for from $4,000 to $5,000.

It is reported that Emil Beys will soon start the erection of some twenty-five or thirty houses between North avenue and Second street, east of Leland avenue. They, also, will be of the latest type and suitable for families of moderate means. Present plans call for the cutting through of several new streets, and property in that vicinity should increase in valuation considerably.

In the West End work is already progressing on the erection of between twenty and twenty-five houses by a compnay consisting of a number of local prominent Hebrews. That section of the city near Rock avenue will in the course of another year be entirely built up with houses to sell for $4,000.

REALTY THANSFERS

The following realty transfers were recorded at the office of the County Clerk in Elizabeth during the past week:

James A. Perry to Lottie A. Van Fleet, northerly side of Union avenue, corner Clinton avenue, Plainfield $100

BUILDING NOTES

C. Everett Murray, of Willow avenue, has had plans drawn for a colonial house with all modern improvements, to cost in the vicinity of $15,000, for which he will award the contracts in a short time.

J. . Staats has completed the work of demolishing the sheds to the east of the Queen City Hotel and has begun active prepartions for the remodeling of the structure, which will be begun as soon as Mr. Staats gains control of it in a few months. Architects are at present working on the plans and will have them ready in a few days, when Mr. Staats will ask for bids.

Work has been started on four additions to the plant of the Bosch Magneto Company on South avenue, and as the factory is cramped for room work will be pushed forward as far as possible. The improvements will cost about $30,000, plans for which were filed several weeks ago.

The new addition to the Laing garage will be completed by the contractors in another two weeks.

The New Jersey Civil Service Commission announces an examination open to male residents of the State to be held Wednesday, October 11, for the position of Chief Clerk at the Rahway Reformatory with a salary of $1,200 per annum at the outset, with an increase to $1,500 in three years. SOUVENIRS TO BE GIVEN AWAY AT SCOTCH PLAINS

With windows crammed full of beautiful articles of real value, The Scotch Plains Improvement Co., 173 East Front street, Plainfield, has begun an unique advertising campaign. It is announced that more than twenty-five hundred dollars' worth of these articles, a part of which is on display, will be given away free. The announcement is made without any reservations. The only thing necessary for a person to do to obtain a gift is to be present at the auction sale of lots, to take place in Scotch Plains, at Flanders Park, beginning Thursday, September 28, at 2 p. m.

Flanders Park lies between Front and Second streets, Scotch Plains. The Public Service car lines run through the property. The sale of the lots in this beautiful suburban development will be made at absolute unreserved auction. To induce persons to come and inspect the property and see for themselves what it is, the inducement of the gifts is offered.

Flanders Park lots will be sold on terms within easy reach of the man and woman of moderate circumstances; arrangements will be made enabling the salaried young man or woman to acquire real estate upon payments that will not impose a hardship upon their incomes.

Flanders Park is within three-quarters of a mile of the eastern city line of Plainfield; fifteen-minute street car ride from the heart of busy Westfield and the same time from the shoping, theatrical and business center of Plainfield. From the big mills and manufacturing plants of Plainfield it is within a ten-minute ride, with an even flow of excellent car service. The trend of residential building and more spacious homes is in the direction of Flanders Park. The attractive Netherwood section is one of its close community neighbors.

With public schools of unsurpassed facilities; with churches, stores and close communication with the centers of Plainfield and Westfield, the quiet dignity of Scotch Plains' shaded byways offers a peaceful contrast to the busiest marts. The industrial seldom protrudes, while, with every modern convenience, such as electric lights, sidewalks, streets, gas and water available, the conditions for home surroundings are ideal.

The sale of building plots in beautiful Flanders Park will continue each day at 2 p. m., Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 28, 29, 30 and Oct. 2, 3 and 4.Adv.

WHAT IS LOCAL OPTION?

It is only a fair question for a voter to ask, what is local option? Every man should fully understand what he is voting for or against. At the outset, let it be said that local option is not a party question. Neither is the question of granting or refusing liquor licenses to be decided by voting for or against local option. No man should vote for it thinking that thereby he is voting against the liquor business. Neither should one vote for it because he wishes the sale of liquor to be licensed.

Local option is merely the principle of permitting a community to decide for itself, at its future elections, whether or not licenses shall be granted for the sale of liquor. It is the principle of home rule, nothing more, and nothing less. Power to grant or refuse licenses is now lodged with State or county officials. Local option would transfer that power to the people themselves. Instead of applications for, and remonstances against, licenses, being made to State authorities every year, the people of a community, at their election, would say whether or not licenses should be granted.

The will of the majority of the voters would rule in the granting of licenses, just as it does in some other matters of local interest. Shall a town have sewers, or not? Shall it bond itself for some needed improvements? These are local matters. They concern the people of the community. Who can best decide them? Would a State or county official, or the people of the community affected be the most capable of deciding the question? Those who live in the community, support its municipal government with their taxes, and whose every interest is centered in that community might feel that they were the proper ones to pass on such matters.

This is in accord with the American idea of popular government of the people and for the people. The question of licensing liquor dealers is on a par with other matters of local regulation, like the authorization of sewers, the regulation of milk, or permitting a huckster to sell potatoes on the street. It is a matter that affects the community, therefore, it rightfully belongs to the community to say by a majority of its voters whether or not it will permit licenses to be issued.

The smallest unit of government is the family. Every family demands, and has, the right to govern its own private affairs without interference from its neighbors. The largest unit, aside from the Federal government, is the State. Each State is jealous of its own rights, and will not brook interference from the Federal Government in matters that are purely domestic. It insists upon governing itself.

Likewise the municipality should govern itself in purely local matters. This was the Massachusetts idea when, in 1881, it began putting local option into effect. The people of other States saw the advantage of governing their own local affairs, and now, with but two exceptions, all the States have local option. This principle of government freely concedes to the State the necessity of centralization and uniformity in matters of State. But in purely local affairs it demands local autonomy and home rule. Local option then, is the right of a community to govern itself in matters affecting itself. It is purely a question of home rule.

Applied to the liquor question, it means that wherever it prevails the people of a community, at their elections, say whether or not liquor shall be sold there. If they vote against it, no licenses can be granted. If a majority of the voters say they want liquor sold, their will prevails and licenses must be granted by the local authorities. In a country where the majority rules, it seems the correct way to handle the license, and all other matters affecting a community.

- Proctor's Theatre -

O'RRIN JOHNSON
in "The Light at Dusk."

At Proctor's Monday.

No obstacles seem too great for the management of Proctor's local theatre to overcome, and when numerous requests were received from the many patrons during the past four or five weeks for Geraldine Farrar in "Temptation," the accommodating Proctor representatives immediately took steps to present this production for the entertainment of their patrons, with the result that Miss Farrar today appears in this, her greatest film triumph. In "Temptation" Miss Farrar appears as the sweetheart of a poor composer. Together they struggle, she to obtain here rightful place as an opera singer and he to get an opera produced. Eventually, both succeed, but not until she has agreed to pay the impresario the extreme price. To this she agrees only when her beloved is lying at the point of death, a mental wreck because of his disappointment. She never pays, however, for the impresario is killed by his jealous mistress. Her role in "Temptation" is as different than her role in "Carmen" as is night from day. She stands alone as a pantomimist whose acting has no bad moments, is astonishingly sustained and, in its total effect is nothing less than dazzling. The supporting cast is of unusual worth. Theodore Roberts has never done anything finer than his characterization of Otto Muller, the impresario. It is a brilliant piece of acting, filled with fine moments. Pedro de Cordoba is a well nigh perfect type, physically for the part of the composer. Elsie Jane Wilson, Raymond Hatton, Ernest Joy and Anita King complete a cast typical of Lasky. Another prominent screen star is presented today at Proctor's in a Metro production—no other than Olga Petrova, the famous emotionalist, who appears in an intensely dramatic offering, entitled "The Scarlet Woman." Madame Petrova's beauty and poise lend distinction to this subject—an excellent production, by which we mean Director Lawrence has maintained a high Metro standard and in settings, lighting and the handling of the cast.

On Monday V. L. S. E. features will be featured, which includes Orrin Johnson in "The Light at Dusk," and Lucille Lee Stewart in "The Conflict."

On Tuesday, Henry B. Walthall, the hero of "A Birth of a Nation," will be starred in a gripping Triangle feature, entitled "Pillars of Society."

Sleep.

I've heard a lot of twilight sleep
And it's results, ahem!
But what most of us like the best
Is sleep at 8 a. m.

Out our way twilight sleep's a myth,
Or sleep at any time.
The way the neighbors whoop it up
Is really a crime.

With phonographs and barking dogs
And crying kids and such,
The sleep out in suburban parts
Does not amount to much.

We grab a snooze when e'er we can,
We may get forty winks,
When suddenly we're awakened by
The motorcycle ginks.

Yes, sleep may be a blessed thing,
We've often heard as much,
But, far as us folks are concerned,
There ain't any such.

The meanest man has been found in Manistee. He went into a hardware store and bought a nickel's worth of nails, asking to have the package delivered. The marchant, calling a boy, handed the parcel and a dime, saying: "Here sonny, take this package to Mr. Blank's house."

"What," exclaimed the customer, "are you going to give the boy a dime to take the parcel up?"

"Certainly," said the marchant; "I wouldn't think of asking him to do it for nothing."

"Well," said the meanest man, "if you'd just as soon give me my nickel back, I'll take it myself and you'll save five cents."

Plainfield Theatre.

With Joe Hurtig's presentation of Stone and Pillard in "The Ragdoll in Ragland," burlesque offerings have again taken a step forward. No greater feast for the eye has ever been offered and whatever could be conceived to lend splendor and magnificence to a production, has been woven into this most spectacular of all fairyland attractions. One must know the versatility of Stone and Pillard to properly understand what they can do as grotesque characters of fairyland. "The Ragdoll in Ragland" tells of the love dreams of Twinkle Tootsie (Etta Pillard) who finds her fondest expectations realized when Raggy, here ragdoll (George Stone) comes to life. Both lead an adventurous career which has its beginning in an escape. They are arrested, but their jovial spirit never leaves them and they get out of unpleasant complications by actually dancing off the earth. Tootsie and Raggy make a trip through the clouds and land in England just at the time when a big carnival is held on the beautiful lawns in the front of the royal palace. Red Riding Hood, Phoebe Snow, with a bevy of snowgirls, the wooden soldier and other popular figures introduced in fairy tales, are in the festive throng.

Most spectacular among the dancing ensemble is "Ragging Over the End of the World" and "Dancing Off the Earth." There is a continuous swing of merriment, gayety and frivolity. Enchanting songs and fascinating dancing numbers enliven the fast unrolling spectacle. Of course, Stone and Pillard are the ever busy sparklets who rarely leave the merry scenes, and then only long enough to make a quick change of wardrobe.

Scenic equipment and the general costuming is claimed to be the most gorgeous ever seen at the Plainfield Theatre, where "The Ragdoll in Ragland" will be offered for the first time Monday matinee and night.

That Manager Shannon's vaudeville bill for the last half of the week has been one of the best seen in the local West Second street theatre for some time has been demonstrated by the capacity crowds that have attended every performance since Thursday afternoon. In order to accommodate patrons today, the management opened its matinee this afternoon at 1 o'clock and is running two performances this afternoon and will also show two tonight. "It Can't Be Done," the local film taken last week and in which Plainfield's most popular young men and women star, will again be shown at each performance tonight. The acting of the participants is of unusual merit and their appearance on the screen has won much worthy comment from the spectators. The headliner on the vaudeville bill is the miniature musical comedy entitled "The Garden of Love." The sketch is replete with pretty girls, popular songs and all the latest dances. Four other acts round out the program. Pathe pictures intermingle with the vaudeville.

Monday afternoon and night, the Plainfield Theatre will be turned over to "Stone and Pillard," the popular musical comedy artists which won much commendation here last season. The show is bigger, greater and grander than ever and the two popular artists will be seen in a brand new offering, "The Rag Doll in Ragland." The matinee performance will start at 2:15 o'clock. The evening performance will begin at 8:15.

"The Twelve Highland Lassies" is the name of the musical act which will head the vaudeville bill at the theatre Tuesday afternoon. The act is Scotch throughout. Scotch songs, jokes and Highland dances feature the production. Four other acts will complete the program, as well as the usual run of Pathe comedies and dramas.

WHICH WAY WILL IT FALL?

THE FORUM

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

As a member of the Progressive party I am going to vote for Senator Walter E. Edge for Governor for these reasons and I am urging my friends who are interested in the welfare of the boys of New Jersey to give favorable consideration to his candidacy at the primaries on Tuesday.

For many years I have been actively interested in the welfare of boys, partly as an official of the Plainfield Boy Scout movement and to an almost equal degree as instructor of a large Sunday-school class of young men just entering the age of worldly experience. In both capacities considerable stress has been laid upon the ideals of citizenship and of manhood. Anything that blocks or militates against the actual realization of these standards calls for protest of the most vigorous sort. The saloon never has been accused of making for better citizenship among boys and young men and therefore if it is not for these ideals it is against them and because they are opposed to this betterment they should be eliminated as soon as possible as an agency for evil.

On Tuesday we are to select certain candidates for practically every office within the gift of the people. Vital interests center in the whole ticket from councilman to Governor and President. Outside of the national offices to be filled nothing transcends in importance and vital interest to the welfare of this city, county and State and the boys who live here and will be part of the electorate within a few years, that of eliminating from our city, county and State the open saloon.

The boy who hears his father speak highly of some man of his acquaintance and later sees that man emerge in company with others from the swinging door of a saloon is sure to have the seed of moral callousness sown within his brain. The sight of a respected church member stepping out of a public liquor store by a Boy Scout or a member of a Sunday-school is sure to make that boy think that if Mr. So and So can go into a saloon there is no reason why he should not do the same.

The thing to do, if the greatest public good is to be done for the boys of Union county and New Jersey at this primary election is to set the machinery in motion that will strike a blow at the open saloon as a menace to the morals and character of the young men of our day and time. The "blind tiger" or "speakeasy" is not going to be patronized by the respectable citizen and the police can easily take care of the proprietor and patron. If they are unable to do so those who have respect for decency and clean government will see that adequate police provision is made for handling that problem. There are no opium dens or cocaine parlors in Union county mainly because we have efficient police departments under able chieftainships. Under the same able executives, backed by public sentiment, there would be no speakeasies.

The voter on Tuesday must look even beyond his own city and carry the work of protecting the boy into the State. To this end he should give consideration to the candidate for Governor. I have it very straight from Walter E. Edge, of Atlantic, that if the State Legislature passes a local option measure he will sign it.

"And you can make that promise as strong as you want to," he said.

As a Progressive I am working hard among my personal friends for their favorable consideration of Walter E Edge as a candidate for Governor on Tuesday, because I know he has the interest of every boy in the whole State of New Jersey at heart and is just as anxious to see that the saloon plays as small a part as possible in the future citizenship of the State as I am. Beside Mr. Edge has made his record in public life upon his constructive legislation at Trenton and the very fact that the Atlantic City "liquor ring" is against him makes me believe that a local option bill will be pretty safe in his hands if he is elected Governor. A vote in favor of Mr. Edge will mean a vote in favor of your boy and mine.

CENTENARY OF PIONEER.

Oshkosh, Wis., Sept. 22.—Oshkosh recalled today as the centennial aniversary of the birth of Philetus Sawyer, a noted pioneer citizen of this city and long a representative of Wisconsin in the United States Senate. Senator Sawyer was born in Rutland, Vt., Sept. 22, 1816. In early life he was a blacksmith. He came to Wisconsin in 1850 and engaged in the lumbering business, becoming in time a millionaire. In 1881, after ten years of service in the lower house of Congress, he was elected to the United States Senate, where he served two terms. His death occurred here in 1901.

Diana of Ephesus.

Ephesus was one of the twelve Ionic cities of Asia Minor and was situated in Lydia, near the mouth of the river Caystrus. According to Strabo, it was founded by Androclus, son of Codrus. It ultimately came into possession of the Romans, and in the time of Augustus it was the greatest place of trade of all the cities of Asia west of the Taurus. St. Paul resided there three years, but the destruction of its great temple by the Goths in 260 A. D. gave it a blow from which it never recovered. This was the famous temple of Diana. Near the western extremity of the town are still to be seen some massive structures, which have since 1868 been carefully excavated. It is now certain that these stand on the famous temple site.

Joss Sticks.

The composition of the candles called joss sticks, which are used in all the religious ceremonies of Buddhism, for a long time remained a mystery, the preparation of the sticks being intrusted to certain persons chosen from a limited class. A French chemist, however, learned the manner of making joss sticks in Indo-China. A stem of bamboo is rolled in a preparation containing fourteen different odoriferous drugs, two of which are significant as showing a knowledge of chemical and physical properties. These are aconite, which serves to protect the sticks against the attacks of rats and mice, and camphor, which causes them to burn steadily without being periodically extinguished.

His One Regret.

"There's no use trying to deny it," remarked Mrs. DeFlatt, "this is the worst cook we've had yet. There positively isn't a decent thing to eat on the table."

"That's right," rejoined DeFlatt.

"But," continued his wife, "there's one thing in her favor. She can't be beat when it comes to washing."

"Pity we can't eat the washing," sighed the hungry husband.—Chicago News.

Would Help Some.

"What—er—what sort of a part has she in your show? Do you think she'll please the audience?" he queried anxiously.

"She ought to. She gets killed in the first act," replies a sister contemporary.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

No Chance For It.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

What Some Weavers Wove On Their Loom.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

THE children stopped digging in their gardens and ran in to hear daddy's bedtime story, which began with: "Many years ago there was a vain emperor who got some rogues to weave for his clothes a kind of cloth he thought would be invisible to the unfit and the stupid.

"'I will send my faithful old minister to the weavers,' thought the emperor. 'He will spare us all from awkwardness, for he is a clever man, and no one does his duties better than he does. He is just the one to go see how the cloth looks.'

"So the good old minister went into the room where the two swindlers sat working at an empty loom.

"'Heaven preserve us!' thought the old man, opening his eyes very wide. 'Why, I can't see a thing!' But he was careful not to say so for fear he might be thought stupid.

"Both the swindlers begged him to be kind enough to step a little nearer. They asked him if he did not think it a beautiful pattern and coloring.

"They pointed to the empty loom, and the poor old minister stared as hard as he could. But for his life he could not see anything, for, of course, the rogues had nothing to see. They had lugged off in bags all the gold threads and rich silks the vain emperor had given them to weave for him.

"'Good heavens!' thought the old man. 'Is it possible that I am a fool? I have never thought so, and now nobody must know it. Am I not fit for my post? It will never do to say that I cannot see the cloth.'

"'Well, sir, you do not say anything about the stuff!' cried one of the rogues, pretending to throw his shuttle.

"'Oh, it is beautiful, quite charming,' said the old minister, gazing through his spectacles—'this pattern and those colors! I will certainly tell the emperor.'

"'We are delighted to hear you say so,' answered the swindlers. And they named all the colors and described the pattern.

"The old minister paid a great deal of attention to what they said so as to be able to repeat it to the emperor when he went back to the palace.

"Then the rogues began to demand more gold threads, more rich silks and more money so that they might be able to go ahead with the weaving. But they put it all into their own bags and their own pockets. Not a single strand was ever put on the loom. They went on as before, pretending to weave before the empty loom, throwing their shuttles back and forth with all the motions of making cloth."

Training a Husband

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Marian Lectures Morris on His Shortcomings as a Husband.

"Morris, I do wish you could get time to mow the lawn. The Neighborhood Club meets here tomorrow evening and I am ashamed of the way our yard looks." Marian stood in the door of the study.

"Marian, I shall have to give up working at home at all if you cannot stop interrupting me. You are constantly appearing at that door and suggesting something that you want done." Marian went up to the nervous, irritable man and laid her hand on his shoulder.

"You know you do not mean that. You have stuck so closely to your work up here with no exercise that you are nervously exhausted. A little exercise will make you feel better and so make the work go more rapidly." Morris snorted sceptically. "You are getting all round shouldered, sitting here so many hours without change."

"I have heard enough about my round shoulders," replied Morris testily. I must go on with my work now." Marian did not take this broad hint to depart. Instead she said:

"You will mow the lawn this evening, will you not?"

"If you want the grass cut, set the boys at it. They have nothing to do."

"They cannot do it——"

"Of course they can," interrupted Morris. "It is a part of your babying course to make them think they can do nothing."

"They have tried it, Morris, both of them pushing the mower together. They are too short and it raises the blade right off the ground," said his wife quietly.

Morris did not reply, but pounded away on his typewriter viciously.

"All the other members of the club have such pretty lawns, and everyone of the men take care of them——"

"How do you know?" snapped Morris.

"I have seen some of them at work in the yard, and Mrs. Ellson said it was the 'fashionable exercise' in Fairport." Marian laughed and moved toward the window.

"Oh, you want me to be fashionable?" sneered Morris.

"I would like to have an attractive home, an attractive yard. We can't spend much on our home, but the yard can be well kept and that will be a great help. I can't do any more than I am doing. This is something that you could do to make home pleasant."

"Marian, you are becoming one of the worst naggers I know." Morris shoved back petulantly from the typewriter. "You insist on running my business, interrupting my important work for every little thing you want. You never did this before, and I will not stand it." Marian turned quietly around and looked at her husband.

"Morris, if it is interfering with your business to ask a favor; to ask for a little reasonable help in making our home a livable place, I am afraid you are doomed to interference. I think I have made a great mistake in the past, and I propose to do my best to rectify it." Morris was looking fixedly at her. "I was very proud and I found it hard to ask for help when we were first married. I thought you ought to offer to assist me. Father always did. He spoiled us. The result was that I got no help of any kind. I struggled along alone some way. It was hard and it was unfair; for you were better able to do things you could have done to help than I was to do everything alone. I have had four babies and you never took care of one of them a half a day till last Saturday. You were not brought up to do things in the house. You never liked to and it never occurred to you to help me. If I had asked for help you would have given it at first, but now you think anything I ask is an infringement on your rights."

"Why, Marian, I am sure——"

"Let me finish, dear. I have determined that we will be equal partners in making this home of ours pleasant. I shall never ask anything of you that I am not sure you could do far easier than I, and I hope you will at least give me the courtesy of a hearing. If there is any reason why you cannot do the thing I ask I shall be reasonable enough to accept a refusal, I hope, but there must be some reason besides a selfish whim to satisfy me. Is that not a fair proposition?" She took Morris' hand between her own.

"I have been very thoughtless," began Morris after a pause. "You should have opened my eyes sooner. I——"

"We will begin all over again now," whispered Marian, kissing him and slipping her arm around his neck. "As I said I am to blame."

SATIN IS HAVING A GREAT VOGUE

High Lustre Surfaces Have Stamp of Approval From Paris—Who Dares to Say Nay Against This Decree.

By Mary Glynn.

If silk is queen, satin is superqueen. This autumn edict has gone forth from Paris that all high lustre fabrics are to be the vogue. Paris dressmakers at their August opening displayed enthusiasm on this note, and American women are accepting the decree oh so willingly. There is a charm and becomingness about satin which quickly enslaves every woman. "Tell in not in gath" but satin has a way of making a too rounded figure look slim and graceful. This is why it is so popular with women who are near the dangerous age, that is around about forty. So in satin, the women of this painful age may appear twenty. Small wonder is it then that all of the early autumn shoppers are clamoring for satin dresses. French manufacturers frankly admit their inability to deliver anything that is actually new in the way of silk materials. And as it is possible for them to make beautiful satins even in their present handicapped industrial situation, they have gone about making beautiful high lustre stuffs in the most wonderful new colors. Even the blues are different from the old-fashioned navies and midnight blues. It is said that this is because Indigo is in short supply and so the resourceful French have put a dash of something else into their blue dyes and evolved the most fascinating shades which sometimes have a greenish cast like a duck and peacock blue, and again have a [illegible]t of purple haze, but in both insta[illegible], dark and somber looking. Likewise there are most beautiful reds which in instances are brownish like the dregs of wine, or "lys" as the French would say. Again they are earthly in tone and one of the new colors is called bivouac, and in tone it does suggest the blood stained earth of France. Another class of reds are those which have a purpleish cast, and which in the lighter tones merge into that shade which all Americans love, the American Beauty rose. Purples have not been overlooked in the dyeing or satins and there is a wonderful assortment in plum, prune, raisin, eggplant, mulberry, crushed raspberry, and royal purple, the combination of all these wonderful shades. So now who chooses a satin dress, may choose her favorite and most becoming color. Taupe, gray and green, add their charms to the list, and the shopper finds embarassment of riches among the new satin dresses.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

THAT CITY LEAGUE "FEED."

It was with considerable chagrin that several local baseball leaders learned of the dying interest in the proposed City League "feed" scheduled to be held next Friday evening. Just why interest in the affair is at such a low ebb is certainly difficult to understand. The amount of pecuniary assistance which would be asked of each member of a league team could not be assigned as the reason why the affair is lacking in popularity. It certainly should not be said of the Netherwood players that they are not "over-anxious" to get their awards in public. For years, it has been the custom for man to take his honors in broad daylight—that is in full view of the public. And we believe that the East End players would consent to do just the same thing. But if the rest of the boys do not get busy, there will be no opportunity afforded the Netherwoods. If the Coughlan boys are a bit bashful, let them do a little practicing. Leaguers, revive the old spirit and hold this "feed." Everyone is anxious to do a little eating.

AS A WISE MAN SAYS.

Not so long ago Dave Driscoll discovered Plainfield. Of course, Plainfield existed long before Dave realized, but one day the austere Jersey City man drifted out this way. He thought he saw a fertile field for baseball conquests and, as a result, scheduled some nifty attractions. In those days fans were of the opinion that baseball talent had to come from the metropolis—and, incidentally, Driscoll was paid to bring the "talent." There was no City League at the time and few fans were inclined to believe that home-bred youths could dash around the diamond to any appreciable degree. But the fans lived and, as the sage says, "have learned." The City League has accomplished at least one thing. It has demonstrated that in Plainfield there are just as good baseball players as there are anywhere. It is no longer necessary to import players—we have them to export. And, believe us, the neighborly cities are pleased when Plainfield boys enroll with their outfits. Witness Lou Brown at Red Bank.

USING PLAINFIELD'S NAME.

In the metropolitan district, there is a manager who books games under the name of the "Plainfield" club. All of which might be considered excusable if the manager was in the habit of keeping his dates. This manager—who he is we do not know—recently scheduled a match with a team from Elizabeth. The game was to have been played at the Union county seat and we are told that an eleventh hour cancellation was received by the leader of the Elizabeth outfit. Now the scribes of Betsytown are all excited. They have a right to be. One writer is of the opinion that the "Queen City" manager should be stopped. Now, to the best of our knowledge, the manager in question does not live in this city. As far as we known, he never submitted a lineup that in any way appeared to be "local." Plainfield is getting slighted when such fellows as this manager is, are allowed to go about without a keeper. Fans of Elizabeth; Plainfield is not responsible for what is done by outsiders. Do not chalk up such actions as were indulged in by this manager against the Queen City of the East.

• • • • • •

ALBIN CARLSTROM'S CAREER.

About the time when our own Jack Martin "hit the trail" for higher climes, there ambled into Plainfield—perhaps at Dave Driscoll's request—a tall, and extremely quiet youth, named Carlstrom. He was not as lively as Martin, but he was equally as clever a fielder. He seldom disputed a play and was always on the job, ready to win even though he missed his train back to Elizabeth. Albin was very popular with local fans. Although he was not a local boy, the fans were "with" him and his rise to prominence has been watched with eager eyes. Carlstrom is now with Buffalo. In our opinion he will make good with the Red Sox, with which team it is reported that he is going. Elizabeth scribes do not neglect him and a little "tip" to the effect that Plainfield still remembers him will not go amiss

WHILE WE ARE AT IT.

What we write in this column is "all in the days' work." A few lines above, we believe, we touched on Dave Driscoll. Dave—who must consider himself fortunate in that he bears the same surname as does David Wark Griffith—pastimed in this city a few years ago. He is still in the baseball business, although we believe that he does more managing than anything else nowadays. Dave could get any baseball player he wanted and he certainly did present Plainfield and New Brunswick with nifty teams on special occasions. Several of the same players that he brought to Plainfield are still with him. It was Driscoll who introduced to Plainfield and New Brunswick fans, Wally Cosgrove, Billy Stallings, Eddie Stallings, Joe Harter, Jack Dalton, Albin Carlstrom, Frank Bruggy and the rest of the crew. "Chick" Boyd was also a product introduced locally by Driscoll. Boyd was one of the fastest runners that ever graced a local diamond. We believe that he was even faster than Trust. But, let us return to Dave. While Ernie Dorflinger really managed the Pets—as the Plainfield team was called—Driscoll did the engaging of players. The team played in this city on Saturdays and took a trip to New Brunswick on Sundays. No, sir, we will never forget Dave Driscoll.

THOSE FOOTBALL RULES.

"There was the usual number of football men at the interpretation meeting of the football rules committee in New York Saturday, who delight in trying to mix things up by asking all sorts of questions to prove the presence of loopholes in the rules. They are not satisfied in taking a broad view of the code, but must get out the microscope in a fault-finding campaign. By the time the meeting is over officials and others present leave the place in a haze of conflicting thoughts. It takes them a day or two to get back to a reasonable state of mind. These discussions are amusing, but really now quite out of reason. The rules are well framed and the few so-called doubtful points are merely matters for an official on the field to solve with an application of common sense. Football men, as yet, have not learned to put a reasonable amount of faith in the judgment of a referee or umpire."—Newark News.

VAN DEVENTER BOYS WINNERS IN FINALS

Before 15,000 Spectators Ludlow and Phil Defeat Kirkland and Stockton.

Before a gallery of over fifteen hundred people Harold E. Throckmorton and Lindsay Dunham last night defeated Dan Mathey and E. H. Whitney in an exhibition of doubles on the courts of the Westfield Golf Club. The scores were 6—4, 6—2 and 9—7.

The exhibition was a climax of two weeks of night tennis at the Westfield Club, during which time there were thirty-two teams of New Jersey's best tennis players engaged. In the finals of this tournament, which preceded the exhibition by the four experts, the Van Deventer Brothers of this city defeated R. M. Kirkland and J. F. Stockton, the scores of the match being 6—4, 6—4, 6—4.

This victory was won by the local lads after a fortnight of earnest play. The title that goes with the victory is "Champions of the Westfield Golf Club."

HERE AND THERE

The Michigan football coaches have a "Peach" among their material for end position.

Beals Becker, the old Giant-Philly pastimer, now with Kansas City, is ripping the pellet seams with the aid of his war club.

It was plain to see that baseball scribblers would go to it when Johnny Evers was compelled to have an operation on his jaw.

If a man is known by the company he keeps, what's the answer to Hal Chase's brilliant work while associating with the Cincinnati Reds?

For downright gameness you have to hand it to the Yale gridiron warriors. They come right back every year and schedule a game with Harvard.

Gunboat Smith and Jim Coffey are soon to clash in Philadelphia. The winner will be declared the knock(ed) champion of the world.

Once upon a time Ever Hammer was declared to be the greatest batter of his weight, the coming champion, etc. But that was before he was formally introduced to a dozen or so other lighties.

"Chick" Evans, the golf wizard, is one champion who evidently is not all "swelled up" over his success in winning the amateur and open championships. He says he was lucky to cop the titles.

Sunday, September 24, has been set as Wambsganss Day at Cleveland. Honoring the Sixth City infielder is due to the fact that he is the only pastimer who has been able to stick in the big show with a name that no one can pronounce.

Managers of boxers being quiet and mild-mannered beings, it is only whispered softly that Georges Carpentier, the French heavyweight champion, and Les Dacy, the Australian battler, are to visit your Uncle Samuel in the near future.

The next time Porky Flynn meets Fred Fulton he is going to have an assistant in the ring to look after about 200 pounds of Fulton, while he himself takes care of the other 200 pounds of Rochester beef.

Having the best pitchers, batters and fielders in the International League, it is said Buffalo couldn't do otherwise than win the pennant. Then Gen. Patrick Donovan gets no credit for the Bisons' success. Perhaps he wasn't there the day they won.

Just to show what a handicap football rules are at times. One of the greatest punters the gridiron game has ever known is working with the Crimson squad and yet Harvard is not allowed to play him. His name is Brickley, first name Charles.

All that the American athletes—Ted Meredith, Fred Murray, Bob Simpson and Joe Loomis—are expected to do in the coming meet in Sweden, is to win the 100-yard dash, the quarter and the half-mile runs, the broad jump, the high jump, the shot put, and high, low, jack and the game.

AUTUMN RACE MEETING.

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 22.—The Woodbine track was never in better shape than it is now, and the autumn meeting of the Ontario Jockey Club, which begins there tomorrow, promises with settled weather to furnish a week of excellent sport. The stables are crowded with fast horses that have returned to Toronto well seasoned as a result of their summer's campaign over the Canadian circuit. A number of sterling performers are entered for the Toronto Autumn Cup, at one mile and a quarter, which is to be the feature event of the opening day.

SCOTT AND APGAR TO STAGE THRILLER

Dunellen and Tab Teams Will Furnish Plenty Excitement Tomorrow.

The Dunellen and Tab baseball teams will hold a baseball battle on Avon Oval tomorrow afternoon. Tommy Apgar, who is manager of the Dunellen team, and Jim Scott, who is the leader of the Tab outfit, feel confident of victory. We do not like to quote these two gentlemen, but we feel certain that a statement from one would suffice for the two. "Victory will be ours"—that's just the words each would use.

Johnny Dixon will shoot the pill over for the Dunellens, while Mickey McFadden will do likewise for the Tabs. Eddie Bergen and Teeling will be the rival catchers. Warry McLaughlin and Jack Denny will be employed as reserve pitchers.

The probable line-ups of the two teams follow:

Dunellen.	Tabs.
J Dixon	McFadden

Bergen	Teeling
Catcher.

DAVE BERSE WILL ENTER PREP SCHOOL

Local Athlete Will Probably Play on Rutgers Prep Basketball Team.

According to present plans Dave Berse will enter Rutgers Preparatory School next month. Berse has already completed a year's training at the Y. M. C. A. Prep School in Philadelphia and expects to be able to enter Rutgers College next year.

Dave, who is recognized as a star basketball player, will play with the local Y. M. C. A. team this year and will, in all probability, secure a position on the Rutgers Prep five. While at the Philadelphia institution, Berse played with the team and was considered one of the most valuable men on the squad.

Benny Berse, a brother to Dave, will probably take charge of the Y. M. C. A. basgetball team this year. Benny has had experience along managing lines and should be successful.

JACK MARTIN WILL NOT BE MANAGER

Man With League Experience to Take Jack's Place, According to Reports.

Jack Martin will not remain manager of the Brewers after the close of the present season. A new leader, probably a man with big league playing and managerial experience will head the team.

President Timme announced as much on Wednesday, follofing the return of the club from a month's invasion of foreign loam.

"Yes, we will have another manager next season," said the Brewer boss, when the question was put up to him. "We have not selected the man as yet, and we will go mighty slow before making any choice. Over twenty big league managers have applied for the place, so I do not expect any trouble in finding the right man. I know what sort of a manager I want, and I don't intend to break any speed laws in making my selection.

"Of course, I want to get a man with big league experience and with big league connections, as a manager, with major league friends can often get a desirable player, where a man who has no such affiliations will fail.

"Martin has worked like a beaver with the club, and deserves great credit for his work. However, Jack has been handicapped by the fact that he was lifted out of the ranks and made boss of his former pals and team mates. The men did not lay down on the job, but it's a cinch they would work harder for a man with a big reputation than they would for one of their old cronies. Jack understands that he was put in charge temporarily only, and he will remain with the club as a player, as I consider him one of the best shortstops in the minors."

PLAINFIELDERS PLAY IN SENIOR EVENT

W. T. Kaufman and D. H. Rowland Return Creditable Scores in Rye Tourney.

The twelfth annual seniors' tournament of the Apawamis Club passed into history today when the last of the 144 veterans who have played in the last four days holed out his final put on the wide spreading home green and sought the shelter of the club house and the famous Apawamis nineteenth hole. Billy Potts, the professional, tucked the last of his blue and red pencils into his pocket and uttered a sigh of relief, for his task of posting the mass of medal scores was about as trying a one as could be imagined. He was one of the real heroes of the big tourney.

An inspection of the dozen big sheets of figures revealed the fact that C. Gilbert Waldo of Brookhave, who made an 84 on Tuesday, for a total gross score of 167, was entitled to the honor of being known throughout the land as the champion senior golfer of 1916. Needless to say in addition the honor Mr. Waldo will receive the finest prize of the glittering array spread forth on a table in the main room of the club house. Although he did all his playing on the first two days as a member of the first group, Mr. Waldo was not officially declared the winner until all the scores were in yesterday, for a better total made by any member of the second division would have pushed him from the pedestal.

The nearest approach to such a catastrophe was just close enough to make the victor tremble. E. J. Hasse, of the Philadelphia Country Club, who tied for the lead in the second division yesterday with a score of 85, made a fine 83 today. The stern laws of mathematics left his 168 a stroke higher than Mr. Waldo's score, however, so Mr. Hasse had to be content with the prize for the best thirty-six hole gross score on the last two days.

W. T. Kaufman and David H. Rowland, of this city, returned creditable scores. Mr. Kaufman's card was 195, 32—163, while Mr. Rowland turned in a card of 207, 40—167.

BOWLING SEASON ON AT COLUMBUS CLUB

"Mixed" Tournament Held at Front Street Clubhouse Last Night.

The Knights of Columbus bowling season opened last night, when a "mixed" tourney was held. There was a large crowd present and fifty members and their guests took part in the bowling. Various prizes were awarded and creditable scores recorded.

Joseph Sullivan and Mrs. H. B. Arnold captured first prize in the "mixed" tourney and received $2.50 in merchandise. Their score was 309. The second prize went to Miss Mae Murray and George Taylor, who returned a score of 291. An umbrella was awarded to each. Mrs. John Wilson and George Howe, with a score of 288, were awarded the third prize.

George Howe will attend a meeting of the Knights of Columbus Bowling League in Newark tomorrow. According to present plans, Howe will enter a local team in the league.

At the Traps

By Peter P. Carney.

Trapshooting Leagues are being organized in all parts of the United States and Canada, and, unlike leagues in other sporting activities, trapshooting leagues never go to the wall. Trapshooters discovered, as the baseball magnates found out, that there is more interest in league competition than in independent contests—hence the continued formation of leagues.

One of these leagues, however, stands out above all the others. This is the Philadelphia Trapshooters' League. The name is a misnomer, for there is really only one Philadelphia club in the organization. The league has just chosen officers for its 13th season. William A. Joslyn, of the Wilmington Trapshooting Association, vice president for the last two years, is the new president. Charles H. Simmonds, of the Meadow Springs Club, is vice president, and W. E. Robinson, of the S. S. White's, is the secretary. Robinson has a life job.

The report of Mr. Robinson proved the worth of the league. It showed that more targets were thrown than in any other league in existence, and that there were more competitors—2,496 shooters, men and women, participated in the league shoots and fired at 124,800 targets. In the final match of the year 127 trapshooters faced the traps. On ten occasions more than 100 shooters participated, and on one occasion the duPont team was composed of 105 shooters.

The Wilmington Trapshooting Association will supplant the duPont Trapshooting Club in the 1916-1917 season. The other clubs will be the same as last year. The S. S. White, five times champion of the league, had more shooters than any other club, and therefore fired at the greatest number of targets.

FOOTBALL

Columbia.

Light signal practice, the first of the year, featured the work of the Columbia football squad at South Field yesterday. For half an hour the squad was lined up and put through a snappy drill that greatly pleased the coaches. The veterans showed considerable speed. J. C. Hageman, a freshman star last year, was tried out with the backfield combination and acquitted himself creditably. Cochran, Monroe and Miller were the other backs.

As was the case the day before, the Blue and White squad worked through two sessions of practice. The candidates spent an hour in the morning running and falling on the ball. Strenuous tackinig practice occupied a full hour of the afternoon's work. Howard Miller succeeded in kicking twenty-three field goals out of twenty-six attempts—a feat of no mean significance at this early stage of the season. Miller likewise practiced punting, and got off a number of spirals that carried far down the field.

Fordham.

While the Fordham practice was a half hour shorter than usual yesterday the Maroon squad's workout was the most gruelling of the week. Head Coach Gargan drove his charges faster and over more ground than before.

Bill May, veteran tackle, wrenched his knee. He will be on the sick list for a week. Ryan, a Fordham Prep candidate, had his nose bruised and will not report for several days. Assistant Coach Moriarity is uneasy about the hole left in the Maroon rush line by the absence of May and "Red" Mulcahy. Injuries have caused the tackle and guard on the same side of the line to rest up for a while. They are expected to be in action before the Lafayette game next Saturday, but are missing valuable scrimmages.

A half hour signal drill showed the Maroon attack to be of the wide open style. The ends and backfield were forced to the limit handling quick forward passing.

N. Y. U.

New York University's football squad continues to increase in size. Yesterday afternoon enough new men reported for practice to bring the total close to forty candidates. This is, with the exception of one or two possible exceptions, the largest number of candidates who have ever reported for pre-season work at University Heights.

Head Coach Eustis sent his charges through a short but strenuous workout. All his efforts seem to be directed along lines that will increase speed. Most of the time was devoted to instruction in charging. The linemen, and specially the guards and tackles, were lined up in front of the tackling dummy and shown how to concentrate their efforts when making a hole for a line plunge play.

Pete Sokolower was the only regular who reported yesterday, but the new men continued to arrive at the gymnasium. G. Horrigan, who was one of the big players on the Elmira Free Academy team last year, was one of the new candidates. Savage, a former Connecticut Literary Academy man, was also on hand.

Its Speed.

"The fact that Aunt Jennie has a bad cold does not seem to affect her talking capacity in the least."

"I noticed she had considerable hoarse power left."—Baltimore American.

A Well Pleased Man.

"Why don't you get married, colonel?"

"I am not so cruel. It would make one happy and a hundred unhappy."—Fliegende Blaetter.

Do You Believe In Fairies?

Do you believe in fairies?

Do you believe that you are guiding your own destiny through life or do you think that there are invisible little creatures who bend you to their wills as they flit mysteriously through the air?

Those were some of the questions which an interviewer asked of dainty little Marguerite Clark as the smallest elf of screenland sat in the Famous Players studio waiting for her next scene in the Paramount Picture "Little Lady Eileen."

But why the reference to fairies?

Because Miss Clark is appearing in this production in the role of a little Irish lassie who profoundly believes in fairies. She knows that they exist because she can see them—even though her lover cannot. And she knows that it is the fairies who are guiding her to her true love.

But does Miss Clark really believe in such things in this matter-of-fact day of ours? The little star's eyes open very wide and her tiny head is cocked at a very thoughtful angle for an instant and then she replies:

"Why—of course I do! What is all this mysterious substance which we so wisely call electricity? Do we really know what it is? Do you know that even such great experts as Steinmetz and Edison frankly confess that they do not actually know what electricity is, despite the fact that they have chained it and forced it to do their bidding and made it the slave of mankind?

"But how do we know but what these wizards of our time are only crafty men who have discovered—not a lot of tremendous formulas—but the secret key to fairyland, and that they are simply forcing the fairies to obey them, like the conjurors of old? And when the secret is finally disclosed, are we not going to find that all the thousands of miles of wire were merely strung to deceive us and that the thing which we have called Electricity is in reality the Queen of the Fairies who has been enslaved by these wizards?"

The interviewer gasped—until he detected a mischievous twinkle in Miss Clark's eye as she skipped lightly over to the setting at a sign from J. Searle Dawley, her remarkably clever director. Then he decided that somebody had been making game of his credulity.

PREPARE FOR FEAST OF ROSH HASHANAH

Sundown September 27 Marks Beginning of Jewish Holidays.

Sundown Wednesday, September 27, the first day of the Jewish month Tishri, will mark the beginning of the Jewish High Holidays. These holidays of deep religious significance, will commence with the feast of Rosh Hashanah, or New Year. The New Year will be followed by ten days of Penitence, which reach their climax on the Day of Atonement, October 7.

"On the New Year all the inhabitants of the earth pass before Him as sheep gefore a shepherd." In these words the ancient Jewish law book, the Mishna, refers to the significance of this day. It is a day of Judgment when the sins and the merits of all men are weighed by the Divine Judge. The Talmud tells that in this annual New Year's Judgment scene three books lie open before the Most High. In one book, the Book of Life, the names of the perfectly righteous, the sinless, are inscribed; the second book, the book of death, has recorded in it the names of the utterly wicked; and the third book is for the ordinary "middle type" of men, in whose behalf judgment is suspended when the decision is finally made and recorded.

The services for the day are especially solemn. Prayers in prose and poetry, dwelling on the theme of God's Judgment of man, are recited and sung. The Ram's horn, the "Shofar," summoning men to prayer and repentance, is sounded in all synagogues. At the close of the services the worshippers greet each other with the words "May you be written down for a good year."

Orthodox Jews observe many ceremonies which suggest the ideas and emotions of the day. In the home honey and fruits are eaten and the pious wish expressed "May it be Thy will to renew to us good and sweet year." During the day Orthodox Jews will go to a river, shake crumbs from their clothes and recite among other prayers the verse from Micah, "And you will cast into the depths of the sea all their sins." While orthodox Jews observe the feast for two days, September 27 and 28 this year, Reform Jews return to the ancient Palestine custom and observe but one day.

THEATRICAL BILLBOARD

A New York pawn shop has had a watch displayed, alleging it belonged to Villa, the Mexican bandit. A value of $800 has been placed on the timepiece. It has been secured as an attraction for a Brooklyn cabaret.

One thousand three hundred dollars weekly for forty consecutive weeks is the offer made to Eddie Foy to appear in the Marcus Loew vaudevill theatres. Foy has engaged for the Century's (New York) production and had to decline.

"Seremonde," to be produced and played by Julia Arthur, is in reality "The Red Wine of Roussilon," by William Lindsay. Following its production, Miss Arthur will revive "A Lady of Quality." The original "Lady of Quality" production cost $150,000. It was destroyed by fire. "More Than Queen," as mounted for the stage by Miss Arthur herself, cost $200,000. It was a wedding present from her wealthy husband, Benjamin P. Cheney, of Boston.

West Frankfort, Ill., a town of 600 population, is opening a rectnly built theatre for legitimate attractions, costing $50,000.

In the new Raymond Hitchcock show, "Betty," first produced at Rochester, N. Y., last week, this star is wearing a monocle and giving an impression of an Englishman without his famous temple forelock. The combination is reported as fily fitting Hitchcock.

Not much is being said of the new Mary Pickford eight-reel feature, "Less Than Dust," that would give outsiders any idea of its magnitude, but its vastness may be gleaned from the fact that more than $350,000 has already been expended on the actual production.

The representatives of foreign film buying concerns from all over Europe are now in New York quietly formulating a scheme for fixing the price of films for export. The absence of red fire in connection with their operations would lead one to believe they are in earnest.

There have been two counter decisions in the New York courts the past fortnight regarding the question of one's ability to protect a play or film title by copyright. A final decision must ultimately be arrived at even if the matter has to go to the United States Court of Appeals.

The picture manufacturers of the East have been meeting daily in New York with a view to arriving at some sort of an amicable working agreement which will eliminate the present cut-throat competition. William Randolph Hearst, who controls the International Film Service, Inc., is a prominent factor in the movement. "Wall Street" is reported ready to go in on a "safe and sane" movement.

"The Boomerang," at the Belasco, New York, now in its sixty-third successive week, and one of the most successful comedies Broadway has ever held, will leave about November 15, when it will be succeeded upon the Belasco stage by Frances Starr in her new play, "The Little Lady in Blue." "The Boomerang" goes to Chicago from New York.

Middle West theatre managers are complaining there is a dearth of dramatic attractions. A year ago the same managers did not want the drama, preferring pictures.

Private information from the Coast is to the effect the Pallas Picture Corportion, headed by Oliver Morosco, is to become part of the Famous Players-Lasky amalgamation.

One hundred thousand dollars has been subscribed by the trade unions of New York as a contingent fund to force unionism into all parts of the Greater New York theatres.

The British public has not taken kindly to the change of name by the author, Edward Knoblauch to "Knoblack." This production of a Knoblack play in London within the past week attested to this.

Will Rogers, onsce a cowboy in a village named after his father, is now earning $600 a week as a feature of Ziegfeld's Follies." Mr. Rogers holds a contract for 104 consecutive weeks for $750 weekly salary for the cowpuncher.

Vernon Castle has not been injured abroad, according to Gilbert Miller, son of Henry Miller, who returned to New York from London this week. Mr. Miller saw Mr. Castle just before sailing.

George M. Cohan may write the next play Louis Mann appears in. They have been very chummy of late and Cohan is reported having promised to write Mann a piece.

"The Typhoon," dramatic, will have music set to it by Nonna Mall, who intends appearing in the musicalized drama.

VAST AREA OF TEXAS.

Some of the Magnificent Distances In the Lone Star State.

Those who live in the east and north have little or no conception of the magnificence of distances in Texas. Here are just a few figures that will help to illustrate the vastness of area of the Lone Star State.

The distance from Houston to El Paso by the nearest rail route is 833 miles, which is only 114 miles less than the distance from New York to Chicago, 947 miles.

It is 820 miles by rail from San Antonio to El Paso. This is 114 miles greater than the distance from Chicago to Pittsburgh.

Turning Away Customers

If a store should turn away people, you would wonder—you would want to know the reason why. But this season buyers for stores have practically been turned away by manufacturers. In many cases, orders due us as well as other stores, were delayed.

The one explanation heard on every side was "goods are scarce; we hardly know how to fill our orders." Obviously, under such conditions, prices soared.

Clever, astute Buyers foresaw these conditions, and prepared for it long in advance. Owing to the careful advance preparations and the fact of our policy of absolute cash business, we now offer prices that seem incredible.

Our Fall Sale is really a splendid achievement. Our prices are lower than elsewhere, normally, and reductions from those prices in every department in the store necessarily mean great savings to our customers.

Never have we offered such great varieties in wearables for women: stunning frocks, unique blouses, suits truly distinctive, hats remarkably individual, and now this week special values in furs. Our stocks have been carefully selected to please all sorts of tastes.

Taken all in all, Hearn's is a mighty satisfactory place in which to shop; particularly now. For the convenience of our customers all purchases of household goods during this sale will be held until Nov. 1 for delivery, if desired.

MEMORY OF BAYARD TAYLOR.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 22.—The picturesque village of Kennett Square, in Chester county, has set aside the two days beginning today for the holding of a celebration in honor of the memory of her famous citizen, Bayard Taylor, one of America's foremost men of letters and also noted as a traveler and diplomatist. The celebration, in the form of an elaborate outdoor pageant, is to mark the fiftieth anniversary of the publication of the famous author's historical novel, "The Story of Kennett," the main characters of which were drawn from people who lived in or near the town, and many of whose descendants are still living there.

What Damp Means.

Learn to know what damp means, especially when used upon polished woodwork. Think it means wet and you will be reviling valuable information as "newspaper rubbish." Dip a cloth in hot water, wring it as hard as you can, then shake it in the air, and it should have about the right amount of moisture.—Exchange.

WHAT THE KIDNEYS DO.

Their Unceasing Work Keeps Us Strong and Healthy.

All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys filter the blood. They work night and day. When healthy they remove about 500 grains of impure matter daily, when unhealthy some part of this impure matter is left in the blood. This brings on many diseases and symptoms—which vary widely but may include pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot, dry skin, rheumatic pains, gout, gravel, disorders of the eyesight and hearing, dizziness, irregular heart, debility, drowsiness, dropsy, deposits in the urine, etc. But if you keep the filters right the danger is overcome. Doan's Kidney Pills have proven an effective kidney medicine.

Mrs. L. Bunn, 215 Grant avenue, Plainfield, says: "Heavy work caused my kidneys to become disordered and for a long time I had frequent attacks of lame back. When I stooped or overdid, I was in perfect misery. My kidneys were sometimes irregular in action. Doan's Kidney Pills soon gave me relief. When such attacks come on now, Doan's Kidney Pills stop them in short order."

Price 50c., at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Bunn had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Advt.

A Want Ad Is Often the First Link in a Chain of Consequences

It initiates something of far-reaching importance to you. You meet someone with whom you will do business for years—or you buy or sell property that changes the currents of your daily affairs. Many a want ad is of but transient importance of course. But others influence your life for years and years.

WED BENEATH FLORAL BOWER

Miss Carolyn Demler Becomes Bride of N. W. Lambert at Home Ceremony.

DR. STRONG OFFICIATES

Following Reception Couple Leave on Auto Trip to Great Lakes and Chicago—Will Reside in Borough on Their Return.

Miss Carolyn E. Demler, daughter of Mrs. H. E. Demler, of 68 Grove street, the borough, became the bride of Newton W. Lambert, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Lambert, of Netherwood, at a pretty autumn wedding solemnized Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church. The house was beautifully decorated for the event with autumn foliage, cut flowers, and potted plants. The marriage took place in the parlor under a bower of flowers.

The bride, who was given away by her cousin, William Demler, wore a gown of white satin trimmed with tulle and lace. Her tulle veil was caught up with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Elizabeth Smalley was the maid of honor and the Misses Helen Lambert and Anna Blume were the bridesmaids. The former wore a charming frock of pink silk trimmed with tulle and carried an arm bouquet of pale pink roses. The bridesmaids wore dresses of white net trimmed with satin ribbon and each carried bouquets of roses. Percy Lambert, a brother of the groom, acted as best man, while the Messrs. Richard Doerer, Charles Tice, Douglas Demler and Fred Doerer acted as ushers. As the bridal party entered the parlor, the wedding march was played by Miss Lillian Lambert, piano, and William Smith and Rudolph Brunner, violins.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the home. Seventy-five guests from this city, Brooklyn, New York, Elizabeth, Westfield, Fanwood, Liberty Corners, Summit and Murray Hill were present. Mr. and Mrs. Lambert were showered with congratulations and were the recipients of numerous handsome gits, among which were included cut glass, china, mahogany and several substantial checks. Later in the evening the couple left for a honeymoon trip to be spent along the Great Lakes and Chicago. The trip will be made by automobile. On their return they will reside at 68 Grove street, the borough.

Mr. Lambert is connected with his brother in the automobile garage business in Westfield. He is a partner in the firm of Lambert Brothers' Triangle Garage at that place. Both he and his bride are well known in the borough, where they hold the friendship of a large circle of friends.

WOOLSTON IS CONFIDENT OF GETTING NOMINATION

L. B. Woolston, of North Plainfield, who is a candidate for the shrievalty nomination in Somerset county, is winding up his campaign today prior to the primaries. He says that he has visited nearly all sections of the county and has been favorably received by the voters.

Mr. Woolston says he realizes that much of his support must come from North Plainfield and other sections at this end of the county, but he feels sure that he will get a large vote. He points to his long residence in the borough and his record in business and in offices he has held.

AGED MAN FOUND GUILTY IN COURT OF SHOPLIFTING

Frank Bryan, aged about 60 years of 682 West Front street, was arraigned in city court this morning on a charge of larceny, and after pleading guilty was remanded for sentence until tomorrow morning. Ernest Swingle, manager of a local store, was the complainant and said that Bryan had taken a number of articles from the store Saturday night and when arrested was inclined to be angry because he was bothered.

When shown the things he had taken in court this morning he admitted doing so, but seemed to take the affair as a joke. He was held under $100 bail but was unable to furnish it.

PROGRESSIVES CAN VOTE IN PRIMARY

Edward Leach Says They Have Right to Participate Tomorrow.

Progressive voters should not stay away from the primary polls tomorrow for, according to Edward A. Leach, of the Progressive State committee and secretary of the Union County Progressive committee, they are entitled to vote as members of the Republican party. Mr. Leach made the following statement:

"Practically every Progressive voter who chooses to do so can vote either in the Democratic or Republican box, as he may choose, at the primary tomorrow, for the following reasons. The Progressive party is legally dead. No ballot box will be provided for Progressives to vote in as the party failed to poll the requisite number of votes last year to entitle it to have a separate box. This was done deliberately as ninety per cent. of the members of the Progressive party wanted to be in a position to vote for Col. Roosevelt in the Republican primaries this year, should he be a candidate. In short they intended to affiliate with the Republican party. There was no Progressive ticket in this county last year, excepting the three Assembly candidates. The law provides that in case a voter is challenged at the primary, that he shall be allowed to vote upon taking the following oath: 'You do solemnly swear (or affirm) that you are a member of the..... political party (specifying the political party to which the affiant claims to belong); that at the last election for members of the General Assembly at which you voted you voted for a majority of the candidates of said party nominated for national, state and county offices, and that you intend to support the candidates of said party at the ensuing election." (Art. 349, Sec. 32, Election Laws of 1915, page 169).

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES FOR MRS. CHAS. HYDE

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie and Rev. Dr. C. A. Eaton Officiate at Obsequies.

The funeral of Mrs. Charles Hyde, whose death occurred last Thursday, following a long illness, was held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from her late home, 605 East Front street. The service was in charge of the Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church of New York city. The home was filled with relatives as well as many intimate friends of the deceased.

During the service, Dr. Eaton spoke of the Christian life of Mrs. Hyde and her zeal to do good and extended words of sympathy to the bereaved relatives. Beautiful floral pieces banked about the bier bore silent testimony of the esteem in which she was held by her many friends. Included in the profusion were many handsome set pieces.

During the service, Dr. Carl Dufft, of New York, sang several favorite hymns of the deceased. These were "Face to Face," "Peace, Perfect Peace" and "Crossing the Bar." The body was placed in the Hyde family mausoleum in Hillside cemetery.

BOY ADMITS THEFT OF TRICYCLE WHICH HE SOLD

His head scarcely reaching the top of the desk, thirteen-year-old William Hill stood beside Judge W. G. DeMeza in the city court this morning and stoutly denied that he had taken the tricycle of Frank Zatta, of 528 West Third street, but after a look at his mother, he suddenly decided that he had sold it for twenty cents. Then began a hunt by Patrolman Wicht that started from the boy's home at 656 South Second street. The vehicle had been resold several times until at last Dan Kiederling had purchased it for forty cents. After it had been restored to its owner young Hill was let go on a suspended sentence.

AWARD PRIZES AT KENYON GARDENS

Many Parents and Friends Attend the First Exhibition of Season's Work.

FINE CROPS ARE RAISED

James W. DeGraff, Donor of Prizes, Gives Brief Talk on the Object and Purpose of the Gardens—Praise for "Little Farmers."

The exhbilition of products and awarding of prizes to the children brought out about seventy-five parents and friends to the Kenyon Gardens Saturday afternoon. Many complimentary remarks were directed to the "little farmers" whose produce during the few months they were allowed to use the plots of ground, might be a source of delight to many an older agriculturist. At present there are 130 "miniature farms" in the gardens, each one measuring 8x12. During the summer beets, carrots, radishes, lettuce, beans, cabbage, corn and tomatoes have been cultivated with much success. A number of the feminine growers have raised splendid gardens of flowers.

During the afternoon, James De Graff, who personally donated the various prizes, awarded them in the following order:

For faithfulness, diligence and general helpfulness—Earle Stack, "Camern Adventures in the African Wilds," by Radcliffe Dugmore, Michael Doran, watch (Ingersoll; Sarah Kuntsman, aquarium with seven gold fish. Morris Treblisey, pearl handled knife with four blades.

The prize consisting of a volume, "How to Make a Vegetable Garden," by Neltje Blanchan, awarded to the boy who made the best business proposition of his garden was given to Marshall Acken. It was announced that he had sold $6.00 worth of produce from his plot.

Prizes for fine crops were awarded as follows: Ruth Nellis, clock; Wallace McKay, fountain pen; Frederick Galeen, tennis racquet. For stick-to-itiveness, Catherine Isaldo received a workbox, and Arthur Krymer, "Guide to the Trees East of the Rockies," by J. E. Rogers, and "The Bird Guide." Robert Fuller was awarded a flashlight with two batteries for accuracy and carefulness. For diligence, Emily Chamberlain received "The Flower Guide and the Butterfly Guide," by W. J. Holland; Mary Patton, "How to Attract the Birds," by Nellje Blanchan, and Mabel Corwin, "Child Rhymes," by James Whitecomb Riley. Prizes for community spirit were awarded as follows: Clara Titsworth, "A Year With the Birds," by A. E. Ball; Edith Johnson, a garden basket.

As he presented the prizes, Mr. DeGraff gave a brief talk on the object of the gardens and their usefulness in making better citizens for the future.

The Kenyon Gardens were first opened last May under the joint auspices of the Monday Afternoon Club and the Alumnae Association of the Plainfield Seminary as a memorial to the late Miss Elvira E. Kenyon. The object of the association is to keep alive the memory of her who lived for the general uplift of all with whom she came in contact and especially to educate the minds and bodies of the "little citizens." Miss C. Knutsen, of Philadelphia, has been in charge of the youthful gardeners this summer; and much of the success of the products and the ability way in which each pupil followed instructions was attributed to her. Miss Knutsen has had three years of experience in school garden work in Philadelphia.

POLISH FUGITIVE CAUGHT AT PASSAIC

Alleged He Stole $669 in This City Last June By Fake Game.

After evading the police for three monts a Polack, who is alleged to have taken $69 from Anne Gamosces, a servant employed on Seventh street, by a fake scheme last June, was caught today at Passaic and this afternoon Chief Kiely, of the local police, went to bring him back here. The girl was a frequent visitor at the home of Josephia Rokawska, an aged Polish woman of Cottage place, and while at the house one day was introduced to two young men. One of them made his attentions known with such effect that she believed he was to wed her.

After much coaxing she was persuaded to draw her life savings from the bank on the plea of her friend that he could double it for her so that they could be married. He showed her a machine he said would make ten dollar bills out of five dollar bills, but when she gave him the money to double he and his friends disappeared with it. The aged woman, who is a matchmaker among the young Polacks of the city, was arrested but for lack of evidence she was let go.

FRANK ARMS WEDS MISS FLORENCE FRAZEE

Rev. J. Tucker Lansdale Performs Ceremony at Home of Bride's Parents.

The marriage of Miss Florence Frazee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Parker Frazee, of Pumptown, Raritan township, and Frank Arms, also of Pumptown, but formerly of Newton, England, took place at the home of the bride's parents, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Tucker Lansdale, pastor of the Marconnier Reformed church.

The bride was attired in a blue silk taffeta gown trimmed with cream net lace and carried a large bouquet of white asters. The maid of honor, Miss Estelle A. Bomers, wore a frock of lavender silk and carried a bouquet of marigolds. John Arms, of Plainfield, a brother of the groom, was the best man. As the bridal party entered the parlor the Lohengrin wedding march was played by Miss Gertrude Melick. The marriage took place under an arch of autumnal foliage and cut flowers. The decorations in all the rooms mere attractive, yellow and white being the prevailing colors.

A reception followed the ceremony and was attended by forty guests from Plainfield, Newark, East Orange, New Brunswick, Metuchen, Stelton, Alton, Oak Tree and Pumptown. Mr. and Mrs. Arms left for a short honeymoon trip through New York State. On their return they will reside at 1263 Arlington avenue.

AUTOS COLLIDE AT PARK AVENUE AND SEVENTH ST.

Driving his car east on Seventh street yesterday afternoon, T. R. Lockwood, of 94 Danforth street, Jersey City, was crossing Park avenue when a car owned by G. C. R. Grandy, of 1006 Evergreen avenue, and driven by Roy McGee, of Willow avenue, ran into his machine.

McGee was being given a lesson by Grandy and was going north on Park avenue at the time. He did not stop in time to prevent a collision and as a result both cars were pretty badly damaged. The matter was fixed up between the autoists.

EDWARD FERGORSEN HEARS FROM HIS SON AT FRONT

Edward Forgerson, son of John Forgerson, of North Plainfield, is now in the Forty-ninth Battalion of the Canadian army and has been at the front in Europe for the past three months. In a letter to his father, Mr. Forgerson, who was formerly a resident of the borough, states that the weather is exceedingly warm in Europe. The cannon's roar can be heard above all else.

Mr. Forgerson left North Plainfield about six years ago to work a claim in Alberta, Canada. While in Alberta, the young man joined the army and departed for England. After a short stay there, Forgerson's battalion was shipped to France and thence directly to the battle front. The letter received by his father was mailed on July 30 and had been opened and thoroughly read by the British censors. Fortunately the young man is in good health at the present time.

He was indicted by the grand jury last April and several weeks ago was apprehended in Long Island. The court postponed the sentence until Friday, September 29.

For no-license—First ward, Frederick S. Cutter; Second ward, Charles E. Loizeaux; Third ward, G. Herbert Condict; Fourth Ward, Chauncey L. Hight.

John J. Carroll, who as chairman of the Republican City Commitee, is in charge of the candidacy of Messrs. Edgar, Hamilton and Blatz, is equally optimistic on the eve of the primary. He believes that all the men will receive good majorities as indorsements of their records in public office.

The no-license parade Saturday evening was a little late in getting started, but when it did move down Front street there were twenty-seven automobiles in line. They were led by a band, and from each of the machines red fire blazed to light the banners bearing such words as "Plainfield Is Going Dry," "We Are Going to Get on the Water Wagon," and other campaign phrases. Joseph W. Gavett, president of the Interborough Association, Secretary Estes, of the Y. M. C. A., A. M. Harris, and others, including minsters of Protestant churches, were in the front automobiles.

The four no-license candidates appeared at several churches for the evening service. Through the use of an automobile they were able to move rapidly and were presented to several congregations, making short addresses.

At the First M. E. church Sunday morning, M. S. Poulson, field secretary of the Anti-Saloon League, delivered a very strong address in the interest of local option and the anti-saloon movement. He showed how rapidly the movement was gaining ground and what the changed conditions were accomplishing throughout the country. He urged the necessity of sustained effort on the part of every Christian man and woman in pushing forward unitedly toward the overthrow of the drink traffic—which surely would be accomplished in the not distant future. Seventy thousand churches were back of the movement, he said. There were 14,000 dry towns and the tax rate had not been advance in a single one of them by reason of the closing of the saloons. Bank deposits had been universally increased, and business improvement in every town and city where the saloons had gone out of business, of which one in every 25 minutes had been closed during the past year. He drew a sharp distinction between the drink habit and the drink traffic. It was the latter which the efforts of the anti-saloon movement and all the co-operative forces were directed.

The drink traffic was morally wrong—economically unsound politically unsafe, he said.

Mr. Poulson emphasized these features very strongly by many telling illustrations and arguments.

Dr. J. S Zelie, in his sermon at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church said:

"Without waiting for the local option bill we will vote on this question by voting for men who will take this action and get it directly after all. It is a sufficient local issue and from this time it will be renewed each year. What the city receives from the liquor traffic is a bagatelle compared with what it loses and is not worth mentioning. If you ask what would be the consequence of this action, shall we not have to be on guard all the time against illiciting selling, etc., I say probably yes, and a community can not be better exercised than to be on guard all the time about something and the very vigilance that will be necessary will do as much good as anything else. I appeal here in this church today for the support of candidates who will support this action.

CHARACTERIZES AUTO LETTER AS SCURRILOUS

David T. Kenney Resents Attack on Joseph S. Frelinghuysen.

David T. Kenney, of North Plainfield, was among those who received a typewritten letter from J. H. Wood, chairman of the legislative committee of the Associated Automobile Clubs, of New Jersey, which included resolutions condemning Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, Republican candidate for United States Senator, for his alleged opposition to motorists of the State. Mr. Kenney in speaking of the letter wholly from a civic point of view commented today as follows:

"Regarding the circular letter purporting to be sent out under the auspices of the Associated Automobile Clubs, of New Jersey, and under the head of their legislative committee dated Newark, September 22, 1916, it looks scurrilous to me.

"Furthermore as an automobilist for the past fourteen years, and one interested in civic affairs, I believe that our automobile laws are too lax, and should be more exacting in the interest of human life, good roads and the taxpayer, whose roads are being worn out, whose crops and vegetation are being destroyed by willful lawbreaking automobilists, who seek to secure laws to curb themselves and protect their fellow man."

Mr. Frelinghuysen, in discussing the legislative committee letter, said today: "These attacks are unfair and untruthful and are made by certain men who seemingly have formulated this plan not only to secure political advantage for my opponent, but who also are seeking to revenge themselves on me because I would not yield to their demand for unreasonable legislation which I honestly believed was at that time against the people's interest."

U-BOATS HELPED ZEPPELIN RAID

Cleared North Sea of Small Boats to Hide Approach of Dirigibles.

TWO WERE DESTROYED

Crew of One Taken Prisoners—London Feels That Air Defenses Have Stood Test, and Its People Breathe Moore Freely Now.

London, Sept. 25.—With three of Germany's biggest and latest types of Zeppelins brought down on English soil within as many weeks, Britons today believed London is now more secure against air raids than ever before.

U-boats swept the North Sea of trawlers ahead of the Zeppelin raid. Twelve trawlers from Grimsby were sunk, the crews being allowed to take to their small boats. The raid among the fishermen is understood to have been made in order to prevent notice of the coming of the Zeppelins being flashed to shore.

Military officials declare that the air defences of London have stood the supreme test in repulsing the fleets of raiders which attacked the city on the night of Sept. 2, and again on Saturday night. In the first instance an aeroplane brought one of the super-Zeppelins tumbling to the ground in in flames. Latest reports indicate that anti-aircraft guns scored the hits on the two big airships which were destroyed on Saturday night. The latest estimate of casualties put the number of men, women and children killed in the raid at thirty. One hundred and ten were injured. Of this number twenty-eight were killed and ninety-nine injured in the metropolitan district of London.

MARTINE ATTACKS NUGENT AND MACHINE

Declares They Are Both Most Dangerous Things to Civil Liberty.

"Nugent and his Essex county machine the most dangerous things to civil liberty in America today and they should be sunk to the depths of the bottomless pit."

United States Senator James E. Martine, campaigning for renomination Saturday night told an audience of 150 men at the Eagles' Hall, Newark, that President Wilson made this statement four years ago.

"If that was true four years ago, why isn't it true today?" continued Martine. "Yet this man and this machine are the backers of my opponent, who claims to have the support of the administration.

"The true place for America is to be neutral," declared Mr. Martine, "but I can't be neutral to you if I furnish your enemy with a bludgeon. I say, twice have I voted 'aye' on an embargo on arms and ammunition to either belligerent." His remarks were roundly applauded.

John Larkin Hughes, a local lawyer, and Stephen Dunleavy, of New York, both spoke for Martine. Reviewing his record and emphasizing his plea for Roger Casement, they declared any Irishman who failed to vote for him would be an ingrate. Mr. Dunleavy said "Somebody says Martine should be defeated because he voted against the repeal of the Panama free tolls and refused to listen to the dictates of the White House. Well, so did Oscar Underwood and so did Champ Clark. Have you heard anyone say they should not be reelected?"

Senator Martine reviewed all the important leigislation passed by Congress, and told how it would benefit the country. He told how he had voted for the Panama free tolls bill, and had heard the President declare in favor of the Democratic plank on that subject twenty times before his election. "When he came before Congress and asked the repeal of that bill without giving a reason I felt as though I had been hit by a sandbag."

"This is Jim Martine's sin and, by the eternal gods, I'm proud of it. If I'm retired I have a farm and can raise enough potatoes to live without politics.

"I told the President I wanted to be with him heart and soul, not merely with words, but I couldn't be with him on the tolls issue. If it were to be voted on today the free tolls bill would never be repealed."

FREE PICTURES TO INSTRUCT FARMERS

Comprehensive displays of the lumber industry of America will be a feature of the Trenton Fair, which will be held from Sept. 25 to 29. The National Lumber Manufacturers' association has completed plans for the display, which will be of a more general type than any lumber exhibit ever placed together, it is announced. Not the least interesting will be a complete model of a series of farm buildings, to include barn, swine houses, poultry houses, silo, implement shed.

One of the unique phases of the display will be a screen of panels showing a block of each commercial wood in the United States. The woods will be shown in the rough and in finished shape.

Panels will be exhibited, also giving the literature of all the lumber manufacturing associations affiliated with the national organization.

A moving picture device, working automatically, will be one of the features of the display, each slide being shown for a second, there being scores of different views. The slides will include models of farm buildings, showing interiors and complete farms, and many will give statistics and hints on how to use wood best.

The farmers who attend this educational feature will be urged to use wood only where it is best and not in places where other materials are by nature better fitted for the purpose.

Small wooden utensils known as kitchen tongs will be given away to the farmers' wives as souvenirs of the exhibit.

Scotch Plains, Fanwood

An eleventh-hour development promises to cause dissention at the polls in Fanwood tomorrow that has not occurred before in the thirty odd years the borough has been separated from the township. There are two places in the Council to fill, this year and up until the last day for filing petitions there were but two filed, one by Fred Creesy for re-election and one by Luke Pandick, who is a candidate for the seat occupied by Offley Brown.

After a meeting of fifteen or twenty borough voters a few nights ago, they decided to support Edward Meeker for Mr. Creesy's place in the Council and Mr. Brown for re-election. Brown was away at the time the filing of petitions was up and as no one circulated one for him there was none filed. Pasters with the names of the two new candidates have been printed and distributed to put on the ballots tomorrow. Tonight for the first time Fanwood's politicans are busy electioneering and one of the biggest votes ever polled in Fanwood should result tomorrow with every indication that the fight will be a close one.

We submit these styles with every confidence that they will have your instant approval.

A simple examination of the various groups of this highly interesting exhibit will amply inform you regarding what must be worn this Fall for proper dressing.

WHY RUNYON IS FOR EDGE.

To the Editor of the Daily Press:—In the editorial columns of the Press for September 19 appeared a short article in which Senator Ackerman and I were named, and in which we were somewhat taken to task for having indorsed Walter Edge for Governor.

Ill would it become me to take up the cudgels in behalf of Senator Ackerman, whose word we all know is, and always has been, his bond, or to argue for him further than to say that no man of my acquaintance is more punctilious or cautious than he in lending himself to any cause, and the appearance of his name in furtherance of the Edge candidacy is therefore ample proof to me that Senator Ackerman absolutely believes in the truth of every representation to which he has subscribed.

My own endorsement of Senator Edge represents my firm conviction that he has within him those qualities which, if he be nominated and elected Governor of New Jersey, will enable him to give to the people of this State a splendid administration of its affairs.

I have known him but two years, and yet in that time I have been brought into close and constant conact with him; have learned to respect his judgment and sagacity; have followed his course step by step as he has taken the lead in enacting into laws the so-called economy and efficiency bills, co-ordinating many State departments and doing away with numerous useless commissions; the budget bill, which will give the people at large, as well as the legislators themselves, a much clearer conception of the State's needs, and enable the legislature to deal more intelligently and effectively with the question of appropriations than has ever been the case heretofore under the old system, when the momentous questionof spending the State's money has perforce been delayed until the closing hours of the session, because the appropriation committee, even with herculean effort, has not sooner been able to compile and submit its data; and the State purchasing agent bill, which will enable the State to purchase its two million dollars worth of annual supplies in bulk, and at an estimated saving of ten per cent. per year.

These bills are Senator Edge's own creations in very large measure—builded by him from their inception—not simply handed him by others for introduction, as is so often the case with proposed legislative enactments.

His very prominent part in the creation of the workmen's compensation act, a part which carried him to Europe for the collection of statistics and data, is also worthy of mention, as today New Jersey has a statute of magnificent scope and proportions, of inestimable value to employer and employe alike, and which has served as a model for like statutes in many other States.

I recite these accomplishments, both because the acknowledgment of them is Walter Edge's just due, and in order that I may not seem to have given an endorsement without substantial reasons behind it.

If the conquests of the past are any guarantee of future efficiency, then Senator Edge's accomplishments in his own business life furnish that warrant.

He was born poor, his father having been employed in a very minor capacity on the railroad. He began his business career as a newsboy; became a reporter and an editor before he was twenty-one years of age, and is now owner and proprietor of a newspaper in Atlantic county, where once has was but an apprentice. And in his early years he also became the owner of a small and well-nigh defunct advertising agenyc, which, under his guidance and management, has grown into a great international concern, with sub-agencies in great numbers, both here and abroad. And all this before he is forty-five years of age.

Senator Edge promises a strict and square business administration; a handling of the people's business as if it were his own, and to my mind, his election as Governor would mean placing the State in notably successful hands.

It has been suggested that the past internal affairs of Atlantic could leave Senator Edge in no enviable light. Of this situation I cannot speak from my own direct and personal knowledge.

This much I do know, however. Lloyd Thompson, absolutely irreproachable, and former Assemblyman from this county, the sole Republican member of a Democratic investigating committee appointed some years ago to delve into and expose the affairs of Atlantic county, has proclaimed in public speech of late that Walter Edge came through the ordeal absolutely unscathed and without blemish. And on account of his prominence in Republican circles, he would naturally have been attacked unmercifully had he been vulnerable.

And I know further that at a special election held this past spring in Atlantic City, Walter Edge's personal influence and the influence of his newspapers was devoted without stint to the overthrow of the crowd headed by the notorious Mayor Riddle—an undertaking which was successful, and the result has embittered Mr. Riddle to such an extent that he is using every resource at his command to defeat Walter Edge in this campaign, and to further the fortunes of another candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

If Grover Cleveland was "loved for the enemies he had made," it would seem in this particular instance that Walter Edge is entitled to a like distinction.

Perhaps the calibre of Mr. Riddle is not well known in this part of the State. Let me but quote of his publicly uttered epigrams, and leave the reader of these lines to his own conclusions.

"Some of the best things I ever did were done when I had a couple of high-balls under my belt. The ideal life is made up of 50 per cent. home, 25 per cent. good music and 25 per cent. booze."

"My most successful year was 1896, and I was 'soused' most of that year."

These are the ebullient sentiments of the man whom Walter Edge has helped to overthrow, and who is the present leader of the Atlantic county opposition to him.

Even without the long list of successful accomplishments to his credit, the fact that Senator Edge, for decency's sake, and in the interest of a wholesale municipal housecleaning, has incurred such an enemy, would have largely tempted me to espouse his cause.

The foregoing constitute my reasons for having endorsed Walter Edge for Governor. To me they seem justifiable, and I therefore submit them without apology.

Yours very truly,
WM. N. RUNYON.

Funny Errors In Advertisements.

Laughable errors in illustrated advertisements are often apparent to the thinking man. It makes one wonder why the designers of the ads. don't get their information first hand from some one who really knows. Accuracy, even in advertisements, has the same attraction it has anywhere else.

For instance, when the seltzer bottle in an electrical sign on Broadway is filling the empty glass the level descends as fast in the bottle as it rises in the glass, yet the bottle is five times as big. It couldn't possibly be, according to physics.

Still worse is a picture of a piano with a pair of hands striking certain keys. Fortunate it is indeed that that piano can't sound, for the particular keys struck would be a jangling discord. Why couldn't the artist have gone to a musician for a pleasing chord among the infinite offerings of music?—Wall Street Journal.

Odd Numbers.

A hen is always given an odd number of eggs to be hatched. Why? There is no reason at all except superstition.

Salutes from warships, forts, etc., are always given in odd numbers, yet no valid reason can be adduced. It is a remnant of the old "odd numbers are lucky" superstition.

Vergil records all sorts of charms and spells practiced round odd numbers—never even ones. Seven is the favorite Biblical number, and old divines taught that it held a mystical perfection. It is an odd number.

Falstaff, in the "Merry Wives," is entrapped for the third time. He himself said, "They say there is a divinity in odd numbers," because of the old belief in odd numbers.

Physicians of other days always insisted that "bleedings" should be in odd numbers—one, three, five, etc., and never an even one.—London Mail.

The "Ear of Dionysius."

A cunningly constructed prison cavern, consisting of a large chamber connected with one of smaller dimensions situated near Syracuse, Italy, has gone into legendary history with the title of the "Ear of Dionysius."

The smaller chamber was unknown to the prisoners kept in this underground dungeon, and the tyrant by whose name it is known had a habit of secreting himself there to listen to the conversation of the convicts, who were mostly political offenders.

An ingenious device constructed at the smaller end of the larger chamber transmitted the sounds through the partition, thus enabling the suspicious ruler to hear even the whispered conversations of his "suspects."

Scotsmen Are French Citizens.

Every Scotsman is a French citizen, with all the rights and privileges of such, if he chooses to claim them. In other words, every Scotsman born in Scotland is also a Frenchman and is thus possessed of two nationalities, surely a unique position.

After his coronation at Rheims in 1429 Charles VII. promulgated a decree that, in return for the assistance rendered by the Scottish soldiers to Joan of Arc, who defeated the English and made his coronation possible, Scotsmen were for all time to be considered free citizens of France.—London Answers.

Business Instinct.

Mary's mother found her busily engaged in cutting up potatoes. "Why, Mary," said the astonished mother, "what are you doing that for?"

Pausing a moment in her task, Mary looked up and replied, "I heard the man over at the store say that there was money in potatoes this year, mamma, and I was just looking for some."—New York Times.

—When discontent reaches a certain point, the furnished room advertisements become very interesting to some people.

Newest Paris Creations On Exhibition at Wanamaker's

A wonderful collection of tailored afternoon and evening costumes and wraps will be shown in the Wanamaker Fashion Salons by M. de Giafferri during the coming week. Monsieur de Giafferri, of Paris, has come to America as a soldier to fight the battle of bringing attention to the younger firms who will be the couturiers of to-morrow. He represents the Chambre de Syndicate, and is the author of numerous works on the evolution of feminine costumes and the industries of art from the Middle Ages to the Second Empire.

To look at the materials, trimmings and silhouette of to-day would make one believe that a second Renaissance period is upon us. The term Renaissance signifies rebirth. It is applied to the revival and adoption of antique art and civilization, and is divided into three periods—the Early Renaissance, corresponding with the 15th Century, an age of naturalism; the High Renaissance, 1500-1550, and the Late Renaissance, 1550-1600, the age of decline.

How beautiful the attire of milady for every occasion! She may select the rich moleskin coat with the broad collar and huge cuffs, the three-quarter length coat with the smart little cape trimmed with ermine, or she may choose to wear a luxurious velvet reversible wrap over her gown of rich tissue, shimmering silver-cloth or gorgeous brocade of ancient design. For the street dress and afternoon gown satin is to be the mode this autumn, notwithstanding the fact that velvets and serges are used in the pretty, straight-lined frock so becoming to the girlish figure. The one-piece dress with a smart coat to match is as popular as the two-piece suit.

The styles are so varied that be milady short and plump, of tall and stately, she will find it but a small task to choose therefrom without losing her distinct individuality.

TOMMY APGAR HAS HIS SWEET REVENGE

Dunellen With Dick Schott Hurling Treats Westfield to Defeat.

Dunellen defeated Westfield Saturday on Maurer Oval by the score of 5 to 2. In the very first inning three Dunellenites crossed the plate. Beginning the inning Gunzelman sent a line drive into the general direction of left field, but Davies made a leaping one-hand catch. Withering hit a long fly to Marenghi and then the fireworks started. Trust singled over third and immediately stole second, whence he scored when Eddie Bergen singled to centre. Wilson sent a long fly to George Young in Wright and George dropped the pill. Bergen, by some of his fast running scored all the way from first, while Wilson reached third on the throw home to catch Bergen. He scored when Dixon hit one through Davies. Garretson singled, and when Emery laced one to centre for a bag, Dixon was thrown out at the plate trying to score from second.

In the third inning Westfield scored their only run. Dixon threw out Ortleib at first as a starter, Gilmartin walked on four wide ones and Greene was given a life when Witherington fumbled his grounder. Young walked, filling the bases. Hunt fouled out to Bergen, then Douglas hit one through Dixon at short, sending Gilmartin and Greene across the plate. Davies walked, but Crittenden "pop-flied" out to Dixon. A great catch of Trust's drive by Marenghi featured the game.

The score:

CONFESSIONS OF A BRITISH CENSOR

Thoughts of Men at the Front Pass Under His Eye.

WOUNDED DO NOT COMPLAIN

Shyness at Thought of Reading Private Correspondence of Others Quickly Overcome—Letters Covered With Cross Marks For Kisses—Lovers Are Ardent; Husbands Cautious.

[By a member of the British censoring staff.]

A Certain Postal Station in an Allied Country.—One of the oddest things about censoring is the easy way in which one takes to reading other people's private correspondence. Shades of the past, when one averted an honorable eye from the letter lying half open on a friend's (or even an enemy's) desk! And here I sit, because it is wartime, before a large table covered with serried rows of letters, with instructions to open them all and search diligently therein for, first, information likely to be useful to the enemy; second, anything likely to discourage recruiting, and, third, false information likely to alarm or depress a credulous public.

They Do Not Complain.

The little room in which we sit is a cell in the large hive of a hospital in the war zone, and the writers of these letters are either sick or wounded, and their first thought is to write of their safety and welfare. This does not take the form of long descriptions of illness or wounds. The great majority of men linger long and lovingly over the hospital menu, with its four meals a day, and make a grateful reference to the kindness of doctors and nurses.

Among many Spartans one, however, stands out who wrote that, barring pneumonia and a coming "opperishon" on his "thum," he feels well in himself. Very little comment is made on the country and surroundings, though the writers are probably out of England for the first time.

Cross Marks For Kisses.

There are several things which make reading these letters easier than at first seems possible, when one is dismayed by the sight of hundreds of pencil scrawled pages. To begin with, few letters are very long, with the exception of a percentage of rambling love letters, and the formula of beginning and end takes up a certain amount of space. "I write these few lines, hoping to find you in the best of health As I am glad to say I am in the pink. (The fact of being in hospital is not allowed to interfere with purity of style.) Right back soon. From your loving soldier husband to my dearest loving wife and darling children," or "Fondest love from your ever loving," is the usual beginning and end, with a suitable arrangement of crosses for kisses. Crosses occur in all letters except business ones and are bestowed on men friends and also on young ladies to whom the writer signs himself "Yours truly."

Ardent Lovers; Cautious Husbands.

As for love letters, you may think that knowing they are to be read by the censor reduces them to letters unworthy of the name, missives of an early Victorian propriety. The married man writing a devoted, affectionate letter to his wife upon family matters is far more disturbed at the idea of the censoring to follow than the ardent lover who lavishes kisses and endearments brazenly throughout the letter. He even writes S. W. A. K. (sealed with a kiss) across the open flap of the envelope, cheerfully unconscious that the censor, who does not include kisses in his war work, performs the office with some mechanical device, or, simpler still, a damp rag. He occasionally shakes one's faith by writing identical letters to two or more girls.

Let us hope that the divergence in style makes less impression on the young lady than it does on us. Another young gentleman whom we only knew as Albert wrote to his sister that he could not break off with Bella, as it woud break her heart. After reviewing the situation critically he decides that there is nothing to be done and that they must remain engaged. "God, how she loves me!" he concludes quite simply. We turn with relief from him to a Maori writting to a fellow warrior. "God be with us till we meet again," he says, "but look out for them dam Turkey."

HUSBAND, 100, ACCUSES WIFE

She's Ninety, and They Had Lived Peacefully For Sixty Years.

After sixty years of domestic peace John Lubetsky of East Meadow, N. Y., and his wife, who is ninety, have quarreled violently, so violently that the aged John had his wife arrested.

"She grabbed a knife and dug it into my wrist, your honor," he protested to Justice Walter L. Jones of Hempstead, to whom he applied for a warrant.

The justice regarded the centenarian with amazement. He had Mrs. Lubetsky brought to court and, learning that some triviality had led to the quarrel, he sought to patch it up. But the husband remained obdurate, and the wife demanded a jury trial. The case was adjourned until Oct. 27.

A Willing Witness.

"Did his actions have an air of verisimilitude?" the lawyer asked the witness.

"What was that, sir?"

"I say, did his conduct wear an air of verisimilitude?"

"Oh!" replied the witness. "Sure! He was versimilitudin' all round the place."—Saturday Evening Post.

FOWLER OR CAPSTICK

A Deadly Parallel. Election Figures Do Not Lie.

Fowler a Vote Getter

In 1908, the last time Mr. Fowler was a candidate, he carried Morris County by a majority of 3,796 and was stronger than the Assembly vote by 178.

In 1908, Mr. Fowler's majority vote in Union County over the Democratic candidate was 6,093 and the Assembly majority was only sixty-one votes greater than his.

In 1908, Mr. Fowler's majority in Morris and Union Counties was 9,889 and he was stronger than the Assembly tickets by 117.

Capstick a Vote Loser

Two years ago, Mr. Capstick carried Morris, his own County, by a majority of only 171 over his Democratic opponent; but the average Assembly majority vote was 1,697.

In other words, he was weaker than the Assembly vote of Morris County by 1,526.

Two years ago, Mr. Capstick's majority in Union County was only 1,056. The average Assembly majoriyt vote of Union County was 3,349.

In other words, Mr. Capstick was weaker than the Assembly vote in Union County by 2,293.

If Mr. Capstick had been as strong as the Assembly tickets in Morris and Union Counties, his majority would have been 5,046.

But his majority was only 1,227.

He was weaker than the Assembly tickets in the two Counties by 3,819.

VOTE FOR FOWLER FOR CONGRESS

BECAUSE: This is the most important election since the Civil War.

BECAUSE: It is just as important to have a trained legislator in Congress at such a critical time as to have a man of military training lead an army into battle.

BECAUSE: Of Mr. Fowler's ability, equipment, long experience and conspicuous services during the sixteen years he was a member of Congress.

BECAUSE: He is a recognized authority upon the Tariff, the Merchant Marine and Banking, the three most important questions to receive attention at the coming session of Congress.

If this were your own private business would you not vote for Mr. Fowler? Then this should be the test of your honor as a man, your party loyalty and your patriotism.

Do your duty as a citizen, that's all.

SOME OF AMERICA'S MOST FAMOUS MEN ASK AID FOR DEFENDERS OF VERDUN

Prominent Bankers, Diplomatist and Educator Appeal for Funds in the Name of the Suffering Soldiers of France...

The National Allied Relief Committee, co-operating with the War Relief Clearing House for France and her Allies, is sending out what perhaps will be the most broadcast appeal yet issued on behalf of the war sufferers of Europe.

This appeal is for funds for the relief of the soldiers of France wounded in the fighting around Verdun.

What lends additional interest to this appeal is the fact that it is signed by six of the most prominent men in America. Those who signed it are: August Belmont of the banking firm bearing his name; Hon. Jos. H. Choate, Ex-Ambassador to England; Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University; A. Barton Hepburn, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Chase National Bank; Edwin G. Merrill, President of the Union Trust Company, and Henry L. Higginson of the banking firm of Lee, Higginson & Company, Boston.

It is anticipated that the contributions received from this wide-spread appeal will be devoted also to relief work among a large number of wounded resulting from the greatly increased activities of the contending armies.

The appeal is reproduced herewith.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN A TELEPHONE EXCHANGE

The experience of an uninitiated layman who took the trouble to find out what the telephone operator is really doing in the process of putting through his connection, by visiting a central office, and seeing for himself, is described in The Telephone Review, N. Y. The story is interesting in the extreme and reveals a fund of information which is useful in making the most of our telephones.

"The layman" says:

We knew nothing of the conditions existing in the telephone exchanges with which we came in daily contact.

We all had a somewhat vague idea of a number of frivolous young girls seated before a mysterious contrivance known as a switchboard, into which, when the spirit moved them, they would occasionally insert some equally mysterious plugs.

Between these operations they chewed gum, read novels, talked scandal and dress. Also they were furnished pad and pencil with which they would mark down calls against telephone subscribers, and if it sometimes seemed that a mistake had been made they would (perhaps) erase or add one or two of these marks.

There seemed to be much difference of opinion among us regarding the question of wrong numbers and the possibility of their resulting in an erroneous charge against the subscriber.

We, therefore, determined to settle all disputes by a visit to one of the telephone company's central offices and by actually "seeing the wheels go round."

Upon our arrival at the central office we were immediately impressed by the air of quiet order and the subdued but intense activity in the place. Surprise followed surprise in rapid succession. It was big, light, airy and perfectly adapted for the work to be done there. We had expected it to be small, poky, stuffy and unsanitary. And where were the frivolous, gum-chewing, novel-reading girls? Not here, certainly.

These girls were healthy looking, intelligent workers, and they were all working. These facts were apparent at the first glance. And now we became conscious of the fact that the place was not quiet, but that a steady, subdued hum, like that of some high-speed machine, pervaded the whole atmosphere. As we followed our guide to a position behind the operator at the near end of the great switchboard, we discovered that the hum as of a great machine was made up of a conglomeration of words as follows: "Chelsea 7400 is busy"; "6148 does not answer"; "Busy"; "I am ringing them for you," etc. Each of these brief remarks was punctuated by a nimble hand inserting or withdrawing a plug, pressing a button or lifting a key, and by the twinkling flashes of the thousands of tiny electric light signals on the board.

Mechanism of a Switchboard.

We were shown that, by an ingenious arrangement of the numbered sockets in the switchboard, the operators were enabled to find the numbers required rapidly and accurately. We were shown how the connection is completed and how the completed call is registered by machine, only upon the operator's receiving the unmistakable signal that both the calling and called party have finished talking and replaced their receivers.

At intervals along the board were the supervisors—the experts, counselling, instructing, relieving and watching, always watching. Each one wearing a portable operating set, capable of instant connection at any position, where her advice or assistance on an unusual call might be needed.

Many times had we listened with more or less skepticism while the telephone company's representative had explained these things. Now we could see that what he had stated was indeed the case.

We were shown that each individual line was furnished with its own electrically operated and entirely separate call register, and no call could be recorded on that register unless that particular line was actually in use. This was a fixed mechanical condition, which must be complied with before registration was possible. And as we saw this demonstration we recalled how often we had decided that some one else's calls were being charged to our line!

We next visited the chief operator, who is in constant touch with every part of the great switchboard under her care. We found her a cool, level-headed young woman.

We visited the alert and efficient wire chief, the man who watches over this great mass of intricate wiring; we were shown the great "distributing frames" whereon the thousands upon thousands of wires are separated, secured and marked for identification after passing into the building in the form of cables containing from 50 to 900 pairs of wires.

Our tour of inspection was over. We had seen it all. Much more than we had expected to see or imagined there was to see. Also we had been delightfully entertained and instructed. We realized that our former judgment had been wrong, as is nearly always the case when one is guided by absolute ignorance or merely superficial knowledge and hasty conclusions.

A Small Point.

HIS GREATEST GAME.

The Climax of Mathewson's Fame as a Baseball Pitcher.

We always have believed that the greatest game that Mathewson ever pitched was the eighth and deciding contest between Boston and New York in the world's series of 1912. He should have shut the Red Sox out in that battle, but his team faltered and broke behind him, and Boston finally won in ten innings by a score of 3 to 2.

Matty had been the unanimous choice of his comrades. He felt that it might be the last world's series game he ever would pitch, and he put into his work all the cunning and skill that the years had given him. In those ten innings he gave everything he had, and it was a marvelous exhibition of twirling.

When he entered the box his step was springy and his head held high. He looked almost boyish. When he left the mound after the game it was with bent head and lagging feet, but the Boston crowd stood up in the stands and cheered, not their team, which had just won the world's championship, but the defeated Mathewson.

Hard headed ball players had tears on their cheeks as they ran to Matty to throw their arms across his shoulders, and McGraw hurried across to meet him from the bench, saying: "It wasn't your fault, Matty. You pitched the greatest game I ever saw."—New York World.

FREE FROM BEETLES.

Spitzbergen Is the Only Land In the World Without Them.

One of the most amazing things in natural history is the way in which beetles have triumphed in the struggle for existence, says the Popular Science Monthly. Of all creatures they are by far the most numerous, no fewer than 150,000 distinct species having been identified—three times the number of backboned animals.

Beetles are found practically everywhere—in the frost bound tracts of Iceland and in the hot desert sands of Africa, on the highest mountains, under the ground and as fossil in the deepest strata, on land and in water, on plants, among stones and in wood and earth and even in the very craters of volcanoes.

But there is one place where no beetle has yet been found. It is the inhospitable land of Spitzbergen, to the north of Russia. Here are found the mammals, birds, fish, mollusks, crustaceans, a few insects of varied species and many spiders, but not a single beetle.

While other insects have succeeded in some way in migrating from the mainland, the beetles have apparently been unable to cross the wide, icy waters.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1916.

EDGE'S OPEN SUNDAY RECORD.

Colonel Austen Colgate's nomination by the Republicans at the primary election tomorrow will give that party the only chance to win the New Jersey Governorship this year. The nomination of his opponent, Walter E. Edge, will mean a divided party at the polls, and assure the election of H. Otto Wittpenn by the Democrats in November. Edge's record on the open Sunday question and the attitude he has adopted in Atlantic county on the matter of excise law enforcement will mean that any man who votes for him favors lax law enforcement and the elevation to office of a man who advocates the letting down of the bars for the liquor traffic.

The only reason that Edge's record has not been thoroughly aired is because Colonel Colgate has asked those campaigning for him not to bring this record into the campaign. The Democrats are in full possession of the facts, however, and that they will tell all about them after the primary, in case Edge is nominated, is a foregone conclusion. He is the man who now has the support of the machine organization in the Republican party in Union and other counties.

The Mount Holly Mirror thus describes Mr. Edge's record on the subject of advancing Sunday liquor selling:

"During the session of 1910 Walter E. Edge, then Assemblyman and House whip on the Republican side, introduced Assembly Bill, No. 82, which bore his name. This measure sought to amend Section 20 of the act under which Atlantic City is now chartered, and proposed to open that resort to the sale of liquor on Sunday by hotels, boarding houses and in places where there were accommodations for the public, the proviso being that liquor must be accompanied by a 'meal.' What constituted a 'meal' was not defined in the bill and the act would have opened the way for selling liquor on Sunday, by placing on the tables the traditional sandwich. Edge being chairman of the judiciary committee, reported the bill out but could not get it on the House calendar, and it died.

"In 1912 Senator Edge fathered the measure of his colleague, Assemblyman Emerson Richards, who is now running for Senator in Atlantic county. This bill was known as House Bill, No. 570, and was another attempt to amend Section 20 of the Atlantic City charter so as to permit the sale of liquor on Sunday. Richards attempted to 'kiss the bill through the Legislature' by limiting the open sale of liquor on Sunday to hotels and large boarding houses. He got this bill through the House and Edge worked indefatigably for it in the Senate. Edge managed to have it reported out of committee because Senators Pierce, Read and Silzer stood committed to the principle that every bill possible should have a hearing on the open floor. On third reading and final passage the Open Sunday bill, for which Senator Edge stood sponsor, received two votes in the affirmative, those of Mr. Edge and Senator Johnson, a Democrat, of Bergen. There were fourteen votes against the bill, including that of the late Senator Griffith W. Lewis, then representing Burlington county.

"The Democratic campaign managers are fully conversant with these and other interesting chapters in Senator Edge's political and legislative record and on more than one occasion they have confided their intention of shooting the Edge candidacy 'full of holes' with the ammunition which they have in storage, hoping that the Republicans will nominate him for Governor. Knowing this fatal weakness in the Atlantic county candidate's political armor it is scarcely conceivable that the Republicans of New Jersey will be so short-sighted as to name Senator Edge, a man for whom the Democrats are secretly working, knowing that he would be far easier to defeat than would Senator Austen Colgate, whom the prospective Democratic candidate respects and confessedly fears."

Contrasted to this is Colonel Colgate's personal record of standing for law enforcement in all things, aiding every worthy cause, and leading in all civic movements at his home city for the moral uplift of the community. Always an independent in politics he joined Everett Colby, when the "new idea" faction was started years ago in the Republican party, and during that time he played a prominent part in smashing the notorious machine which was headed by Major Carl Lentz. He was elected to the Assembly with others, who afterward became identified with the Progressive party. It is sincerely to be hoped that the thinking Republicans, especially those who are taking such an active part in the local prohibition fight, will cast their ballots tomorrow for Colgate. If they cannot vote for him, George L. Record remains. But if they believe in law enforcement, the maintenance of a quiet Sunday, and the election of a man who has not stood for open Sunday legislation they cannot vote for Edge.

PROGRESS IN PLAINFIELD.

From the Elizabeth Evening Journal.

There is, perhaps, no other city of its size in the country that can boast of higher moral life and larger civic virtue than Plainfield in this county. It has a population, according to the census figures of 1910, of 20,550, which since then has been considerably augmented. The population of Plainfield is made up largely of solid and substantial citizens. It does not have many floaters in the number.

If we have been correctly informed, there are only eight saloon licenses issued in that community. Furthermore, there is a fight on to eliminate all saloons, that will be decided by the coming election. It is proposed to elect members of Council who are opposed to licensing the saloons. The prohibitionists, it is said, have a fair chance to win.

Plainfield is noted for its support of churches and especially noted for its support of educational and charitable and benevolent institutions. It has to its credit, for instance, a new High School building that would be a credit to a much larger city.

An effort is being made to raise $250,000 wherewith to construct and equip a new Young Men's Christian Association building. The incomparable campaign manager, J. A. MacArt, who did such effective work in Elizabeth and other communities of this section, will shoulder the task. Knowing him and knowing Plainfield, it is quite certain that the undertaking will be successful.

• • • • • • •

There is little need to urge Plainfield Repub... to vote for Joseph S. Frelinghuysen for United States Senator at the primary tomorrow. Judging from the conversation of the men on the street Frelinghuysen will carry this section of the State by 10 to 1 over Franklin Murphy, the Essex county standpatter. And the gratifying part of it all is that similar reports come from all over the State, except in Essex county, where the Murphy machine is well organized, and he will probably get a majority. The vote for Frelinghuysen everywhere else in the State will easily offset this, if political prophets are to be believed. It is significant that in Union county every Republican leader is for Frelinghuysen, except Hamilton Kean, who has heretofore been able to lead the organization. These men see the handwriting on the wall, and they want to be on the bandwagon when it comes to Federal patronage, in case a Republican president is elected.

They gather every pleasant night,
When other people want to snooze,
And then discuss with all their might
The latest things in hats and shoes.
They criticise the hobble gown
That's being worn by Mrs. Jones,
And gossip about Mrs. Brown,
And her new hat in piercing tones.
They talk of novels that they've read
And tell of rumors and divorce;
They dish up all their married friends
They couldn't leave out one, of course.
They review all that has occurred
Since last they met and judgment passed.
And tell with horror all they've heard
About the widows, sod and grass.
They tell what every one has had
For dinner every day that week.
There's not a fashion or a fad,
Of which they e'er forget to speak.
They tell what happened long ago
And what will happen ages hence,
Until it sometimes seems as though
They can talk everything but sense.

The Hickeyville Clarion

A woman may not be able to keep a secret, but a man can. The other day Ren Binks bought a hoss off'n Elihu Bibbins and found out afterwards that the hoss was blind in one eye. He was hoppin' mad and went back to Elihu and said: "Looky here, Elihu, you blamed old thief, you didn't tell me this hoss was blind in one eye when you sold him to me." Elihu said: "Of course I didn't." Ren said: "Why do you say 'of course' you didn't?" "Well," answered Elihu, "it was this way. The feller that sold the hoss to me didn't say anything about it, either, and I supposed of course it was a secret."

Plainfield Theatre.

Stone and Pillard in the "Rag Doll in Ragland," Tonight at Plainfield Theatre.

In keeping with the policy of Joe Hurtig to always produce something new and to always go one better, the noted manager this season introduces Stone and Pillard in "The Rag Doll in Ragland," which from the production point as well as from every other angle proved to be the biggest sensation ever offered to burlesque patrons.

While "The Rag Doll in Ragland" is identical with a fairy tale, it is far from being such alone. Into its plot is woven an overabundance of extremely funny scenes and there is hardly a charcater which makes its appearance that has not a tendency to being absolutely grotesque. Naturally Stone, as Fagy, the rag doll, and Pillard as Twinkle Tootsie, are the bright glittering stars in the firmament of merriment.

During the action of the two-act spectacle all the fairyland characters are introduced. Red Riding Hood, the Wolf, the Wooden Soldier, the Little Brownies and other celebrities of the world of fairies mingle in the merry throng. Phoebe Snow and her snow girls are on the scene in a most fascinating ensemble, while the entire bevy of Brownies and other dollies rag over "The End of the World." Raggy and Tootsie create a sensational stir by "Dancing off the Earth."

All in all, "The Rag Doll in Ragland," which will be seen for the first time at the Plainfield Theatre this afternoon and night, is the biggest sensation of stageland this season.

Theatre goers will be pleased to learn of the engagement of "The Twelve Highland Lassies," the popular Scotch musical act which is to head the pretentious vaudeville program at the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow afternoon and night. Today Stone and Pillard hold the boards at the West Second street playhouse in the newest production, "The Rag Doll in Ragland." The well known artists are said to be at their best in this presentation. The entire show will be presented this evening at the treatre.

"The Twelve Highland Lassies" is unique throughout. Twelve bonnie Scotch lassies will entertain the audience for nearly three quarters of an hour with native songs of the land they will represent. They will be attired in the native costume of the Highlands, and a feature of the production will be the Highland dances. Beside "The Twelve Highland Lassies," Manager Shannon has secured four other unusually fine acts to complete the bill. This show will be seen at the theatre tomorrow and Wednesday, and on Thursday another entirely new program will commence for the remaining three days.

Feature photoplays will be seen at each performance, including the popular Pathe Weekly, the animated newspaper of many of the latest happenings in America and abroad. Comedies and dramas, featuring prominent filmdom stars, also are shown.

- Proctor's Theatre -

Orris Johnson appears today at Proctor's in "The Light of Dusk," a Lubin production, and Lucille Lee Stewart is seen in the leading role of "The Conflict," a fine Vitagraph offering. The fascination of the former, and it has that element in plenty, lies in its powerful, well told story. A good author can take possession of an old theme, elaborate upon it, brighten it with new situations and he has a truly fine picture. Such has Anthony Kelly done. A Russian comes to America, and by slow, hard labor in the steel mills pulls himself up to the top notch of finance. He forgets his wife and child in Russia, but in the end he learns through a series of impressive scenes that he has neglected his workers and with the opening of his eyes in this direction comes his reunion with wife and daughter. Orrin Johnson is cast as the Russian and later as the "American" magnate. His performance is a strong one and he is constantly in the role. We have had scores of pictures possessed of the eternal Triangle idea, but "The Conflict" offers something out of the ordinary in the shape of a quadrangle; a husband, a wife (Miss Stewart), the other woman, and the other woman's brother. A gripping story is woven about this quartette and the action throughout carries considerable suspense. Ralph W. Ince's direction is very good, and the staging is admirable. In addition today the fourth episode of "Beatrice Fairfax," starring Grace Darling and Harry Fox, will be shown.

Tomorrow is Triangle day at Proctor's and a feature of more than passing moment is the headline attraction. It is entitled "The Pillars of Society," and was written by Henrick Ibsen, and the leading role is enacted by Henry Walthall, the hero of "The Birth of a Nation." Henry Walthall, whose presence on the Triangle program came as an interesting surprise when the recent announcement was made that he was to be starred in this attraction, in which he is said to make the most important characterization of his career. He is often called the most intellectual actor on the screen and it is certain he is peculiarly fitted to interpret the complexities of character that Ibsen, going straight to life for his material, was dramatic master of, drew with such consummate skill.

TROOPERS GET BACK FROM 60 MILE HIKE

All of the Men Are in Excellent Health and Thoroughly Enjoyed Outing.

By JAMES J. MacNAMEE.

Douglas, Ariz., Sept. 21.—After a twenty-four hours' layover at Fort Huachuca the Essex, Plainfield and Red Bank troops of cavalry began the home trip of sixty miles today and will probably conclude the eight-day outing Saturday of this week. Up to the present time all of the men have kept in excellent shape and greatly enjoyed the outing, but the horses have been in poor condition since the second day out.

For some reason or other the animals do not seem to have become thoroughly acclimated to the Arizona weather and they wilt under the blazing sun. Many of the troopers have been either forced to change mounts or pull up in the rear.

The trip home will be made via a different route and although they are anxious to get back to camp the men are eager to explore the new surroundings and are looking forward to just as pleasant a return ride as they had coming.

SECOND ANNIVERSARY.

The Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild will celebrate its second anniversary by a special service in the chapel of the First Baptist church on Friday evening. Special music by the Guild orchestra and quartet will be a feature. All are invited to attend and are requested to bring Biederwolf song books.

BECAUSE The saloon is expensive. It gives the city $12,625 in license fees. Our citizens give to it in return several hundred thousand dollars annually. Families suffer. Efficiency in shop and store is reduced. Merchants cannot collect bad debts and poverty is increased. The Charity Organization Society spent last year $11,745.98. $7,587.94 for Relief Work, more than one-half of this because of Drink.
The Overseer of the Poor spent last year $12,828.25, a large proportion traceable to Drink. Seventy-five per cent. of Police Court cases due to Drink. The people pay the bills.

BECAUSE Great railroad lines, and big business have cut out liquor and demand that their employes shall not drink. A strong argument for Plainfield's Industries and Employees.

BECAUSE Plainfield is a city of homes and so advertised. Our friends are urged to make their homes here but not because of "well regulated saloons."
This feature is not advertised, the reason is apparent.

BECAUSE To regulate the saloon does not make it right. The business is wrong, licensed only; and by the judgment of the Supreme Court of the United States, it has no rights.

BECAUSE Cities having no license have lower taxes, more homes owned, bank deposits and saving accounts greatly increased, less poverty, less insanity. These facts proven by actual statistics. Why not in Plainfield?

BECAUSE North Plainfield intends to clean house, only waiting for us to lead the way.

BECAUSE we have tried license with all its evil effects, let us try no license and go along with the great National movement.

BECAUSE The law closes the saloon on Election Day. It is a menace then, why not every other day?

Vote Tuesday (26) for the best interests of our "Queen City" of Homes.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

An Emperor Who Was Fond Of His Clothes.

They Just Pretended to Weave.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

JACK and Evelyn finished their supper, and then daddy told them: "Once upon a time many, many years ago there was an emperor who was so vain about his clothes that he spent all his money upon them. This was rather odd, because most emperors, you children know, like palaces and theaters and soldiers. But the emperor we are getting acquainted with tonight cared nothing for wars or soldiers and nothing for riding about in a gold coach except to show off his clothes."

"Was he a dude, daddy?" asked Jack.

"He certainly was," cried daddy, "for he had a costume for every hour in the day, and instead of saying about him, 'The emperor is in his council chamber,' the way most rulers have it said of them, men always said of this emperor, 'He is in his dressing room.'

"Indeed, life was very gay in the great town where he lived. Hosts of strangers came to see it and also to get a glimpse of the dressy emperor, and one day there came two swindlers, men who are clever at cheating.

"They gave it out about the town that they were expert weavers; that they knew how to weave the most beautiful stuffs imaginable. Not only were the colors and patterns extremely fine, but the clothes that were made of the stuffs had the peculiar quality of becoming invisible to every person not fit for the office he held or if he was terribly dull.

"'Those must be splendid clothes,' thought the emperor. 'By wearing them I shall be able to discover which men in my kingdom are unfitted for their duties. I shall learn the wise men from the fools.'

"So he paid the swindlers a lot of money in advance that they might begin.

"The swindlers made a great dash of setting up two looms and made many gestures with their shuttles. But really they just pretended to weave. They did nothing with their shuttles when it came to passing threads. Exactly what they did do was to demand great quantities of the finest silks and gold threads, all of which they put in their own bags, while they worked away at the empty looms far into the nights.

"'I should like to know how those clever weavers are getting along with that stuff they are making for me,' thought the vain emperor. But he felt a little queer when he remembered that any one who was unfit for his duties or a bit stupid would not be able to see the stuff. He had no fears for himself, but he decided to send some one else to see it first."

Training a Husband

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Marian Attends a Sick Baby and Morris Feels that He has Been Slighted.

"Isn't dinner ready?" Morris Southy took out his watch and noted that it was a quarter past twelve.

"It has been one of the mornings that you get through the best way you can and feel thankful," said Marian, smiling bravely.

"You seem to forget that I have only an hour and a half nooning, and if I have to wait for dinner I can't get the little nap that sometimes saves the day for me," grumbled Morris.

"I am in no danger of forgetting it while you are around," laughed Marian, trying to restore her husband's good nature. "If dinner is five minutes late I am told of the short nooning to the ten-thousandth time."

Morris stalked into the living room and picked up a book. A loud wail descended the stairs and increased in volume every minute till Marian called from the kitchen door:

"You know I cannot fuss around in the kitchen with my school clothes on. I should smell of frying meat," was the irritated answer.

"There is an apron hanging behind the door. I can not leave the baby now," calmly floated downstairs.

"I guess it will not hurt him to be left a few minutes. It is ridiculous the way you make yourself a slave to those children." There was no answer from above, and Morris again looking at his watch marched to the kitchen and helped himself to a potato from the oven and a chop from the frying pan.

When Marian descended the stairs some minutes later carrying the baby, he was eating these viands with an injured air.

"I will dish your tomatoes. I see you have none." Marian put the child in his high chair and hurried to the kitchen. She dished the dinner and called the children. Morris ate his dinner in sullen silence.

"Are you ready for your desert?" asked Marian after she had served the children. Morris indicated the affirmative by a nod of the head, and Marian removed his plate and brought in the pudding. As she passed the baby on the way to the table the little fellow reached out his arms and began to cry again. The mother drew the high chair close to her and tried to get a chance to eat her dinner, but it was of no use. She had to take the child to quiet him.

"Why do you humor him that way?" snapped her husband.

"He is sick, I have told you, and I can not let him heat himself all up crying." Marian showed some signs of irritation. Morris snorted.

"He is always sick when he cries, according to you."

"I have had the care of him all the morning. I may be able to judge better than you are as to his physical condition." She gave her husband a meaning look and glanced at the children.

Morris poured himself a glass of water; drank it; pushed back his chair and left the table. He did not lie down, though it was fully half an hour before the first bell but marched down the walk and out of the gate.

RUSSIAN VISOR CAP OF PONTINE.

By Mary Glynn.

The Russian soldiers visored cap with its high and somewhat flat crown has furnished the inspiration for many new pieces of millinery. A real cap of the Russian soldier has not been copied, but the suggestion of its visored rim and high crown have been worked over in a thousand different ways, resulting in a type of millinery which is very interesting. A great vogue is anticipated for these hats. Beautiful new types in Russian caps are being developed in the new fabric, pontine, which is a leather finish on one side and a satin of contrasting color on the other. Charming in every respect is the Russian visor cap in purple pontine with a backing of silver gray satin, and a huge ornament of dull silver at the brim, and head band, and also the flaring crown trimming which is like an inverted bowl. A gleam of silver gray is seen facing the inside of this flaring frill, and as a cover for the top of the low crown.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Hattie K. Howard, a leader in Suffragist ranks in the West, has been nominated for Congress on the Progressive ticket in the First Colorado district.

An alimony of $60,000, believed to be one of the largest ever granted in Iowa, was recently awarded Mrs. Bridget Callahan, of Mason City, in her divorce from Patrick Callahan, a wealthy land holder.

Mrs. Sidney Philip Munroe, of Fall River, Mass., formerly Miss Sarah M. Fish, of Medford, in the same State, had the unusual experience at her recent wedding to wear a gown of material manufactured by the groom, who is a textile expert.

The Rochester, N. Y., city directory for the coming year will include after a husband's name the name of his wife in parenthesis. The idea originated for the purpose of easier identification in the case of such large and thriving human families as the Joneses and the Smiths, and other municipalities, it is believed, will in time follow the Rochester plan.

Teachers live longer that mothers and housewives, according to class averages, says Edward S. Coggswell, professional actuary of Boston, who was in St. Paul recently to make a survey of the Minnesota State teachers' retirement and insurance fund. According to Mr. Coggswell, women engaged in school teaching are rated the best life insurance risks among feminine patrons, coming next to minsters and travelling men on the list.

Miss Louisa Wlman, a young American singer and diseuse, has been making a most interesting and valuable investigation of American folksong such as found among the Southern mountain folk of the Appalachian range, who constitute the purest English stock in the country, as yet absolutely free from intermixture from the later immigrations which have brought other European strains to nearly every section of the United States. To this day no railroads have penetrated the district and illiteracy is the rule. The transmission of son from one generation to another was therefore wholly by tradition, through some eight or ten generations, the children learning to sing at the mother's knee the songs she had inherited from her own mother. Miss Wyman is very enthusiastic about what she calls these "wildflowers of music," which have never before now been annotated. In many cases great modifications have come, as was to be expected without note or bar to "fix" the melodies, to the old original English songs. Entirely new versions in some cases have sprung up, due to the inspiration of some mountain poet or musician who little dreamt that he was "composing." The mountain folk have given to their sad, slow melodies the picturesque name of "lonesome tunes," while they call the lively and merry ones "fast music."

Julia Clifford Lathrop, who was present when President Wilson signed the recently enacted child labor law, officially represented then the children's bureau of the United States Labor Department, of which she is the chief. She stood for the administrative agencies of the government that pending complete legislative authority for Federal prohibition of transportation of child-made products, has been busy doing what it could to conserve the childhood of the nation. Miss Lathrop is a native of Illinois, and first won fame as a humanitarian as a co-worker with Miss Jane Addams at Hull House, Chicago. Gradually she bagan to be called upon for special studies of all the social problems that modern society faces at home and abroad. She was for sixteen years, from 1893 to 1909, a member of the Illionis State Board of Charities. She was one of the most effective workers in the Chicago School of Civics and Philanthropy. She has made her home in Washington since called by President Wilson three years ago as chief of the children's bureau. Miss Lathrop is a graduate of Vassar College, and combines the ability to investigate, administer, speak and write. Because of her unusual attainments she has made an especially efficient first incumbent of the national bureau which she now heads.

The designation "Democrat" belongs to Mr. McDermit. Mr. Martine did not select any. City Clerk Michael Fagan was not in his office Saturday, but an assistant said the ballots would not be reprinted unless the court ordered the correction.

"VERITY VERAX," WEX JONES' BULLDOG, AWARDED HIGHEST HONORS AT SHOW

Morris Kinney's "Night Rider" Secures Second Award—Large Exhibit of Fox Hounds Judged by Vinton P. Breese—Plainfield Entries Do Well—Fifth Annual Show a Success.

With over five hundreds dogs benched, the Plainfield Kennel Club held its fifth annual dog show on the Horse Show Grounds Saturday afternoon. The affair was held in the open air, although part of the judging was done under tents. Judging was not completed until after 6 o'clock, rain interfering with the program on one or two occasions.

The award for the best dog in the show was given to "Verity Verax," a bull bitch owned by Wex Jones. This dog received the president's cup, offered by Edmund L. Mackensie. Reserve to "Verity Verax" was Morris Kinney's "Night Rider." The feature of the show was the large exhibition of foxhounds, which were judged by Vinton P. Breese. Robert J. Collier, the Watchung Hunt and the Spring Valley hounds were exhibited. "Dorimont," a Spring Valley entry, was judged the best.

Economy.

"You spend entirely too much money on dress," said the man of the house. "That simple little frock Mrs. Smythe wore last night looked a great deal better than that elaborate gown of yours."

"Of course it did, my dear," replied his wife sweetly. "That simple little frock, as you call it, cost $300, while mine cost only $150."

"Well, then, go out and buy one about twice as elaborate as the one you've got. Maybe you can get it for nothing."—New York World.

The Adder's Poison.

One of the most wonderful things in nature is the arrangement of the teeth in the mouth of the common adder or viper. The creature does not use its poison fangs when it bites the animals on which it feeds, and so by a very curious arrangement these fangs are laid back flat in the roof of the mouth out of the way of the ordinary teeth which are used for feeding. By this means the adder can use whichever set of teeth it pleases. One set will poison its enemy, and the other is more suitable for eating its food.

DUNELLEN BATTERS HAMMER THREE TAB HURLERS ALL OVER LOT AND WIN 18 TO 4

McFadden, Tone Denney and Benny Rosenson Fail to Halt Apgar's Braves—Johnny Dixon Hurls Clever Game—Hits Almost as Numerous as Spectators—Fully One Thousand See Game.

The thousand or more fans who migrated to Avon Oval on Sunday little expected that they were going to witness a massacre. Tommy Apgar's Dunellen Braves were on the warpath and scalped the Tabs in an 18 to 4 style.

"Mickey" McFadden started the mound work for the Tabs. He survived the first inning in [illegible]y fashion but was greeted all too warmly in the session that followed. The Dunellens banged out hits and progressed on wild throws and errors. Teeling made a wild throw to third on more than one occasion. The third session found McFadden still on deck, but Tone Denny was called to the rescue. Tone dashed along nicely until he, too, began to get acclimated. While he was not hit as freely as McFadden was, still his mates continued to play loosely. Tone retired in favor of Benny Rosenson. Benny's first effort was lost. He could not find the plate. However, the game little shortstop finished the contest.

The Dunellen offensive was nifty. The Apgarites clouted the ball cleanly and ran bases at will. Hits that were ordinary singles were stretched into doubles. Johnny Dixon was the main Dunellen defense. Johnny pitched a masterful game. Until the last two frames, he was not hit heavily. But in the eighth session Eddie Coughlan tripled. Edward repeated this stunt in the last frame. Jim Emery had a "big day," and was in hitting humor. Jim Scott still believes that Jim ruined three or four baseballs.

The Tabs offered a weak resistance and were never threatening on the offense. Although they were able to get men on the bags, they could not score until the last two session. Johnny Dixon tightened up in the pinches and was accorded brilliant support.

REVIVE SCOTCH PLAINS BASEBALL OUTFIT

Frank "Nibs" Hand Will Lead Team Against Tabs Next Sunday.

The Tabs and the Scotch Plains baseball teams will get together on Avon Oval next Sunday afternoon in what may be the last game of the season. The announcement to this effect was made yesterday.

It is understood that the Scotch Plains team is being gathered together by Frank Hand, the Perth Amboy Pacer backstop. According to those who claim to have the "inside dope" the Scotch Plains manager will have Harry Applegate on the mound and will do the catching himself. Others who will be numbered among those who will play with the Plains team are Joe Alberts, Henny Alberts, Frankie Lee, Tony Denitzio and Eugene Lidgate. It is highly probable that Lidgate will play first base.

While the Scotch Plains manager is preparing, Jim Scott is not idle. James will probably have Cliff Randolph on the mound with Tommy Mullin behind the bat. The rest of the line-up will be the same as usual with Hannon on first; Rosenson at short; Coughlan at third, and Clarke at second.

It is a long time since a baseball team has emerged from the wilds of Scotch Plains, and much of the old time enthusiasm is sure to be revived. The pitchers' battle between Harry Applegate and Cliff Randolph, the star hurlers of Billy Pfau's Amboy and Washington teams.

JACK DENNY WINS IN PITCHING DUEL

Abstainer Captain Outshines Eddie Conshay to Slight Degree.

The Highlanders, presenting practically a City League team, defeated the St. Joseph on Hyde Field Saturday by the score of 5 to 3. The Saints were "padded up" considerably, too. The game resolved itself into a pitchers' battle between Jack Denny and Eddie Conshay, the former having the better of the argument.

As They Used to View the Plague.

An old work, a little book published in Cologne in 1665 under the title of "Geistliche und Leibliche Arzteney Wider die Pest," gives a crude explanation of the plague and its ravages.

From this book we learn that it is due to the eccentric movement of the planets, eclipses of the moon or sun, inundations, earthquakes, famines and wars. Often also it follows the bad effluvium set up by pigs, ducks and geese. It is frequently attributable to the anger of God for man's sins, such as injustice in the law courts, the oppression of subjects by their rulers, the dearness of goods, the dance and gaming.

Harvard.

Harvard defeated Colby 10 to 0 Saturday, in the opening football game for the season for both teams. The Crimson scored a goal from the field in the first period and a touchdown in the third. Robinson made a field goal from the 35-yard line.

At the beginning of the third period Casey received the ball for Harvard on the kickoff and ran it back twenty-five yards. After a series of line plunging he was given the ball on Colby's 20-yard line, and in a sensational zigzag run carried the ball between the goal posts for Harvard's touchdown.

Dartmouth.

Dartmouth opened the football season at Hanover Saturday with an easy victory over the New Hampshire College team, 33 to 0. Dartmouth's first score came after Captain Germish picked up Irvine's punt and ran 30 yards for a touchdown. A series of line rushes and a 45-yard forward pass accounted for the other four touchdowns. Switzer, a former East Orange High School star, got into the game as a quarterback for the Green, relieving Holbrook.

Railroad employes the country over and especially along the lines of the Pennsylvania system are taking to trapshooting as a means to improve their leisure moments.

No less than 50 clubs have been formed by railroad employes during the past six months and the indications are that twice that number will be organized during the next six months. Trapshooting is a sport which clears the eye and steadies the nerves and therefore appeals to those who work on the railroads. It is bully sport for them.

During the month of August trapshooting teams of the various divisions on the Pennsylvania system met in competition in Altoona, Pa., and the winning team of each of the four elimination contests will meet for the championship of the Pennsylvania lines on Septembr 30 This championship shoot will take place in Altoona on the perfectly-equipped grounds of the Altoona Car Shops gun clubs. The grounds were completely equipped by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. There will be 10 shooters on each team, each man shooting at 52 targets.

Railroad men along the Philadelphia, Baltimore & Washington Railroad have had several clubs in operation for a number of years, the best known ones being the P. B. & W. A. A., at Wilmington, and the Parkton, Md., club. The General Office force of the Pennsylvania Railroad in Philadelphia, has a magnificently equipped trapshooting ground at Moore, Pa., and the club went into the sport so much that Lester German gave instructions there for some time.

Other clubs have been formed at Williamsport, Pa., Renova, Pa., Harrisburg, Pa., Derry, Pa., Millville, N. J., Camden, N. J., Mt. Holly, N. J., Trenton Car Shops, Trenton, N. J., on the Philadelphia, Middle, Tyrone, Bellwood, Bedford, Cresson and Monongahela divisions and in the Altoona repair shops, the Altoona car shops, Altoona machine shops, Altoona foundries and general offices, and the Juniata shops.

Railroad men who live in Los Angeles, Cal., formed a club on June 1 and have had several registered shoots since then. Employes of the Chesapeake and Ohio at Huntington, W. Va., have also formed a club and shoot over the traps of the Huntington Club.

Therefore it will be noted that railroads are taking to trapshooting on a scale that bespeaks well for the sport.

SAYS WE BECOME CRANKS ON HOT WATER DRINKING

Hopes every man and woman adopts this splendid morning habit.

Why is man and woman, half the time, feeling nervous, despondent, worried; some days headachy, dull and unstrung; some days really incapacitated by illness.

If we all would practice the drinking of phosphated hot water before breakfast, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of thousands of half-sick, anaemic-looking souls with pasty, muddy complexions we should see crowds of happy, healthy, rosy-cheeked people everywhere. The reason is that the human system does not rid itself each day of all the waste which it accumulates under our present mode of living. For every ounce of food and drink taken into the system nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out, else it ferments and forms ptomaine-like poisons in the bowels which are absorbed into the blood.

Just as necessary as it is to clean the ashes from the furnace each day, before the fire will burn bright and hot, so we must each morning clear the inside organs of the previous day's accumulation of indigestible waste and body toxins. Men and women, whether sick or well, are advised to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of washing out of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the indigestible material, waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Millions of people who had their turn at constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, nervous days and sleepless nights have become real cranks about the morning inside-bath. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will not cost much at the drug store, but it is sufficient to demonstrate to anyone its cleansing, sweetening and freshening effect upon the system.—Adv.

COLGATE IS SURE OF NOMINATION

Candidate for Governor Happy After a Strenuous Campaign.

Col. Austen Colgate completed Saturday night, with a meeting in Passaic county shortly before midnight, one of the most strenuous weeks of campaigning that has been undertaken by any candidate at the primary election.

"I expect to win," said the Colonel, "not because my campaign manager tells me so, but because of the feeling of the voters, as I have personally observed it in every section I have visited. I must say that my friends have done wonderful work for me and I thoroughly appreciate it. I must also say that I have been received with the greatest hospitality everywhere.

"I have conducted a clean campaign and I have made no promises, so that if elected Governor I may enter the office with a clean slate. The people of New Jersey know my record during my eight years in the Legislature, and in this campaign I have given them the best opportunity to see me face to face. I am content to trust myself to their verdict at the polls. As a loyal Republican I intend to support the Republican ticket, no matter who wins."

Former Postmaster Frank J. Bock, the Colonel's campaign manager, said that the very latest reports he had received indicated the nomination of Colgate by more than 15,000 plurality.

"In the last few days," he added, "the Colgate candidacy has been going ahead by leaps and bounds. I have received reports today from Colgate leaders and workers in different counties indicating that my earlier estimates of the result were too modest."

THE FORUM

To the Editor of Plainfield Daily Press:—I feel that the article, "Martine To Be Speaker Among Anti Wilsonites," is calculated to mislead your readers. I am unqualifiedly for the election of Woodrow Wilson. I feel that it would be a calamity to defeat him at this time. It would be political suicide for the Democratic party to in any way connive at Mr. Wilson's defeat. I spoke in Newark Saturday evening in behalf of the Democratic party, and stated my position on the Senatorial nomination, also reciting my record as Senator for the past five years. Please give this statement a conspicuous place in your enterprising newspaper.

JAMES E. MARTINE.
Sept. 23, 1916.

ONE LAST SUGGESTION.

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

Plainfield's latest enterprise is to attempt to remove the saloon from the borders. It has been done "in the Plainfield way," managed by many of our best citizens, who have the best interests of the city at heart.

Tomorrow the election will determine how well the facts have been put before the people, for the most of our citizens only need to be shown.

It is hoped there will be no stay-at-homes, for this is a matter too important to be ignored by honest men.

North Plainfield is watching and led by the mayor, will take hold of the matter as soon as we prove our sincerity.

The paltry sum we received from the license fees is all absorbed by the extra cost of charity and crime and poverty due to drink. This is not a guess but proven by analysis of the reports of the different charities and police courts.

But some one says, "Yes, the saloon is an evil, but we can't get rid of it, therefore regulation is the best for us." We have shown we have no need of it for revenue. It is an expense. So we have it because we cannot get rid of it. Is that so? The large license fee of $1,200 may reduce the number, but not necessarily the amount. The large expense makes it necessary to do a big business. The enormous amount spent in the saloons every year is all waste. Men reeling drunk can be seen in their disgusting condition nearly every night on our streets. "Regulation" may close them on Sundays, and at the unseemly late hour of 11 o'clock, but no one can say that the product does not stagger on our streets and that joy riders driving automobiles do not endanger us and our families.

Yes we have great "regulation." It is a system. We license men to make drunkards and criminals, and then we have a court all ready for them and a jail and almshouse to receive the product. Nothing like having the "regulation" complete. It's great!!! If the authorities think they are regulating the traffic, let them show there is no treating and no drunkenness. It can't be regulated.

Do you not realize, Mr. Voter, that to license an evil tends to make people believe it necessary. There is no better way to kill conscience. Do you not also realize that your well "regulated" saloon in Plainfield is no doubt contributing to liquor organizations elsewhere to perpetuate the business in disreputable places and where it is doing its natural and most flagrant work of lawlessness and crime? If it can be regulated it can be eliminated by the same power.

Our mayor, before he entered upon his term of office, while yet in the Council, and while the Tyler zone was being discussed, said in a signed statement, December third, 1914: "I have never understood why the prohibitionists have not organized for the purpose of getting sufficient representation in the Council to give Plainfield what they most emphatically believe to be of greatest importance to our general welfare." In another place in the same communication he says: "I often think the prohibitionists of Plainfield are slow to advance their cause—unless there are no public spirited citizens in our city who are both prohibitionists and also men of admitted business ability, in every way qualified to serve the city as members of the Council. Of course such a proposition is discredited by a mere statement of it."

Now we admit we have been slow, but we are waking to our senses and we have found the men, and are following the only feasible plan and one which our mayor has suggested.

Help us carry it out. Let us destroy the thing that has no friend willing to publicly defend it. No one wants to admit he is allied with the business.

But what will you do tomorrow? Let us make this the most attractive city in Jersey. Make this city of homes safe and beautiful, and advertise it as the best place for people in the Metropolitan district to rear their families and they will come. Let us do it "in the Plainfield Way."

Fish Out of Water.

When a living fish is taken out of the water it kicks vigorously, erects its fins, gasps convulsively, and in a short time, fifteen to thirty minutes, it becomes motionless. But the muscles still possess what physiologists term "irritability," which may continue for several hours, in some fish lasting from ten to fifteen hours. In such fish as the salmon it lasts longer than in cod or haddock, owing to the smaller amount of contained water in the muscles of the former.—All Outdoors.

CAPSTICK CONFIDENT OF PRIMARY RESULT

Congressman Declares He Has Ample Assurance of Being Renominated.

Despite the fact that there is a three-cornered Congressional fight on in the Fifth district, Congressman John H. Capstick feels confident that as he closes his campaign today for the primaries that the voters of his district will renominate him for another term. The Congressman was in town today, accompanied by his secretary, John H. Nichol, and he says that he has been given every assurance that he will receive a large vote.

Mr. Capstick, owing to the fact that he was detained in Washington on official business, has not been able to devote as much time as he would like to his candidacy, but he has covered his district pretty thoroughly and he reports that the outlook is most favorable for success. Mr. Nichol in speaking of the Congressman's record said that the latter had been faithful to his trust and had supported every principle of his party.

ANNUAL SINGLES EVENT AT COUNTRY CLUB

Play in Women's Single Championship Tournament Started Today.

The annual tournament for the women's singles championship of the Plainfield Country Club started this morning at 10:30 o'clock and the first round, including part of the second, was played. Play will be resumed tomorrow morning.

The scores of the sets played today are as follows: First round: Miss Elsie Goddard defeated Miss A. Barcley 6—3, 6—3; Mrs. George Grandy defeated Miss Catherine Titus, 6—4, 6—2; Mrs. Frank Osborne defeated Mrs. William Nash by default; Miss Sarah Schuyler defeated Miss Edith Griscomb by default; Mrs. Elliott Laidlaw defeated Mrs. A. W. Andrews 6—4, 6—3; Miss Marion Brown defeated Mrs. J. Blake by default; Miss Dall defeated Miss Louise Earle.

Second round: Miss Edith Beers defeated Miss Dall; Miss Elsie Goddard defeated Mrs. George Grandy, 6—3, 6—2, and Miss Sarah Schuyler defeated Mrs. Frank Osborne, 6—0, 6—2. Miss Edith Beers drew a bye.

BOARDMAN IS CONFIDENT.

To the Republican Voters of Plainfield:

It is customary for candiate on the eve of an election whatever may be the actual outlook, to claim that their election by an overwhelming vote is certain. This is due, in part, no doubt, to the fact that one is prone to believe that which one wishes to believe.

Bearing this fact constantly in mind, I have tried to make a careful and impersonal estimate of the probable outcome of tomorrow's election.

While my campaign has developed unforeseen strength in all parts of the district, is it perhaps fair to assume that Elizabeth, the largest town in the district, will give its local candidate a substantial vote.

Nevertheless, there are many forces at work even in Elizabeth, that I am confident will bring out a very substantial vote in favor of my candidacy.

I have canvassed Morris county and the ruarl parts of Union county with a good deal of care. I lived in Morris county during those years when friendships are so easily made. I have found that my support there will be all that I could possibly ask—more than I reasonably could have expected. The favoring vote in Morris county will, I believe, more than offset the vote in opposition that I have assued will be cast in Eliabeth.

I am, of course, desirous of a favorable vote in my home town, for there the outcome is in the hands of my friends and neighbors. During the campaign I have made no direct, personal appeal to any man for his vote. The fact of my candidacy speaks for itself.

The relationship of a representative in Congress to his constituency is analogous to the relationship of a lawyer to his client. There is in the training of a lawer an element that fits him for public service. He is trained to study a situation from the viewpoint of another and in the light of the interest of another. His interest in the affairs with which he is accustomed to deal is largely impersonal and unselfish. His clients' welfare is his first concern.

If I am elected, I shall try to represent my country and my constituency as I would represent a client.

RICHARD BOARDMAN.

REPAIR AUTO ENGINE.

Repairs are being made to the chemical tank on the new auto engine purchased recently by the North Plainfield Fire Department. A brace is being made in order that the weight of the tank may be more evenly supported. Representatives of the International Motor Company were at the borough headquarters this morning.

Fall is here. At 2:45 this afternoon firemen were called to 1100 Evergreen avenue to extinguish a blaze caused by sparks from an open grate. It was the first grate fire of the season. It seemed to present few difficulties for the firemen.

OBSCURE HEROES.

These Humble Workers Only Do Their Duty and Wear No Medals.

Twelve boys took an abandoned handcar and placed it on the Lackawanna tracks near the Paterson station. By chance the station agent saw them speeding by and telegraphed to a towerman a mile away at Paterson Junction to stop them. The towerman knew that an express was just behind the boys and opened a switch, throwing them and their stolen car down an embankment; then he closed the switch as the express came around the curve behind them, and little they knew that they had thrown dice with death and won, thanks to the foresight of these two men on the job.

These are the heroes of peace, these obscure, unknown men, doing their duty practically 365 days out of the year. In the news account the name of the towerman was not even mentioned, but he has twelve lives to his credit, and twelve homes have been spared from mourning, and twelve boys are given another chance to finish their careers.

We get so accustomed to the men on the job that we forget what part the integrity of the workman plays in the mechanism of modern life, from the man in the tower to the trackwalker, from the engineer to the chief dispatcher. If all these cogs were not true and working in unison every minute in the hour, where would the safety of our lives be?

These heroes of peace, who wear no ribbons and medals and no service colors, give the lie to those who say human nature is not essentially honest.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

BOUNDARY LINES.

Mostly Straight In Our Land, Crooked and Illogical Abroad.

Most United States boundaries are straight lines, and the majority of these lines are due north and south or east and west. Where the lines are not straight they are nearly always established either by rivers or by mountain ridges. It is very simple to know where one state ends and another begins.

In Europe, on the contrary, nearly all boundaries are established by crooked and usually illogical lines. The frontiers wind about like foolish cow paths. The more important lines are definitely established, for they are too important to be left in doubt. But on some of the dividing lines guessing becomes a fine art.

The arbitrariness of European boundaries is largely a relic of the old unscientific centuries. But even in this highly scientific century, when new lines are to be laid out, they follow the old meandering custom. After the Balkan wars the new boundaries were fixed as they were 500 years ago, wholly without regard to geometry or simplicity.

The contrast is a minor indication of a fundamental difference. The new world is more businesslike than the old. It goes more directly to the point. It does practical things in a more practical way. A straight line is more practical than a curl or an arabesque. And so the United States is strong for straight lines.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SCARED AWAY INTRUDER.

Harold Willard, of 218 West Front street, reported to the police yesterday that he had seen a man Saturday night trying to force an entrance into the store, but although he gave chase the fellow ran down Somerset street and got away. He described him as being about twenty-four years old, 5 feet 10 inches high, black suit, black hat, black shirt and no colalr.

FREEHOLDER'S VISIT.

The Board of Freeholders of Somerset county paid a visit to North Plainfield today. An inspection of the Westervelt avenue bridge occupied some of the time. Freeholders George Kirch and John Mobus were in the party.

REV. DR. J. MADISON HARE GIVEN CORDIAL RECEPTION

The Rev. James Madison Hare preached at the morning service in the Baptist church yesterday, but had to return to Sea Girt in the afternoon. A large congregation was present to welcome home the pastor who had been absent since June 20. Mr. Hare stated that it was not his intention to preach a formal sermon, but in its stead gave a very graphic talk on "Christianity in the American Army." At the border Mr. Hare was postmaster and general storekeeper, besides fulfilling his duties as chaplain of the Fourth New Jersey Regiment. He said that between July 20 and September 4 he sold $10,000 worth of goods to the men in the army.

Among the floral decorations in the church was a large "Welcome Home" made of flowers and ferns, which adorned the pupit.

NO MORE HIKES TO BE ALLOWED

Troopers Are Ordered to Stick Close to Their Camp at Douglas.

CAVALRY IS YET OUT

General Funston Refuses to Let Men Send for Overcoats—He Says They Will Not Be Needed—Severe Storm Hits Camp.

By JAMES J. McNAMEE.

Douglas, Ariz., Sept. 21.—Orders coming from General Funston last night resulted in General T. F. Davis, of the Arizona District, calling off all proposed plans for hikes by New Jersey military units and from now until the time for departure they will be compelled to remain in the local camp. General Davis, who commands the Arizona District, of which the Jerseyites are now a part, had previously given his consent to Colonel Albert A. Van Walraven, commander of the Jersey troops, to conduct a trip to Roosevelt Dam to be participated in by the Fifth infantry. This outing would require about twelve days and the 400-mile journey was to have been made in motor trucks.

Although the Funston order is looked upon as an indication that instructions for an early departure of the Jerseymen will come through in the near future by enlisted men, members of the official personnel emphatically deny that it bears any significance. They explain the order by saying that General Funston is of the opinion that the Jersey Guard should do its training at this point and not maneuvre to a point considerable distance from the border. There has been a feeling of late among the officers that the proposed hikes have been planned for too long distances and that in case of an emergency the outfits participating in the trips could not be returned to Douglas immediately.

With a view to being prepared for winter weather Colonel Van Walraven last week asked General Davis for permission to send back home for the Fifth Infantry's overcoats, and he in turn communicated the request to General Funston. The latter today denied this permission and as an explanation said: "It would not be necessary." This is also taken as an indication of early removal from here but the best news to the homesick boys came yesterday in the form of a general inspection of the Fifth infantry by a corps of regular army officers and the squadron of cavalry will be subjected to similar tests on Monday. This inspection includes all of the equipment as well as a physical examination for the man and is believed to be a scheme to lighten the mustering out work that would ordinarily be done at Sea Girt.

The First Squadron of cavalry, commanded by Major Robert Brown, is now on the home stretch of the eight-day hike to Fort Huachuca and should be back in camp Saturday afternoon. The outfit reached Warren last night and Lieutenant Louis D. Kilgus left here this morning with Government money to pay off the cavalrymen for their August service. The hike has been a gruelling one for men and horses, particularly the latter, and their return to camp is eagerly anticipated by the remainder of the brigade.

Sergeant Pheonis Staunton, of East Orange, a member of Troop C, who has been in the base hospital here for the past seven weeks, suffering from rheumatism, left this morning for Hot Springs, Ark., where he will enter the Government sanitarium for treatment. It is understood that similar disposition will be made of a number of similar cases that have developed since the militiamen reached this point, a number of patients being confined to the base hospital at the present time with the same ailment.

Sergeant Donald A. McGee, of Troop D, whose dependency discharge arrived a week ago, but who has been kept here to carry out certain red tape requirements of mustering out, left today for his home in Plainfield. He visited the troop at Warren this morning and secured the signature of Captain Albert A. Borden to his mustering out papers, this being one of the causes of the delay. He remained here primarily to finish up certain details that he was told would make it unnecessary for him to go to Fort Dupont, but was notified at the last minute that he will have to visit the latter place after all.

One of the worst wind, sand and rain storms the Jerseymen have witnessed during the stay in Arizona blew up late yesterday afternoon. During the time it raged the storm did considerable property damage in and about the city of Douglas and the sand and sulphurous fumes from the smelters literally formed a wall so dence that one could not see his hand in front of him.

Souvenir buying once more occupies the time and minds of the guardsmen and a flood of Douglas curios have come to the tented village since pay was distributed. Most of the men are "broke" but they have done their souvenir buying and are now anticipating more than ever before the arrival of return orders.

Work on the Fifth infantry frame guardhouse was completed last night and the prisoners were transferred

CONNOLLY TO DISPOSE OF TWO LOCAL CASES

John Southard and "Charles Hale" Will Be Sentenced Next Friday.

After pleading non vult, John Southard, the eighteen year old Scotch Plains youth who was caught after he had attempted to stage a "fake" hold up at the Netherwood station in June, will be sentenced by Judge James J. Connolly on Friday morning. Pleading guilty to taking $557 belonging to the New Jersey Central, Southward will probably receive a lighter sentence than either Albert Walpole or Gabriel Groletto, the other two Scotch Plains youths mixed up in the affair, who will be sentenced later.

Southard was agent at the Netherwood station and when he found he was short in his accounts he arranged the holdup with his friends. He was tied and left in the middle of the road to be found by the police, but he was unable to tell a coherent story, and Groletto was caught in bed that same night with $90, while Walpole was apprehended several weeks later by Lieutenant Higgins. He had spent most of the $500 when caught and refused to return to Plainfield until extradition papers were obtained.

"Charles Hale," the man of mystery, who was caught here several weeks ago after he had stolen a horse and wagon belonging to Dennis Gavin, was remanded until Friday when he was before Judge Connolly last week. After a country-wide search the local police found he had served in Joilet and the Massachusetts penitentiaries. He broke his parole from the western prison and unless a present investigation reveals something new of his past life he may be sent back there.

"AMANDA SEYFARTH'S" WILL IS PROBATED

Surrogate Dismisses Objections Presented Against Admission of Document.

New York, Sept. 26.—Upon request of Antonette R. Schwartz, of North Plainfield, daughter, executrix and sole legatee of the estate of her father, John Eckhardt, who died at the latter place on May 6 last, and by direction of Surrogate John P. Cohalan, objections filed by John Eckhardt last March against the probate of a will left by "Amanda Seyfarth" on file in the surrogate's court was today dismissed and the will admitted to probate.

The will of "Amanda Seyfarth" who died on February 5 last, was filed for probate about two weeks after her death and directed the distribution of about $8,000 in personal property among relatives in New York, Long Island and Germany.

Mr. Eckhardt charged that he was the husband of the decedent and that at the time of the alleged execution of her will she was of unsound mind and incapable of disposing of her property and he filed objections to the probate of the will.

A trial of the issues was demanded under the new jury surrogate's law, which was granted and the case was set for trial early in October. Mr. Eckhardt's will, giving all to his daughter, was probated in Somerset county, July 6 last. In the petition, asking for the probate of the will, which is now admitted, it shows that the dead woman left no husband, except John Eckhardt's affidavit declaring that he is her husband.

AERO PLANT TO LEAVE THIS CITY

Officials Looking for New Site in Newark or Elizabeth.

MUST ENLARGE AT ONCE

Stay in Plainfield Was Made Conditional Many Months Ago, and Conditions Have Not Been Met—U. S. Army Getting Output.

The Standard Aero Corporation, formerly the Sloane Aeroplane Company, is to move its plant from Plainfield within the next few weeks. This announcement was authorized by one of the officials of the company yesterday.

For some time the aeroplane company has been seeking larger quarters in this city, and failing to find here a suitable building for enlargement, it will go to another city. Sites at Newark and Elizabeth were inspected last week. None has been accepted as yet. The company prefers to remain in Plainfield, but because of its growing business must have a maximum of 100,000 square feet of floor space, also a field large enough for test flights. It is admitted that such large floor space is not needed now, and may not be needed for years, but owners of the reorganized company demand a "permanent" building, and they anticipate a healthy growth in the near future.

The Standard Aero Corporation is at present employing 160 men, according to Daniel L. Meenan, Jr., treasurer, and actively in charge of the plant. This week the Netherwood plant will turn out two complete aeroplanes, and next week it will turn out two, although the capacity of the present plant is but one a week. It is making but one type of aeroplane, the Sloane-Day military tractor designed by Charles Day, but its engineers are experimenting on two new models, and if they prove successful the factory must be made much larger at once. This can not be done at the present location. Just now the old building of the Sloane Company is taxed, and every inch of overflow factory space at Berckman and North avenue is used.

All of the machines being made by the company are being turned over immediately to the United States government, and its output for many weeks has been contracted for by the War Department. Some time ago the company secured a contract for three machines from the United States army. Later nine more were ordered, and while no further orders have been received the government is preparing to buy a large number and the local company expects to make many of these.

The Day military tractor, which is the only model made here now, is a type that has been used in Europe during the present war. One of the new models that is in an experimental stage just now, is a twin-engine tractor that will carry three passengers and be capable of much greater speed. As soon as it is completed a trial machine will be furnished the United States government for test purposes. It is expected that it will be used for naval fliers.

Because there is no field available in Plainfield for trial flights all of the machines made here must be sent to Long Island, where they are tested. This adds much to the expense of the production. One of the conditions upon which the company will remain in Plainfield is that it be provided with a testing field.

In June the Press printed a statement from President Mingle that the corporation was looking for a new factory, and giving conditions upon which it would remain in Plainfield. As these conditions have not been met its officials are looking for a site in another city.

NO LICENSE PEOPLE MAKE HOUSE TO HOUSE CANVASS

Every house in Plainfield was visited last night by campaigners for the no-license candidates for the Common Council. A corps of volunteer workers was organized and they distributed literature urging support of the men who are pledged to vote against the open saloon. The "stunt" was a novel one in local politics, but its supporters believe it will prove effective.

ARRESTED FOR SPEEDING.

Joseph Karbon, 21, of this city, arrested Sunday morning by Patrolman Sattler for speeding on Rahway avenue, Elizabeth, was fined $5 in the Elizabeth court yesterday morning. John Kalinsky, 22, of Dunellen, also arrested by Sattler, was fined the same amount. Karbon was motorcycling on Westfield avenue.

DEMOCRATIC CLUB ENDORSES TREACY

undivided support was assured to the candidate.

Mr. Treacy has made a strenuous campaign during the past three weeks and has made many friends in various parts of the county, where he has visited.

In speaking of the election this morning, Mr. Treacy said:

"The Democrats of the county should exert themselves as never before in behalf of the various candidates, and no stone should be left unturned to bring to a successful termination the nomination and finally the election of all the candidates on the Democratic ticket, from President Wilson down to the humblest.

"Mr. Wilson merits the confidence of the people of the country as no other President has ever merited it, and if some of our Republican friends would set aside their narrow partisanship and give serious thought to the constructive work done by the greatest executive it has been the good fortune of this country to have during one of the most trying times in its history, they would not only reflect credit to themselves, but they would be doing a work redounding to the best interests of every man, woman and child in the nation.

"The great heart of Lincoln lives again in the man who has done so much for he welfare of the people of this country."

MARGUERITE ANDERSON NEW VICTIM OF PARALYSIS

The first case of infantile paralysis that has developed in the city since September 12 was reported at the Board of Health office yesterday afternoon when, after several days' observation it was decided that Marguerite Anderson, the 18-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Anderson, of 342 McDowell street, had the plague. The origin of the case is not known, there being no other near it. All quarantine regulations are being observed.

He's in Again!

Pancho Villa.

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 26.—Pancho Villa is assembling an army of more than five thousand men within fifteen miles of the city of Chihuahua, and is receiving thousands of recruits daily from Carranza garrisons, according to reports received here today from interior Chihuahua points. A new attack on Chihuahua City by Villa is believed imminent by the people of that capital, and an exodus of civilians from the city has been progressing all day. All reports from interior Mexico tell of a general peon rally to Villa's cause. It is said Villa is stronger in men, munitions and supplies now than at any time since the recognition of the Carranza government.

FIND LOST WILLS AMONG RUBBISH

Were Made by Mrs. Emily E. Terry, Mother of Mrs. Imogene Wright.

FIGHT OVER ESTATE

W. W. Terry, Son of Testatrix, Demands That Attorney Appear in Court for Examination—One Document Has No Witnesses.

New York, Sept. 26.—Through the finding of two original wills made by Mrs. Mary E. Terry, the deceased mother of Imogene T. Wright, of 936 Prospect avenue, Plainfield, there is much rejoicing today among the clerks of the probate department of the surrogate's court. These wills, which were filed by Attorney Edward Larken, of New York, last Friday, mysteriously disappeared. Legal action was threatened when the documents were found late yesterday afternoon.

The two wills, one of which is the original of the 1900 one, was found in the cellar of the court house among some rubbish about to be burned. It is the belief that the wills were accidentally dropped on the floor and swept up by women cleaners. The later will, on file for probate here today, which, with the 1900 one, is now securely locked in the steel safe of the court.

The action of the surrogate in demanding that the attorney appear in court for examination and to produce a will and personal effects, if it be in his possession, was based upon an affidavit made by Walter W. Terry, son of the testatrix, who stated that he understood that the attorney was holding back such a document. Mrs. Terry died on May 13 last, leaving six children. Many small bequests are made to the children and grandchildren, the personal estate being generally divided.

As this will, which is written in the handwriting of the testatrix, which Walter Terry forced Mr. Larken to file, is not attested by any subscribing witnesses, it is doubtful whether Surrogate Cohalan will allow it to be probated. The 1900 document, which is properly executed, gives the entire estate to the same executors, in trust, as a life estate for her daughter, Elma, or until this daughter marries, after which it is to be divided in equal shares among Mrs. Terry's children.

When Frank Bryan, of West Front street, was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in city court this morning, after he had pleaded guilty to shoplifting in a local store when arraigned yesterday morning, he received a suspended sentence after the judge had given him a severe lecture. Bryan, from his actions in court, appears to be mentally unbalanced and it was partly because of this that Judge DeMeza suspended sentence.

LOCAL MAN KILLS BOY AT PHILLIPSBURG

Wm. Pfister Fatally Injured by Automobile Driven by Arthur Moore.

Following the death of Roy Pfister, 9-year-old son of William Pfister, of Philipsburg, as the youth was on his way to school yesterday morning, Arthur Moore, until recently a resident of this city, is being held under heavy bail to answer to a charge of manslaughter.

Moore, previous to leaving this city was employed by a local taxicab company, at whose office it was said this morning he was discharged for being incompetent. About three weeks weeks ago he went to Philipsburg and obtained a position as chauffeur.

It was while driving through the business section of the city that Moore is alleged to have hit the Pfister youth, killing him instantly. Bystanders, it is said, are divided in opinion as to the blame for the accident. Only meagre reports of the affair have as yet reached the city. Moore is about 24, and unmarried.

ALLEGED EMBEZZLER REMANDED FOR TRIAL

Bolek Broseiki Brought Back From Passaic After Long Hunt.

When Bolek Broseiki was arraigned in police court this morning before Judge De Meza on a charge of embezzlement, it marked the end of a three months' search for the man who, it is alleged, took $648 from Anne Tosmlaska last June. Broseiki was known under another name in Passaic, where he was caught yesterday, and it was to give the police a chance to ascertain his identity and also to trace his past record thoroughly that he was remanded for a hearing until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock under a bail of $2,000.

In court this morning his attorney wanted to waive examination and ask for the release of his client under bail for the Grand Jury. Because he was under the impression that it was a case of mistaken identity, a Passaic saloonkeeper was willing to go his bail, but when he learned the particulars of the case he refused, and Broseiki is being held at headquarters. After he was apprehended by the Passaic police yesterday Police Chief Kiely and County Detective Galatin went after him.

By pretending that he would marry her, it is said, Broseiki persuaded the Tosmaska girl to draw her savings from the bank after he had told her he had a doubling machine that would turn a five dollar bill into a ten dollar one. The girl is employed as a servant on West Seventh street and met Broseiki through Josephia Rokawka, an aged Polak, living on Cottage place, and it was at her house that the trick is alleged to have been played. Broseiki, when he got the money, cleared out and was not heard from until he was arrested at Passaic.

He is reported to be wanted in New York and several other cities for playing the same kind of a game. In New York, it is said, he married a young Polish woman and after drugging her went with her life savings. Convicted of the same charge in Passaic he was sentenced and served seven years in the State prison. The local police are today trying to unravel further his past life and it is expected several more victims will be brought to light by the time he is arraigned tomorrow.

CUT OFF COMBLES FROM MAIN ARMY

New Drive of Allies Wins Along Full Fifteen Mile Front.

CAPTURE THREE TOWNS

Garrison Will Be Forced to Surrender by Starvation, Says London—New Attack by Zeppelins Kills Many.

London, Sept. 26.—The large German garrison in Combles, completely cut off from Crown Prince Rupprecht's army by yesterday's drive of the Allies—a drive comparable in gain to any yet made in a single day on the Somme front—are fighting furiously today to avert capture, but military men here declare they cannot escape.

Infantry attacks on Combles are not expected, since they would be costly. It is believed the German defenders will be subjected to a merciless artillery fire until hunger and thirst compel their capitulation.

Yesterday's tremendous assault was carried on simultaneously by the French and British along a front of fourteen miles, extending all the way from Martinpuich to the Somme, the Allies halting only when they had advanced a full mile through the German lines and taken positions the German regarded as impregnable.

Many Prisoners Taken in Drive.

In the drive they took three towns, broke through several lines of trenches, captured a vast amount of war material and made many prisoners. The attack had been forecast by the furious artillery fire of the past few days and was no surprise to the Germans, who, however, were powerless to stop Kitchener's New Army and Foch's "poilus."

Another Zeppelin Raid on London.

London, Sept. 26.—The loss of two of their newest and greatest super-Zeppelins in Saturday night and Sunday morning's attack on London, has not deterred the Germans from their intention of carrying the war to London, and more of the huge dirigibles raided England late last night and early this morning.

No details of the raid, either of the exact number of Zeppelins participating, the number of persons killed or the damage done, has yet been made public by Viscount French, commander in chief of the Home Forces.

Two bulletins have been issued, one declaring that "several hostile airships crossed the east and northeast coasts of England between 10:30 and midnight last night."

Take German Positions.

Berlin, Sept. 26.—The War Office has admitted the loss of the German positions on the Cuedecourt, Bouchavesnes lines, including the villages of Lesboeufs, Norval and Fregpulcourt.

SPANIARDS USE AXES TO FIGHT ITALIANS

Bound Brook Street Fight Causes Three to Be Held for Grand Jury.

The three Spaniards were arraigned before Recorder Reed at Bound Brook this morning on a charge of atrocious assault and were held for the Somerset county grand jury.

Before last night it was said that the Italians did not know the men who attacked them, but when a slight argument started the three fellows set upon them. The two men were in court this morning with their heads swathed in bandages, having been treated by Dr. Platt, of Dunellen.

WANTED FOR LARCENY CAUGHT BY A TRICK

Charles Rutherford Was Slick But Was Led to Police Headquarters.

Of a refined and neat appearance and looking younger than his twenty-four years, Charles Rutherford, at present boarding at 706 South avenue, but really a wanderer, and claiming to be an expert in aviation, was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in city court this morning to answer a charge of larceny preferred against him by Fred Glaser, of Clinton avenue.

Waving examination until he had time to communicate with a New York lawyer, he was remanded back for a hearing until tomorrow morning. Before the day is over it is expected that the Bosch Magneto Company, of South avenue, will file a complaint charging him with the theft of a magneto valued at $60.

Rutherford's capture was effected last night in a peculiar way after several days' sleuthing on the part of Glaser. Desk Sergeant Saffron was on duty at police headquarters shortly after nine o'clock, when Glaser appeared and said that a man that had stolen an overcoat from him and $5 from his mother, Mrs. Theodore Glaser, was on the street in front of the station house. Saffron put on a civilian coat and sneaking out the door sauntered down the street and when he got near Rutherford, who was standing alongside a telegraph pole on the opposite side of the street, he made a dive fir him and locked him up.

Rutherford, it is said, goes about the country claiming to be an expert on aeroplane engines. He had lived in this city several weeks and in that time had gained the friendship of the Glaser family.

Hawthorne and Dueling.

It has been thought by most of Hawthorne's biographers that his theory of the fatality of acts was founded largely upon a tragic experience of his own life. In the belief that a young lady whom he well knew had been insulted he challenged the supposed offender to a duel, but was prevented from carrying out his purpose by his friends. Pierce and Cilley, who showed him that the supposed insult was entirely mythical. A few years later Cilley was himself challenged by a political enemy, and the fact that Hawthorne had been willing to fight a duel is said to have persuaded him not to decline, and his opponent killed him.—From Erskine's "Leading American Novelists."

MAYOR CALKINS IS BACK FROM VACATION

Stopped at Office for Few Minutes This Morning—Will Vote in Primary.

Mayor Leighton Calkins was back at his desk in the city building this morning for the first time in many weeks. He returned last night with his family from East Gloucester, Mass., where he spent the past seven weeks. Mr. Calkins was in Plainfield for only a short time this morning, stopping long enough to shake hands and glance at the mail that has accumulated in his absence. He looked extremely well. He will return from his office in New York to cast his vote in the primary, where he is without opposition for the Republican nomination for Mayor.

MASONIC FUNERAL FOR W. J. DOUGLASS

Obsequies Held at Late Home Yesterday Afternoon Are Largely Attended.

Impressive funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock over the remains of William J. Douglass, whose death occurred in this city last Wednesday. The service was held at the late home, 610 East Third street, and was attended by scores of relatives, friends and fraternal representatives, with whom Mr. Douglass had an intimate acquaintance through long years of affiliations with various lodges throughout the State. Rev. Dr. E. V. Stevenson, rector of the Grace Episcopal church, conducted the service and the choir from St. Mark's Episcopal mission, of which Mr. Douglas was a member, sang several selections. These were "Peace, Perfect Peace," and "Oh, Mother Dear, Jerusalem."

Many beautiful floral pieces attested the esteem in which Mr. Douglass had been held, the profusion filling the room. Among the handsome set pieces was a large cross of flowers sent by the Cypress Commandery of this city.

The interment was made in Hillside cemetery, the representatives from the varous Masonic lodges, preceding the body to the grave. A commitment service at the graveside was conducted by the Stone Square Lodge, F. and A. M., of this city, assisted by Supreme Council, Thirty-third Degree Masons of Philadelphia.

The Masonic lodges of the State represented at the funeral included the following: Ivanhoe Commandery, of New York city; Ocean Spray Commandery, of Atlantic City; Supreme Council, Thirty-third Degree Masons, of Philadelphia; St. Paul Commandery, of Newark; and lodges from Camden, Trenton and Asbury Park. Beside the fraternal men present, the mourners included many clergymen from this and other cities. Among the latter number were the Rev. William Lloyd Imes, pastor of the Bethel chapel, and Rev. Mr. Roberts, of the Shiloh Baptist church.

TROOPER NELSON APPRECIATES KINDNESS OF PLAINFIELDERS

In a communication received by the Daily Press office, Cleland K. Nelson, connected with Troop D, First Squadron Cavalry, stationed at Douglas, Ariz., conveys to Plainfielders his appreciation for their many remembrances to the boys at the border. In part he says:

"I myself am a member of Troop D, and although not a Plainfielder, I have thanked my lucky stars, time and time again, that I enlisted with that organization, for I can truthfully say that there is not another outfit in the entire New Jersey Brigade which has been so well remembered by those at home as we have been, and I wish I had some other means at hand with which to thank them for the many, many luxuries both great and small, that we have received."

MAY BE INDEPENDENT TICKET IN THE FIELD

There is a strong probability that those who get Republican nominations for city offices in the primary of today will find their election opposed by an independent ticket. This has been much discussed recently, and is looked upon as a probable outcome of the primary. Among those mentioned to head the ticket are former Mayor George W. V. Moy and R. Henry Depew. It is said that either would be satisfactory to those who are advocating a full ticket for municipal offices to oppose the Republican nominees. The names can be put on the election ballots by petitions filed thirty days in advance of the voting. Upon the result of today contests for Councilman depends the new ticket, it is said.

CODDINGTON WILL NOT RUN FOR MAYOR

Refuses Honor of Being Candidate on the Democratic Ticket.

Former Judge W. A. Coddington last night declined to become a candidate for Mayor on the Democratic ticket, and indications are that the party will not find a man to oppose Mayor Calkins for re-election.

At last night's meeting of the Democratic Club the indorsement was offered Judge Coddington, but he refused. In declining he urged loyal support of President Wilson and read to the club President Wilson's speech at Shadow Lawn last Saturday, when he discussed the eight-hour day before a crowd of more than 5,000 New Jersey business men.

The candidacy of Hugh T. Treacy for the Assembly was indorsed by the club. Richard A. Claybrook, president, was in charge of the meeting. J. W. Harrison sought to secure a pledge from Mr. Treacy to the effect that he would vote for a local option bill if he was elected to the Assembly, but did not succeed.

FREEZING COLD ON THE MEXICAN BORDER

Troopers Barry and Steigman Receive Dependency Discharges.

By JAMES J. McNAMEE.

Douglas, Arizona, Sept. 25.—Trooper Harry Barry and Trooper Steigman today reecived dependency discharges from Troop D. They will leave here Wednesday night and will probably go to Fort Du Pont, Delaware, to be mustered out of Federal service.

It is freezing cold at the camp here and most of the New Jersey guardsmen are sleeping under many blankets at night. The days are hardly more comfortable as almost every afternoon a fierce sandstorm visits the camp and it is impossible to remain outside while it is raging.

CALL ON WHITMAN TO ACT IN STRIKE

Legislators Will Ask for Special Session to Force Intervention.

New York, Sept. 26.—Gov. Whitman will today receive from New York City members of the Legislature an appeal for a special session of the Legislature to deal with conditions growing out of the traction strike.

It is reported the strike leaders would welcome almost any plan of intervention that would save them from the failure of the general tie-up plan, which now appears probable. Their claims have been gradually dwindling, and today they are reluctant to make any kind of positive predictions.

There are rumors among union workmen that intervention is imminent, but no one seemed to have any definite information as to their origin.

The Legislative Committee that is to meet Gov. Whitman at the St. Regis Hotel this afternoon is composed of Senator J. J. Donnigan, Chairman, and Assemblyman Goldberg, Callahan, Bloch, Perlman, Armstrong, Bell, Gilroy and Cotillo. The meeting was arranged after a conference of Manhattan and Bronx legislators in the Biltmore late yesterday.

FIREMEN'S GOOD WORK SAVES BOROUGH DWELLING

The North Plainfield fire department was called out at 2:30 yesterday afternoon to extinguish a blaze at the home of John Dilts, at 95 Jackson avenue. When the firemen arrived on the scene, they found that part of the roof was in flames and that the fire was spreading with increasing rapidity. Quick work with the chemicals soon had the flames under control, however, and but little damage was done. But for the timely arrival of the firemen the whole house would have been doomed. The fire is thought to have originated in the chimney.

GEE WAH IS FATALLY HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Gee Wah, who for many years conducted a laundry on North avenue, died a few days ago in a Jersey City hospital from injuries received when he was hit by an automobile in the latter city. He was visiting friends at the time of the accident.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is Sign You Have Been Eating Too Much Meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphate hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.—Adv.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE FOR RED AND BLUE

About Thirty Candidates Report to Coach Ralph S. Patch.

About thirty candidates responded to Coach Ralph Patch's football call yesterday. Among this number were several newcomers, a few of whom bear promise of rounding into valuable material. The initial workout consisted mainly in throwing the pigskin around, although a few formations were reviewed.

Bill Daniels, upon whom the burden of bringing a Union county championship to Plainfield lies, was not on hand yesterday. Bill was with Troop D at the border, but is on his way home at the present time. He will arrive in this city today or tomorrow and, it is expected, will begin school on Monday. Daniels is a senior at the Ninth street institution. The unusually large squad of candidates that reported yesterday showed marked enthusiasm and an evident desire to give Rahway a "run for the money."

There were but few new men who reported yesterday and several of the "vets" were absent. It is thought that all of the players were not aware of the call. Then, too, there are several fellows who are working until Saturday. Judson Blake, a Leal School lad, was among the thirty who reported for practice.

Coach Ralph Patch is pleased with the quick response to his first call and believes that the team that he will get together will be capable of giving Rahway, Westfield and Elizabeth a tight battle for county honors. Allan Stevenson, whose reported intention of entering Pingry was proved false, was on hand yesterday. Stevenson, a "six-footer," will be a tower of strength to the Red and Blue eleven.

LUTHERAN MINISTERS IN CONFERENCE HERE

Two Days' Session Begins at St. Peter's Church in North Plainfield.

The New Jersey Conference of the New York and New Jersey Ministerium of the Lutheran Church of America will be held at St. Peter's German Lutheran church at Grove street and Mercer avenue, the borough, today and tomorrow.

Special services will be held at the church this evening at 7:30, to which all are invited. The English sermon will be preached by Rev. F. A. Bavendam, of Jersey City and the German sermon by Rev. Dr. W. Hickman, of West New York. The Ladies' Aid Society of the church will entertain the visiting clergy at dinner in the Washington Hotel at Watchung. The guests will be taken to the historic inn by automobile.

This is the first general convention of the Lutheran clergy of Northern New Jersey to be held in Plainfield, and the members of St. Peter's church are preparing to give them a cordial reception.

DR. CHRISTIAN TO SPEAK BEFORE LOCAL LODGEMEN

Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F. at its regular meeting in the lodge rooms in the Babcock building, last night received two members. The session was in charge of Noble Grand L. B. Apps. Routine business was discussed principally, after which the members enjoyed refreshments and a smoker. During the social hour that followed interesting accounts of their trips through the West and Canada were given by W. J. Kenney and A. J. Stiglitz.

Announcement was made last night that Dr. F. S. Christian, of West Seventy-eighth street, New York city, a national figure in the lecture world, will deliver an address to Plainfield Lodge No. 44 and their friends, next Monday night in the lodge rooms. Dr. Christian is a speaker of unusual force and his theme will probably be of more than passing interest.

THE FUTURE.

Why make yourself sick with worry about the future when that worry cannot possibly help matters? Anxiety is the poison of human life, the parent of many sins and of more miseries. Can your solicitude alter the cause or unravel the intricacy of human events? To provide against every important danger by the employment of the most promising means is the office of wisdom, but at this point wisdom stops.—Blair.

SETTLERS ESTABLISH "JERSEYLAND PARK"

Mexican Refugees Purchase Officers' Dwelling at Douglas for Model Village.

By JAMES J. McNAMEE.

Douglas, Ariz., Sept. 22.—Arizona will soon have a Jerseyland park, or at least a small hamlet which will be suggestive of the name which will probably except it. The citizens of the new village will not be Jersey men nor will they have the advantages at their disposal such as the "Skeeter State" has to offer.

When the First and Fourth Regiments returned to Sea Girt they left behind them a score or more of frame officers' dwellings which have since been purchased by Mexican refugees who have come to this place from the heart of Mexico by the hundred every week. These have been carted to a site within one hundred paces of where General Edwin Hine's headquarters were located and the prospective settlers are now busily engaged in laying out what gives indications of being a model restricted village.

The builders have brought their wives and families with them and apparently came here together from the same section of Mexico. They have purchased a number of horses, burros and vehicles for carrying supplies and have exhibited a friendliness toward the American militiamen which Mexico natives of this place have never shown.

Each family has taken possession of one of the officers' shacks which were purchased for six dollars each, and have turned them into ideal dwellings. They speak little or no English and have brought supplies enough with them to last for weeks to come.

Present appearances do not indicate that the village may some day become the metropolis of the State of Arizona, but the inhabitants are an industrious lot and are laying the foundations of a thriving town.

BAPTIST BIBLE SCHOOL TEACHERS PLAN WORK

The first fall meeting of the teachers and officers of the First Baptist Bible school since last spring was held last night in the church. Plans for greater activity during the winter season were discussed. An interesting program was arranged for next Sunday's "Rally Day," when all departments will resume their sessions. Special features, aside from the promotions, will include selections by the Trumpet Trio, whom Plainfielders have been privileged to enjoy on several occasions, and William Holmes, baritone, will sing.

It was announced that the Probasco and Matlack Bible class rooms will be doubled in size to take care of the cramped conditions now prevailing. Mrs. A. J. Powlison reported that of the 200 children enrolled in the cradle and primary departments not one has suffered from infantile paralysis—a record to be thankful for. The resignation of Mrs. James L. Manning, after many years of service, was accepted with the deepest regret.

LITERARY

How America Has Profited by the War—The Problem of the Future.

During the twelve months ending with June, 1914, the last full year of peace, England bought $504,000,000 worth of goods in the United States; in the next twelve months she purchased $911,000,000, and in the twelve months ending with last June, not less than $1,518,000,000. But in the meantime her sales of merchandise to us which had been $233,000,000 in the fiscal year 1914, were only $308,000,000 two years later.

The final question, whether Europe—supposing continuance of governmental control over industry and production—will for that reason be a more formidable or less formidable competitor of our own industrial markets and our own. But in the tion. Much of it will depend on the obscure problem: What, in the aftermath of war, will be workmen's wages, labor costs, and the price of competitive materials on Europe's markets and our own. But in the meantime, the United States has entered the third year of the war with the largest internal trade of its history, the greatest production of steel and iron, the highest monthly surplus of exports over imports, and the largest gold importations ever known. —Alexander Dana Noyes, in the Financial World of the October Scribner.

TROOPS NOW HELD IN STATE CAMPS WILL ALL SEE BORDER SERVICE

Regiments In Many States Will Be Shifted South to Relieve Those Who Have "Done Their Bit."

Connecticut Officers Have a Great Adventure — Bugle Fools Indiana Trooper—Ohio Soldier Has a Nightmare.

ALL national guard organizations which have been held at state mobilization points since they were mustered into the federal service are scheduled to start for the Mexican border soon. Officials at Washington have indicated that they probably would go within two weeks.

Secretary of War Baker is determined that every guard unit shall undergo border service and training before it is discharged.

One thing may change this policy, though officials now think it will not. That is the lack of funds available for the transportation.

Exclusive of the North Carolina organizations, just ordered to the border, there are 18,000 guardsmen who have been held in their state camps.

A Wild Adventure.

Major George Rau and Captain Harry Ladbury of the First Connecticut infantry, which has just finished target practice on the rifle range at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., had a remarkable adventure the other night. They left camp after retreat, with revolvers, rifles and ammunition, and returned the next morning after breakfast looking so downcast and so forbidding that no one dared question them for a day or two. One story has it that the major drilled the Third battalion so hard that the captains conspired to have Ladbury lose him in the mountains, that the major refused to get lost and came back to drill them all the harder and that the captains were so terrified by his return that they gave him a dinner party to save themselves from court martial. The following version, which leaked out in spite of the silence of the major and the captain, seems now to be generally accepted:

Where's That Bear?

Captain Ladbury, who has been in Arizona before and knows all about it, reported the other day that he had seen two cinnamon bears about six miles north of the camp.

"I never hunted bear," said Major Rau, "but I'd like to."

"That's easy," said the captain. "The best time to get 'em is at the first streak of dawn. What do you say if we go out some night to be sure to be on the ground at daybreak and show up Teddy Roosevelt and all the rest of them?"

"You're on," said the major. So they went forth at night into the mountains. Here the narrative seems to become obscure. But one thing is certain, they didn't meet a bear—not a single, solitary bear. It was quite dark when they reached the spot which Captain Ladbury thought was the spot where he had seen the two cinnamons.

The Bears Slept Late.

Then they sought a place to sleep. Captain Ladbury said that an arroyo, with its sheltering walls and sandy bed, was as warm a place to sleep as any. They were saved the trouble of looking for an arroyo by the accident of falling into one. There they dug holes in the sand with their knives and hands and crawled in. Major Rau squirmed around, seeking a comfortable position. In doing so he loosened up the sand some more, and one of those little rivers that have mysterious ways of traveling underground came out of its bed and began to surround him.

In the middle of the night it got very cold, and they began searching for firewood.

It may have been 2 a. m. or it may have been 3 a. m. when they finally got a fire built, and they crawled into a couple of sand pockets beside the fire to sleep until dawn. Apparently the bears slept late that morning too.

"Never again!" said the major. But the captain said that bear hunting, like fishing, was largely a matter of luck, after all.

Fooled by Bugle Call.

Under the new taps order there are an hour and a half between tattoo and taps. Corporal John Hinesly of Company C, First Indiana infantry, encamped at Llano Grande, who is a contractor in Indianapolis, turned in a few minutes before taps the other night. He was awakened by the taps bugle and jumped out of his cot, thinking it was reveille call and that he had had a full night's sleep. He shook the men in his squad out of their sleep and hurried them out into the company street.

"Great Scott, it's dark this morning," said Hinesly.

"It's getting on in autumn," explained one of his squad.

Private Cecil Stahlnaker glanced at his watch.

"Hinesly, it's 11 o'clock," he informed the corporal. "That must have been taps you heard."

The corporal went into the next tent and woke up a man and verified Stahlnaker's information.

"Turn in, men," said the corporal. "We can sleep six hours and a half more."

They were so tickled that they waited until morning to growl about being awakened.

Private Alltop, Company I, First Indiana, who is a barber in Bloomington, is arranging for the transportation of his art gallery to the campus city. Alltop has the mesquite tree under which he shaves the Bloomington boys filled with photographs of himself and his fellow adventurers. Some of them show Alltop taking part in holdups on the border, and, while the men at Llano Grande suspect the holdup pictures were "staged," Alltop says he will have no trouble backing up the pictures with exciting details when he gets back.

Hundreds of Indiana soldiers obtained leave of absence for a half day or a day and visited the Terre Haute and Vincennes companies at the Mercedes Pump and Progreso. The Hoosiers on the Rio Grande say they would be willing to stay there all autumn. The men are better satisfied than at Llano Grande, they say.

A Border Nightmare.

A dog sleeping at the foot of your bed might not frighten you to death, but along the Mexican border it is different. At least Dewey Sigler of Troop A of Ohio, from Cleveland, broke up the sleep of the entire camp the first night along the Rio Grande when he thought his two-month-old collie was a tarantula.

Victory without a shot having been fired came to the First battalion of the Fifth Ohio infantry under Major H. W. Ulrich during the sham battle with a battalion from the Eighth Ohio. This made it "even up" for the day, as the Third battalion of the Fifth lost in the previous morning skirmish.

Troop A, Ohio cavalry, soon is to lose Lieutenant J. French Devereux of Cleveland, who has been detailed to the Eighth United States cavalry, where he is to take an examination for a commission.

Sergeant Ralph Upson of Akron of Battery B of the Ohio battalion of artillery expects to be soaring over the El Paso military camp soon. He is the skipper in charge of the military observation balloon presented to the Ohio artillerymen.

The Ohio battalion of engineers from Cleveland is in the midst of its drill work. These Clevelanders found plenty of room on the big mesa for their operations, although thousands of other troops were there. They have met sand, sagebrush and cactus and feel acclimated now.

The engineers have received sixty-four mules and ninety-nine horses. They have seen other organizations struggling with army mules and look forward to some excitement.

New Yorkers In Sham Battle.

Practically every soldier in the New York camp at McAllen marched out in battle array for a brigade sham battle on the north bank of the Rio Grande. All camp passes were suspended the night before, so that the soldiers would get a rest for the hard day of mock fighting.

The troops were out two days in their fighting formation. One battalion of the First cavalry and Company M of the Twenty-eighth infantry got under way for the Rio Grande. They tried to make their way to the river forts near Hidalgo as a "red" or Mexican rebel army, while General Lester, with the Seventh, Twelfth and Sixty-ninth regiments, tried to head them off. Squadron A fought against the First cavalry squadron as an opposing cavalry screen.

One feature of the big maneuver was that it took place over the most abominable roads that could be imagined.

Cavalry commanders actually fear for the lives of horses and men, as some of the sinkholes are from two to four feet deep and may easily break horses' legs and throw their riders. The ruined roads of the New York divisional maneuver grounds are in strong contrast to the fine roads around the camp of Minnesota and Indiana troops at Llano Grande.

The Second New York regiment has left for Camp Whitman, each battalion traveling independently with a combination baggage and passenger train to prevent separation of the men from their tentage and horses.

All the men of the Seventy-first regiment held as paratyphoid suspects went with the men of the Second. They will report to their own commander on arrival.

Takes Major's Body Home.

The body of Major Christopher N. Anderson of the Eighteenth Pennsylvania infantry, who died at the Fort Bliss hospital after a short illness, was escorted by his regiment to the station, where it was put on the train for his home city, Pittsburgh. Major Anderson was thirty-five years of age and in civil life an attorney. A fall from his horse due to weakness was the first indication of the seriousness of the attack of diabetes, from which death resulted.

Nurses From Iowa.

Thirteen Red Cross nurses are in Mercedes, and soon there will be thirty-six. Their service is voluntary, and most of them come from Sioux City, Ia. A dormitory in Mercedes has been obtained, and provisions are being taken to them from Llano Grande.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

Y. M. C. A. IS READY FOR A BUSY YEAR

Unusual Activity Planned for Winter Season Which Opens October 2.

Preparations are being made for the opening of all departments at the Young Men's Christian Association, and the present year bids fair to be one of unusual activity.

On Monday evening, October 2, a membership gathering will be held which will mark the beginning of activity in the social work. The main feature of this event will be a "frankfurter roast," and a number of very interesting and amusing "skits." The Young Women's Christian Association are to join in the festivities and will help to furnish the interest which will be open to all senior members of both organizations. The high school and employed boys groups are also invited.

The opening of the boys' work will take place in the afternoon of the same day. H. J. Center, the new boys' work secretary, will be in charge and every member in this department, and there are several hundred of them, is expected to be on hand, not only to enjoy the program, but to give a rousing welcome to Mr. Center.

The regular fall and winter schedule of the physical department, which will be inaugurated next week, will be ready for publication within a day or two. The usual careful attention will be given to the business men's class, and it is expected that a larger group than ever of business and professional men will take advantage of this healthful and recreative period.

The program for the religious work committee is not quite ready, but George E. Hall, chairman of the committee, states that some strong an unusual features will characterize the work during the opening months regarding both men's mass meetings and Bible study. The class in "The Life of Christ," led by W. D. Murray, will hold its first session for reorganization after the summer months on Thursday evening next at 8 o'clock in he Association auditorium, and the committee on religious work will meet Friday evening at the same hour.

Of course, the all-absorbing topic of interest is the coming building campaign to be held November 12 to 22.

TRY FOUR TIMES TO WRECK PASSENGER TRAIN

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 26.—An attempt was made today to wreck the Knoxville express, carrying 200 passengers on the L. and N., near Cythiank, Ky. Two railroad ties had been fastened to the track and when the train plunged through them the passengers were badly shaken up. The effort to wreck the train was made at a fifty foot embankment overlooking the river. It is the fourth attempt to cause wrecks in this vicinity in two weeks. The officials of five counties are endeavoring to discover the perpetrators.

NO MORE HIKES ALLOWED

from the tents today. Company A, of the Fifth, the outfit which was hit by the paratyphoid epidemic a fortnight ago, will probably be transferred back to its former quarters in a day or so. All of the afflicted men are well on the road to recovery and it is believed that the company can now be taken out of the isolation quarters with safety.

The Other Side.

"Married life," says a woman's page writer, "would be infinitely happier if married men would obey the whims of their wives with the alacrity they displayed when their wives were their sweethearts."

Why not make allowance for the fact that a bachelor isn't eternally worn out humoring his sweetheart's whimsical idea that there's a burglar in the house and hunting for him with a flashlight?—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Work of the Fireboats.

When a ship takes fire at its dock in any of the larger harbors in the country the fire department is, of course, notified. The call does not go first to the engine house nearest the fire, but to the fireboat nearest the fire. The boats are kept tied up at convenient points, always ready to depart on a moment's notice for any part of the harbor. Their pumps are operated from their own power plant, and since they pump sea water there is no limit to their range of activity.—Scientific American.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

Will you please explain the meaning of gravity, flash point, fire point and cold tests in testing the values of various grades of lubricating oils?

This instrument, carrying an arbitrary scale, when allowed to float freely in an oil or other liquid, sinks to a depth corresponding to the density of the liquid. The Baume gravity value is then read at the point where the surface of the liquid intersects the scale. The liquid is maintained at a constant temperature of 60 degrees F.

Specific gravity is the ratio of the weight of a solid or liquid substance to that of an equal volume of water.

Gravity is of secondary importance in judging the qualities of lubricating oils.

The flash point of an oil is the lowest temperature at which the vapors arising therefrom ignite, without setting fire to the oil itself, when a small test flame is quickly approached near its surface in a test cup and quickly removed. When an oil is used for the lubrication of internal combustion engines and thus exposed to severe heat it becomes imperative not to allow the flash point to drop much below 400 degrees F. This is a guarantee of efficiency and durability. Flash is indicative of an oil's suitability for such use. The fire point is the lowest temperature at which oil itself ignites from its vapors when a small test flame is quickly approached near its surface and quickly removed. Since the fire is always above the flash, the fire value becomes of minor importance when judging fresh oils for use in explosion motors.

The chill or cold test of an oil is the lowest temperature at which the oil will pour. This characteristic need only be taken into consideration because of its effect upon the free circulation of oil through exterior feed pipes, etc., where pressure is not applied. The cold test is in no way indicative of the lubricating or heat resisting qualities of an oil.

Color values of oils are determined by comparing their colors by transmitted light with the colors of standardized chromate solutions or with the colors of glass slides corresponding to these solutions. Color values are given for oil containers of different lengths, fitted with clear glass ends, depending upon the light or dark character of the oil. Thus "1000 inch" means that the oil sample has a value of 100 when viewed through a six inch container or cell. Color in no way indicates the quality or the durability of an oil. Neither does it show its suitability for any certain use.

What causes the popping in a carburetor when the mixture is too thin? Is it because of overlap in the exhaust and inlet valve so that there is a free passage from the carburetor to the burning gases in the exhaust manifold? Would it stop popping to turn back the cam shaft one or two teeth so that the valves no longer overlap?

Popping in the carburetor if the mixture is too thin is not caused by overlap. The speed with which a mixture of gasoline and air burns when ignited depends upon the richness. A weak mixture can be ignited by an electric spark, but will burn very slowly, thus at the end of the firing stroke the mixture, if very lean, will still be alight. It can remain lit throughout the exhaust stroke, so that when the inlet valve opens for the next suction there is still burning gas inside the cylinder. This flame immediately flashes back through the manifold into the carburetor.

Will you please explain what a spark knock is, how it is caused and how to remedy it? I have a car which has been run less than 5,000 miles and has developed quite a decided knock when accelerating or on hard pulls. I have been told that it is a spark knock which cannot be remedied.

If the charge is exploded before the piston has quite reached the top of the compression stroke it may produce a knock. Thus, if you advance the spark when the engine is running slowly the advanced spark can cause the explosion to take place too quickly.

In the case you mention the knock is almost certainly due to carbon in the cylinders or on the piston heads. A spark knock can always be cured by retarding the spark, but if the knock has developed only recently it is absolute proof that it is due to carbon.

I have a 1910 car which has magneto only for the ignition system. I find it difficult to start the motor, which did not trouble me last year. What is the trouble?

When starting on magneto the spark lever should be advanced. If this was done and your engine does not start easily, then clean and readjust the platinum points on circuit breaker. Since you have a 1910 car and have used it considerably, we would advise your having the magnets remagnetized.

What is meant by the tread of a car?

The tread of a car is the distance transversely from the center of the tire contacts on the left side to the center of the tire contacts on the right side. The standard tread of an automobile is fifty-six inches.

Persistent knocks are noticeable in my car when the engine is idle, also a little when the motor is pulling. They do not interfere with the power of the car, but are very annoying. Can you tell me what causes this?

Your trouble may be due to a loose connecting rod bearing, main bearing, wrist pin bearing, a piston slap, a pre-ignition knock, caused by carbon deposits in the cylinders, or the motor may be incorrectly timed. You must always locate the knock first, then look for a remedy. Try shorting the spark plugs in each cylinder while the motor is running. If a cylinder which is shorted pounds severely the connecting rod or wrist pin bearing is loose. If none of the cylinders knock any more than usual the trouble is probably caused by carbon, and it should be burned out or scraped out.

What would be considered a safe road clearance of axles without cutting down on the speed of the car by using small wheels?

Not much under nine and one-half inches for average roads.

Is there any objection to running the generator on a car with the battery disconnected?

With the ordinary type of shunt wound generator there must be a system of regulation to keep the current sufficiently low not to harm the windings. If the battery is disconnected the generator will build up a high voltage when the motor gathers speed, which is very liable to burn out the windings of the generator. When the motor is revolving the generator is stationary and thus no current is being produced. The starter cannot function without electrical current, and the only place it can get it is from the storage battery.

When an engine is equipped with the Bendix automatic starter drive why does it stop each time so that the relative positions of the two sets of teeth are the same—that is, the flywheel teeth engaging with the small gear at the same point every time?

The reason that the two sets of teeth always come to rest at the same position relative to each other is that a pendulum weight is used with the Bendix automatic starter drive construction. The purpose of this weight is to provide the necessary inertia in assuring the proper operation of the device, but its use also naturally results in the condition you describe when the gear on the Bendix shaft and the flywheel come to rest.

After running 5,000 miles in a year and a half and showing lack of power, I had the cylinders of my car reground and new and larger pistons put in, but this does not seem to improve the condition very much. Will power likely improve as the pistons get worn in, or should the engine show increased power at once?

Probably you have lowered the compression by increasing the combustion space due to enlarging the cylinder diameter without making any change in the valves to allow for the increased volume. This might reduce the power, but ordinarily that would be a small consideration. It might be that after the new pistons and rings have worked into the new cylinder walls properly the power will be increased.

Has a long stroke, small bore type motor any advantage over a short stroke, large bore type motor? If so, what are they?

The long stroke small bore motor is more economical in gasoline consumption. The volumetric efficiency is greater, inasmuch as a given piston displacement can be obtained with a smaller cylinder diameter. The small bore motor is of such a type that higher piston speed can be obtained than in a large bore motor, inasmuch as the reciprocating parts for a given piston displacement are lighter. Long stroke delivers more power with a given cylinder diameter than a short stroke motor, since the leverage applied to the crank shaft is greater.

Why are roller bearings not used in motors instead of babbitt bearings? I should think the roller bearings would produce less friction.

Extensive experiments have been conducted along this line, and it appears that the reason roller bearings or ball bearings have not been adopted is due to the fact that they will not stand up under the tremendous hammering action from the explosions and the consequent weave in the crank shaft.

Is there any advantage in a long stroke motor as compared with a short stroke one?

The long stroke motor is more economical and more powerful for a given bore.

The clutch of my car is a metal band type. How should I give this the proper care?

Metal to metal band clutches should be treated with graphite and oil. The graphite helps to form a glazed surface and prolongs the life of the clutch. When the desired adjustment is obtained and graphite is used your clutch should give no great trouble if properly aligned.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "guest" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant to be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

BUY IT IN PLAINFIELD

If YOU spend your money AT HOME with HOME MERCHANTS you get a second chance at that same old dollar; when that dollar goes out of town, it's—"Good-bye Mary."

A dollar is no "carrier pigeon." Send it away and it will never come back. Keep Plainfield made money in Plainfield.

Consider the power of a dollar when it is spent at home. It is like magic. It circulates—it pays off a hundred obligations—it creates business and puts people to work in this community. But the dollar sent away to an out-of-town house does nothing for Plainfield—it is dead to us—out of commission forever as far as we are concerned.

There are only two kinds of dollars—the "Dollar With Wings" and the "Development Dollar."

The "Dollar with Wings" flies away with a value that rightfully belongs to the home community. If spent with a Plainfield Merchant its value would stay with you and help to build up your interests.

The "Development Dollar" goes to build up Plainfield. It stays right here in our own community—it puts people to work here—builds roads and schools and churches and homes.

No matter what your position in life may be, some of its benefits "filter" down to you. "Letting George do it" is poor logic. We want YOU to cultivate the "Try Plainfield First" habit.

WORK FOR COMMERCIAL ORGANIZATIONS.

In another column of the Press of today is a news story to the effect that an established local industry is to move to another city soon because it is unable to find adequate floor space for necessary expansion, and because Plainfield will not or cannot provide a few acres of land where its products may be tested before they are delivered as finished articles. This statement is a challenge to the many local commercial organizations. The Business Men's Association, the Chamber of Commerce, the Board of Trade should jointly take up the needs of the Standard Aeroplane Company and, if they are reasonable, see that the industry is not lost to this city. Plainfield will never recover from the publicity that such a move must create. Its business men cannot honestly face a prospective factory builder with a recommendation for their home town after he has asked why the Standard Aeroplane Company was moved from here, provided it does move and for the reasons that have been advanced. Perhaps it will be impossible to prevent this concern moving to another city, but at least the commercial organizations will be ready to say that they did all in their power to meet conditions imposed by its directors. These conditions were printed in the Press in June, and so far as can be learned no action has been taken by local business men. They have only a short time in which to get busy.

There is yet time for those who did not vote in today's primary to exercise this privilege—a privilege yet also a duty of citizenship The polls will be open until 9 o'clock this evening, and no man is so busy but that he can find the time necessary to cast a ballot. The direct primary has been given to the people at great cost. It is an expensive preliminary to election contests, and there is incumbent upon every legal voter a share in the responsibility of making the primary choice really expressive of the wishes of the people. Your part is to cast one vote for the men you think best qualified for the offices to which they aspire. Did you forget it?

.· Plainfield Theatre. ·.

A laugh a second from start to finish is the verdict for the vaudeville program presented by Manager Shannon at the Plainfield Theatre this afternoon, tonight and tomorrow. This afternoon's audience passed upon the show and from every one who witnessed the performance one heard only the highest praise. "The Twelve Scotch Lads and Lassies" head the bill. It is a pretty attraction which appeals to the public and is bound to take honors during the two days' stay. Twelve Scotch beaux and belles from the land of the heather present a most entertaining respite of native songs and dances, clad in the native Highland costumes.

Another act which caused prolonged applause and was a riot of fun in itself was the sketch entitled "The Wanderer," featuring H. W. Anderson and A. C. Evans. The author of the play is J. C. Fitzpatrick, the well known comedy writer. The time of the production is Christmas Eve and the place is the top floor of a students' boarding house in Paris. Mr. Anderson portrays the part of "Michael." The wanderer and Mr. Evans' characterization of "Peter" Clancy" caused much merriment. The play is different and a surprise is in store for all who visit the playhouse.

Other numbers on the bill include Hale, Houson and Company, who demonstrate a variety of features; the Rogers Sisters, in a musical presentation; and Girard and Dixon, comedians, singers and dancers.

The bill is rounded out with several Pathe comedies and dramas, featuring popular film actors and actresses and the well known Pathe Weekly, a pictorial of current happenings.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

See Lillian Russell.

When I was young and in my prime,
And that is lookin' back some time,
A woman who was forty-five
Looked like she hardly was alive.
She wore a cap and set around
And knit and gazed down at the ground.
At fifty she would dress in black
And look like the back end of a hack.
But, nowadays, when she's seventy,
A woman's purty fair to see.
She wears them corsets called "straight fronts,"
And does a lot of funny stunts.
Is she prim? Yes, she is not.
For she kin do the new fox trot.
Instid of waitin' fer to die,
She's purty frisky and right spry.
She has no time to sit and knit;
She's no intention fer to quit
This sad and mournful vale of tears
And keeps on knocking off the years.
Instid of ploddin' up life's ridge
She's off somewhere a-playin' bridge,
Or with the young folks at some dance,
And waltzin' when she has a chance.
It's pleasant that this can be told;
The women nowadays don't grow old.

Uncle Abner

Anybody who sympathizes with the Turks in their war and wants to sacrifice his life to help 'em kin do so by smoking Turkish cigarets.

Bud Hicks of our town has been accused of every crime in the calendar, but there must be some good in him, for he has never been caught wearing a red necktie.

When suffrage becomes ekel and a lot of purty women git to favoring any candidate, it ain't going to hurt his chances an awful lot.

When you hear any feller say that he never had the slightest desire to raise chickens you kin make up your mind—but what's the use? There ain't any such feller.

Two things are necessary if a feller wants to die rich. One is to make a lot of money and the other is to hang onto it.

A Few Accidents.

The Cooperville Observer says:

"Bill Mutton came near being killed Friday while shaving a sheep on his ranch. Just as he had about finished the sheep gave a sudden jerk, pulling the wool over Bill's eyes and preventing him from seeing a streak of lightning that was headed in his direction at a two-forty gait. Bill reckons he would have been killed outright if his wife hadn't seen his danger and ran out to where he was, kicking him aside just as the lightning turned the last corner.

"While feeding his mule Monday, Abe Cornflake got a severe pain in his right side. Looking to find out where the pain came from, he discovered that the mule had kicked him, landing both hooks above the vest pocket. Abe swears hereafter he will always look before he feels the pain."

Making Arrangements.

This farmer lived in a lonely place down in Southern Michigan and eventually the Kalamazoo interurban was run through.

The farmer one day set a signal and the flier drew up. But he did not climb aboard.

"Well, get on!" shouted the conductor, "get on, can't ye?"

"Excuse me," said the farmer. "I dont want to get on. I only want to say that you are to stop here at this time tomorrow as my wife is going to town to do some shopping."

The Pessimist.

A pessimist, says the Centralia (Mo.) Courier, is a queer fellow. He couldn't be much else, because he is a pessimist. He borrows your horse and then kicks at his gait. He begs a cigar and then complains of its quality. He profits from the prosperity of his town and then gives it a kick. He listens to a $5 sermon and then drops a nickel in the collection plate. In the height of prosperity he sees nothing ahead but gloom. He gloats over his intrigues and rails at the frailties of his neighbors. He was born with a grouch, lives the life of a grouch and turns hell into a realm of grouch.

Such Is Life.

"Every time I see you, you're loaded down with bundles. Are you running a private parcel post?"

"Something like that. You see, we're living in the country now, and it's up to me to bring home fresh eggs and vegetables from the city."

- Proctor's Theatre -

Karston Bernick, the leading character of Ibsen's "Pillars of Society," a part played by Henry Walthall in the Triangle picturization which appears at Proctor's today as the feature offering, is one of the most extraordinary villains in dramatic literature. Almost to the end of the play you see him as a leading citizen, respected, successful, shrewd and a large giver to charity, a man of evident polish and dignity. But through it all you glimpse the cloven hoof through a multitude of subtle touches. In reality he is an arch-hypocrite, a financial pirate, a murderer at heart and a voluptary, but like villains in real life, he has his tender, human spot. He is devoted to his small son and thereby hangs an important part of the story. A less gifted dramatist would have been afraid to allow so many excellences to his "heavy," but in Ibsen's skilful hands the character grows in sinister power by reason of these very excellences. To have screened this masterpiece was a daring and a worthy undertaking. Additional subjects at Proctor's today include the latest Keystone comedy and the second episode of "The Grip of Evil."

On every day throughout the rest of the week a double feature program will be viewed by patrons of Proctor's, the bill tomorrow consisting of Virgina Pearson in "Daredevil Kate," and June Carpenter in her second Fox vehicle, "Little Miss Happiness." On Thursday Thomas H. Ince will present Bessie Barriscale and Charles Ray in "Home," and William A. Brady will introduce Holbrook Blinn and Ethel Clayton in "Husband and Wife," while a Keystone comedy will complete the bill.

On Friday the presentation of First Run Paramount pictures in Plainfield will be inaugurated and thereafter these famous productions will appear every Friday and Saturday, a big double feature program being presented on both these days. On this Friday Leonore Ulrich will introduce first run Paramount picture to Proctor patrons by appearing in "The Heart of Paula," while in addition E. K. Lincoln and Frances Nelson will be seen in the Brady production, "The Almighty Dollar." On Saturday Paramount offers Victor Moore and Anita King in "The Rose," and Viola Dana appears in "The Flower of No Man's Land," a Metro feature.

BACK, JACK DALTON, YOU SHALL NOT HARM ME CHE-E-E-ILD!
By BRINKERHOFF.

AUTUMN DAYS WITH TROOP D AT DOUGLAS

By JAMES J. McNAMEE.

Douglas, Ariz., Sept. 21.—Private Jack McElroy gets three big fat letters each day from a certain somebody in Sea Girt. Jack takes one before each meal and proudly boasts that this practice has increased his appetite one hundred per cent. since landing in Arizona. And despite all this he is one of the chief rooters for an early return.

Private Fred Walsh was the busiest man in camp Wednesday, showing a couple of guards the best and easiest way to pile up wood and pick up papers around the camp streets.

During the absence of the troop the guard left to take care of D street has been dining in Troop B's headquarters. It's the first opportunity that the Troop D men have had to compare their own meals with another outfit's, and they will all be willing to return to the D mess hall as soon as the rest of the troop lands back in camp. The fact that the Plainfield troop's chow is superior to that of any outfit in camp was forcibly impressed upon them.

Troop B has three veterans of note on its roster. Corporal Emil Grosshauser and Cook Charles Duclo served side by side in the Spanish-American War, the former as a member of the Eighth Cavalry and the latter as a member of the Tenth Infantry. Both have proven themselves valuable soldiers in the Plainfield division, as has also Supply Sergeant John Foster Sickler, a Spanish-American War "vet."

Because they neglected to sign the pay bills for the month of August Captain Borden and Lieutenants Charles and Runkle will have to go without their money salary from Uncle Sam's treasury until the middle of October. It's one safe bet that none of the $15 a month privates would make this mistake.

Trooper George Hummel has been turned into mule "skinner." The job is a new one to George, but he is discharging it in such fine shape that the rest of the outfit is seriously considering letting him have it as a permanent detail, partly because it's one of the hardest jobs in camp and partly because he has shown such efficiency.

After a series of disappointments and delays Sergeant Donald A. McGee is planning to leave camp for Fort DuPont tomorrow. He believed at first that matters could be checked up so that he could go straight to Plainfield, but found at the last minute that it would be necessary for him to waste an extra day in visiting Fort Du Pont. He is one of the most popular officers of the troop, and it is with keen regret that the soldiers see him severing connections with the outfits.

Private Brown has cultivated one of the classiest limps in camp. In fact he has become so proficient at it that a couple of snipers the other morning caught him walking without it, all of which called for an explanation.

Posters and tickets announcing the candidacy of Colonel William B. Martin, a former Plainfielder, for a Union county office, arrived in camp today and are now on exhibition. The colonel neglected to designate on his cards whether or not he favored an early return of the National Guard, and the soldiers here are anxious to find out how he stands on this question before endorsing him.

The deserted village never had anything on the cavalry headquarters in its present condition. The few troopers who were left home from the hike will be glad when Saturday comes and the remainder of the outfit returns.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

A Mermaid And a Prince Have a Talk.

The Prince Took Her In His Arms.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

JACK and Evelyn sat as still as mice on two little stools while daddy told them a story about a little mermaid who once saved a prince's life and then fell in love with him:

"Day by day the little mermaid became dearer to the prince. He loved her as one loves a sweet, good child. But it never entered his head to make her his queen. Yet unless she became his wife she could never gain an immortal soul, but on his wedding day turn into sea foam. This was the spell the sea witch had cast, you see, when she turned the mermaid's tail into legs.

"One day the little mermaid's eyes said to the prince, 'Am I not dearer to you than any of them?'

"Her eyes were her only power of speech, you see, for the sea witch had kept her tongue.

"The prince took her in his arms and kissed her beautiful white forehead. 'Yes; you are the dearest one to me,' he said, 'for you have the best heart of all and you are the fondest of me. You are like a young girl I once saw, but never expect to meet again. I was on board a ship which was wrecked. I was driven on shore by the waves close to a holy temple where several young girls were holding a service. The youngest of them found me on the beach and saved my life. I saw her but twice. She was the only person I could love in this world. But you are like her. You almost drive her image out of my heart. She belongs to the temple. Therefore good fortune has sent you to me. We will never part.'

"'Alas, he does not know that it was I who saved his life!' thought the little mermaid. 'It was I who bore him through the angry waves and put him safely on the sands by the temple steps. I sat behind the foam and waited to watch for some one to come and save him. I saw the pretty girl he loves so much better than he does me.

"'The girl belongs to the temple, he says, and will never return to the world. They will never meet again. I am here with him. I see him every day. Yes; I will tend him, love him and give up my life for him.'

"But soon the rumor spread that the prince was to be married to the beautiful daughter of a neighboring king. For the celebration a splendid ship was being fitted out. The news was given out that the prince was going on a voyage to nearby countries. But beyond doubt it was to visit the beautiful daughter of the neighboring king," daddy finished.

Training a Husband

The Baby Starts Some Teeth, Thus Giving Morris Another Opportunity to Grumble.

"What in the world is the matter with that child? Am I to be kept awake all night?" Morris Southy rolled over with his back to the light. Marian had risen and was preparing to take the child.

"You know he has been far from well all day. He seems to have some fever." She felt the little head.

"It is probably his teeth. It is safe to bet on teeth when a baby yells in the night," growled Morris.

Marian took the child and the lamp and left the room. Morris fell into a doze in which he dimly heard the wailing of the baby. After a while it stopped and it seemed far into the night when he was awakened by her returning to bed.

"Why, you are cold," he exclaimed, feeling of her hands. "Why in the world don't you wrap yourself up when you get up in the night. You will get cold. Do you want to make yourself sick?"

"I forgot my bathrobe and I didn't want to wake you again by coming back to get it." Marian shivered a little under the covers.

"Nonsense! When will you learn to take care of yourself?" Morris tucked in the covering and held her close to get her warm.

"What seems to be the matter with the baby?" Morris was awake enough to take some interest in the child's health.

"He may have been cold. His feet were uncovered."

"Uncovered?"

"He had kicked his socks off. I heated the hot water bottle and gave him some of the medicine the doctor left when he saw him last," drowsily replied Marian.

"Why, I thought you said he had fever," scoffed Morris.

"I was mistaken, I guess, for his hands were moist and his feet cold."

"I guess his fever is mostly a figment of your imagination," loftily replied her husband.

"Do let's go to sleep. You can lecture me on my shortcomings by daylight." Marian was dead for sleep for the baby had kept her awake for several nights and there was never a chance to sleep in the daytime with all the multitudinous cares of her household weighing her down.

It seemed to Marian that she had only just closed her eyes when she was awakened by the young man demanding his morning feeding. She stole out of the room, for Morris must have his rest, as so much depended on his keeping well. When the bottle was prepared she placed baby and bottle in the buggy and curling up on the couch with a blanket pulled over her she was soon dead to the world. The bottle tumbling out onto the floor wakened her. She rose and forced herself to begin the day's work.

Morris was unusually good natured that morning. He must have had a pretty good night in spite of the baby's disturbance. He picked the little fellow up and holding him on his knee began to investigate the tooth question.

"Let's see what the prospect is for sleep tonight, you little beggar. You seem happy enough now, even if you did keep your poor mother up half the night." He felt of the gums in the little mouth.

"It was teeth all right," he called to Marian as she brought in the coffee. "His gums are swollen as hard as marbles. This one will be through in a day or so. Then maybe we can have a night's rest." Marian smiled at the "we," but she said nothing.

"I suppose he really thinks he has lost some sleep," she thought. Aloud she said:

"Let's hope the worst is over. Maybe I can have dinner on time today."

THE WELL DRESSED BOY.
By Mary Glynn.

What's more interesting than this little suit with its coat modeled after the style of smart men's wear? If the boy objects to bare knees, let him wear stockings. But now that the Scotch soldiers are distinguishing themselves so much in the real fighting at the front, the bare knee is recognized as typical of strength and manliness, and so many boys will wear socks all winter.

OFFICAL MINUTES OF THE BOARD OF CHOSEN FREEHOLDERS OF UNION COUNTY.

A special meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County was held at the Court House, Elizabeth, N. J., on Monday, September 18th, 1916, at 3 p. m., for the purpose of considering the matter of the application for a summary investigation of the financial affairs of the County of Union in the State of New Jersey.

Director Cady called the meeting to order with the following members present:

Director Cady and Freeholders Brokaw, Buckle, Darby, Gehring, Hall, Haviland, Jones, Marsh, McMane, Meisel, Randolph, Smith, Thompson, Wilbur, Noah Woordruff and John Woodruff. Absent—Freeholders Applegate, Krouse, Perry and Teller.

At 3:30 p. m., the board reassembled with the same members present.

Report of Special Commitee.

Whereas, At a meeting of this board, held on August 3rd, 1916, a motion was made by Freeholder Elias F. Applegate to the effect that a committee be appointed with power to employ a road expert engineer at fifty dollars a day to investigate and report on the subject of County roads built in the County of Union; and in support of this resolution said Freeholder offered report of Dow and Smith, on the construction of Westfield avenue, Bayway, Elizabeth to Locust street, Roselle Park, South avenue in the Township of Fanwood and St. George avenue from the city line of Elizabeth to Grand street, Rahway, all of which were built under the supervision of the road department of the State of New Jersey and in accordance with the specifications approved and furnished by it, this resolution being lost; and

Whereas, subsequently at a meeting of this board held September 7th, 1916, a special committee of the board was appointed to investigate and report to this board on the subject of road contracts; and

Whereas, since the passage of said last mentioned resolution, the officers of this board have been served with a notice of an application to be made before Justice Bergen for the appointment of a commission for a summary investigation of the County of Union as provided by Statute and his application alleging that the specifications for the construction of roads have not been complied with, said application citing and referring to the same three roads hereinebefore mentioned, which were built under State supervision and State specifications; and

Whereas, while this board has no desire to hinder any investigation which the Court may deem proper into the affairs of the County of Union but on the contrary will in view of the charges made, welcome any such proper investigation; it feels that such summary investigation is unwarranted and will entail large unnecessary expenses upon the taxpayers; therefore be it

Resolved, That the aforesaid Special Committee appointed by this board on September 7th, and its attorneys, be and are hereby directed to appear before the Court at the time and place fixed in the notice aforesaid and assist the Court in arriving at its conclusion by furnishing such facts and information as may be desired by the Court and that said Committee urge upon the Court the importance of requiring bond from the petitioners to meet the expenses which may be incurred in case an investigation is ordered;

Further Resolved, That the said Special Committee shall have the power to employ counsel and incur such other expenses as may be necessary in its judgment.

James F. Buckle, Burton P. Hall, Noah Woodruff, William I. McMane, Bradford Jones, committee.

On motion by Freeholder Smith this report was received and ordered placed on file and the recommendations contained therein were on roll call adopted unanimously.

On motion by Freeholder Wilbur the Director declared the board adjourned.

NEWS AND VIEWS
Conducted by THE W. C. T. U.

Liquor organs are making much of the fact that a considerable quantity of liquor is shipped into the States of Washington and Oregon under the permit system. It goes without saying that until we have National Prohibition no State law will prove absolutely impervious to the attacks of the professional law-breakers born of the liquor traffic and nurtured by those whose business in life is to make and sell booze. It is a difficult matter to rid the States at once of the spawn of a system devised merely to restrict, regulate and permit outlawry. Nations like individuals must suffer the consequences when they dally with sin. "Can a man take coals into his bosom and not be burned? Or can one handle pitch and not be defiled?" The liquor traffic has always promoted criminality in its every phase. Can the leopard change his spots? It is only to be expected that this age-old outlaw will make every possible endeavor to break down and bring into disrepute everywhere the prohibitory law. The county of King and the city of Seattle, Wash., are hailed by the liquor press and sympathizers as furnishing the most brilliant example of the ineffectiveness of prohibition under the permit system. Each month the total number of permits issued and the quantity of liquors supposed to have been imported under such permits are heralded with appropriate comments intended to emphasize the repeated assertion that "More liquor is drunk under prohibition than under license," etc., etc.

May we inquire if any one ever knew of any of these people who are now so horrified or delighted "over the failure of prohibition," publishing or causing to be published any estimate of the quantity of liquor sold in the saloons of any city or State under license? Or of the number of drunks arrested under license? Or the number of wife-beaters jailed or otherwise deprived of liberty and the pursuit of happiness because of drink? Were they in the habit of publishing such statistics?

Not to the knowledge of this writer were they ever guilty of giving publicity to such facts. But with what glee do they now quote permit figures!

However, there are others who know a thing or two about the matter and they have been and still are in position to know exactly whereof they speak. Mayor Gill, of Seattle, in a recent law-enforcement mass meeting made the following statement:

"One of Seattle's five breweries delivered more booze to Seattle homes in a day, when the State was wet, than comes through in a month under the permit system. There were 315 saloons, thirty-five wholesale liquor houses and five breweries getting rid of booze in Seattle before the dry law went into effect. The permit system in a month is not responsible for as much booze distribution here as one brewery would have in a day. When they tell you that the prohibition law is a failure and worthless, I want to tell you that it is worth a thousand times more than the big money opposing it."

The city of Seattle, according to an ordinance passed by the city council, is now operating under the most drastic regulations ever attempted in Washington or perhaps in any State.

Under the new ordinance both the sale, purchase or giving away of liquor without a permit or authorized prescription will be unlawful. Drinking in safes or any public resort is taboo, and the possession of a bottle of liquor without the druggist's green label upon it is a violation of law.

Regarding these new regulations Mayor Gill said: "I think there will be a great deal less liquor used. The big stocks laid in before January 1 are just about depleted and we are having less trouble now in our efforts to stop bootlegging. The new ordinance is going to make it very unpopular for any one to do any promiscuous drinking in public."

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Infantile Paralysis.

The first symptoms of infantile paralysis are usually a fever, vomiting and pains in the head, back and limbs. One should be suspicious if intestinal disturbances of almost any kind are associated with a stiff neck, drowsiness and fever. Known exposure to other cases of the disease should cause suspicion, and suspicion should by all means be followed by a visit to the doctor.

There are several important things to be done to prevent the disease. First of all, one should avoid all known or suspected cases of the disease. Flies of all kinds should be absolutely excluded from the house and from all food. Persons, cats, dogs and pets who have been in any way exposed to the disease should be avoided. Sick cats should be especially avoided. The mouth, teeth and nose should be washed several times daily. Finally, keep just as strong, robust and healthy as possible.

THE MASSACRE—NINE REELS.

Movie News:—Director General Thomas Apgar, of the Dunellen Motion Picture Corporation, put his forces through nine reels of strenuous labor on Avon Oval Sunday afternoon. Director James Scott, of the rival corporation, made an effort to secure favorable scenes but was forced to drag through nine reels of tiresome comedy. The leading men in the thriller were John Dixon and James Emery, assisted by a capable corps of expert assistants. The picture will never be shown.

JACK MARTIN THROUGH.

According to the Milwaukee newspapers, Jack Martin is about through as manager of the Brewer baseball team. Jack will remain a member of the club, however, and will play at his old position, shortfield. The reason why Martin will not be manager next year has been partially assigned by the president of the Milwaukee club. He says that Jack is aware of the fact that he was appointed only temporary manager of the team. Naturally, Jack knew that little thing when he started. But a man is entitled to ambitions and, perhaps, one of Martin's ambitions was to lead the Milwaukee club. Timme states that he would like to have a player with major league experience at the helm. Also, he says that a player with major league friends might have a better chance of securing first call on talent. All of which might be true enough. But this much is certain: Jack Martin has done as well with the Brewers as Harry Clark did this year. The trouble with President Al Timme seems to be inattention to the playing wants of the club of which he is owner.

UMPIRES MISS 'EM.

Several loud protests against the decisions handed down by local umpires during the season just past—and passing—have reached our ears. It is said, in some circles, that the umpires deliberately cheat. That's all nonsense. There is no local umpire, of any repute, who would stoop to such tactics. The umpires are human and make mistakes as well as we do. The contention that these mistakes are intentional is all wrong, and the argument that the umpires are infallible is also "all wrong."

DAVE BERSE TO THE FRONT.

Dave Berse, according to his brother, is going to try for athletic honors at Rutgers Prep. Dave is going to enter the New Brunswick institution in a few days and will, ultimately, be enrolled as a student at Rutgers College. He is a basketball player of considerable ability. Ambition is his middle name. The combination of ability and ambition usually results in success. Therefore, the logical conclusion is that Dave Berse is heading straight toward "Success." Congratulations, David, congratulations.

WHY JAMSIE SMILES.

A fan who attended the greusome walkover at Avon Oval on Sunday was heard to remark that when the Tabs win "Jim Scott smiles—the golden smile," but that when the Tabs lose "Jamsie frowns." Now, isn't that too cute for anything? Another fan remarked that Connie Mack was like Scott in that respect. It certainly must be a long time since Connie had a good laugh.

RIP VAN WINKLE AWAKENS.

Old Rip Van Winkle is no longer a sleeper. Scotch Plains has revived the old baseball spirit and will endeavor to make Jim Scott's Tabs wish that the word "revival" was obsolete. Joe Alberts has harkened to the call of the city fathers and has promised to get together a team that will put Scotch Plains on the map once more—or rather, put it on the railroad timetable. The Union county village, Elizabeth, according to expert advice we have received, is going to have a hand in the rejuvenation. Henny Alberts—"Hen-yah"—is going to be there. Henny looks somewhat like Hughey Jennings. In fact, the two differ in that Henny is "Hen-yah" while Hughey is "E-yah." The battle will be started promptly.

PRINCETON'S HOPES.

"It is a bit too early to judge what theory of campaign will be followed at Princeton this year in football. Last year it appeared to observers that Rush had hit upon an extremely sound plan. This consisted of a defensive game based primarily on long, accurate punting and every possible effort for following the ball closely. This was a sort of "watchful waiting" idea, permitting the other eleven to do the hard work and waiting for the "break" to come, after which the Tiger would strike, either by field goal, runs from the kick formation, or by means of the forward pass.

"This policy worked finely, a victory over the Dartmouth eleven being the crowning achievement. To the surprise of everyone this plan seemed to be thrown to the winds in the Harvard game, and an old-fashioned Princeton attack of a wearing, futile sort was used in place of the other idea. Of course, it stood no chance against the finished Harvard product. A week later, against Yale, the Tigers were further away from their early season ideals and played a technically bad game that permitted the weaker Yale eleven to triumph.

"Why this upset of plans happened is not clear, but possibly it was due to a collapse of Glick's generalship, and perhaps because of a loss of faith in the general policy. Certainly, the waiting game calls for great faith, but it is usually sound. What Princeton will do this year is of deep interest."—Newark Call.

ALEXANDER SOME PITCHER.

"That fellow Alexander is getting a reputation as a fairly good pitcher. He led the National League last year, pitched the Phillies into their first championship in a generation, has pitched fifteen shutout games this year, and yesterday performed an "iron man" stunt by heaving both games against Cincinnati. He won the first tilt, 7 to 0, and then weakened to such an extent that the Reds were shut out 4 to 0 in the second. Using their prize pitcher in both games means that it is a case of "Pike's Peak or bust" in the Phillies' desperate effort to land the pennant."—Newark Call.

TENNIS TOURNEY TO RECEIVE EARLY START

Competition for Princeton Cup May Find Wardlaw School Prominent.

As soon as school opens next Monday plans for the annual tennis tournament of Plainfield High School will be formulated. It is understood that those interested in the movement have already started preliminary operations and that several of the fellows who expect to capture honors have been practicing diligently for some time.

Among those who will compete for the title, the following are the more important: Burnham Carter, Everett Case, Phil Mills and Wright McAneny. It is thought that the champion will be "picked" from this band. That an unusually large number of aspirants to tennis honors will respond to the call, is the belief of those who are promoting the plan. Last year it was necessary to use all of the courts of the Plainfield Country Club.

The competition for the Princeton cup will have to commence as soon as is possible. The delayed opening of school necessitates this move. Last year Rodman Parvin, of Plainfield High School, captured the honors. Parvin does not attend school any longer and Plainfield High will have to depend on McAneny, Case or Mills to annex the honors. Leal's school, of course, will not be represented in the competition. The Wardlaw school will, undoubtedly, take an active part in the affair and, perhaps, may assume an important role in the athletic activities of local scholastic institutions.

IMPERIAL BOWLERS CHOOSE A MANAGER

The regular monthly meeting of the Imperial Club was held in the clubrooms last evening, when the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, C. I. Smalley; vice president, John P. Connolly; secretary-treasurer, G. N. Gates. The club will hold a smoker some time during the coming month.

Plans for the coming bowling season were discussed at the meeting last night and John P. Connolly was appointed manager of the team. Considerable sentiment in favor of a City Bowling League was evinced at the gathering. The following members are eligible for a league team, should one be organized: John Miller, Eddie Conshay, W. Conover, George Conover, A. Voorhees, G. Lewis, A. Luthman, E. Luthman, Nate Lee, E. Squires, J. McKenzie, N. Jonap, C. Van Zandt, J. P. Connolly, E. Schroeller, George N. Gates and Frank Swody.

Navy.

Navy's football practice started in real earnest, but was marked by only rudimentary work, which was followed by a scrimmage. There was a brief line up in which two touchdowns were scored by the varsity against the scrubs.

Two backfield combinations were tried by the coaches. Roberts of last year's Colgate varsity, who is now at the academy, and Orr, a "sub" of the sailor craft of 1916, were tested out at the quarter. Both showed up well and it was evident that the new man, while holding a reputation, is not going to get by with that alone.

The time from now to the Dickinson game on Saturday will see a thorough test of every bit of available material.

Princeton.

John Rush expressed himself at a meeting of the coaches and players as dissatisfied with the manner in which the various formations were run off in a lengthy scrimmage Saturday. As a result, most of the day was given over to perfecting the plays criticized.

It was typical November football weather at Lake Minnewaska, and the heavy army blankets were made use of for the first time. Driggs was back in harness, and with Brown, Moore and Ames made up the first backfield in the scrimmage. Mike Charles was used for a while at left guard in the place of Bob Nourse, and succeeded in breaking not only all the plays that were directed at his side of the line, but many on the opposite side.

Harvard.

The Harvard football players went back to first principles yesterday, the coaches keeping them at the blackboards for an hour, then sending them out for a long session at the tackling dummies. The signal drill did not come until after all the men had been coached individually by the specialists. As a result of the Colby game two changes were made in the lineup, Caner, a substitute tackle last year, being placed on the left wing in place of Lovell, and Phinney, a very promising end from last year's freshmen, replacing Likens on the left wing.

"Tacks" Hardwick made his first appearance as coach for the backfield while Felton took the kickers in hand. Harvard's freshman squad reported yesterday and there is some unusually promising material among the seventy-five candidates.

Fordham.

In the football practice at Fordham yesterday Head Coach Gargan picked eleven players for the varsity and lined the first team against the scrubs. This was the first real battle on the Maroon gridiron this season, and no effort was made to spare the players.

"Red" Mulcahy was taken from the sick list and used at guard on the scrubs, where his defensive worth was apparent. Greney, a tackle on the scrubs, smashed up the varsity plays directed at him. He was a second string lineman at Syracuse last year.

Connolly, who practiced an end position on the second team, proved a hard man to down. He was an end last season on the freshman eleven at Syracuse.

McNamara seems to be a slight favorite for the quarterback position. He directed the varsity, while Morcaldi handled the scrubs.

Ryan, Morcaldi and McNamara spent an hour at drop kicking and split even in the attempts from the 35-yard line.

Matty Golden, last season's quarterback, reported and has put on weight. He was light last year and often injured.

PINOCHLE TOURNEY AT DOMINO CLUB

Four Teams Will Enter Competition This Year, According to Report.

The annual auction pinnochle tournament conducted by residents of North Plainfield will be started in a short time. As was the case last year, much time is being consumed in the arrangement of the schedule. It is expected that the four teams that were entered last year will compete again this year.

Chief William McCullough is busily engaged in rounding up his men, preparatory to entering the North Plainfield fire department team in the competition. Edwin Gaub's barber shop outfit, which, incidentally, won the tourney last year, will compete again this season as will the Domino Club. Andrew Carney is the person to whom all disputes are submitted. What Mr. Carney says is accepted as final. The games will be played in the rooms of the Domino Club.

EXPECT TO ORGANIZE CROSS COUNTRY TEAM

Coach John Noll, of Plainfield High School Gets Busy.

John Noll, coach of the Plainfield High School track athletics, expects to have a cross-country team this year. Coach Noll will arrange matches with track squads of other scholastic institutions.

At the present time, the prospects of a first-class track team looks "rosy." Bill Daniels and Wilson Field will be the mainstays of the squad in the distance runs and in the dashes, while Pete McDonough can be counted upon to render them valuable assistance. Hand and Monrie O'Donnell, undoubtedly, will also be candidates for honors. Francke, as a pole vaulter, is considered a "comer" and may arise o the heights attained by Ralph Runyon.

AID ROAD CELEBRATION.

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 26.—The Sheridan road celebration today, for which preparations have been going forward for several months, had as one of its leading features an exchange of greeting between Governor Dunne, of Illinois, and Governor Phillips, of Wisconsin, who met on the highway at the boundaries of Kenosha county. Following a short program of addresses the two executives were escorted to Kenosha by a large party of automobilists. The chief purpose of the celebration was to promote a public interest in the project for a magnificent roadway to connect Chicago and Milwaukee.

WESTFIELD WOMEN WIN IN METROPOLIS

Miss Marie Wagner Only New York Player Able to Win.

Notwithstanding that Miss Marie Wagner, eastern New York champion, captained and led the Hamilton Grange women's tennis team yesterday, the Westfield Golf Club team was able to score decisively in all the matches on Washington Heights. Miss Wagner was the ony member of the home team who was able to win in the singles. She defeated Mrs. A. G. Deane, 6—2, 6—0 in the outstanding struggle of the day. Miss Wagner's cleverly placed drives through the deep court were too well timed for Mrs. Deane. It was a most interesting contest, as the visiting New Jersey player fought desperately to stall off defeat.

Team Match—Westfield vs. Hamilton Grange (singles)—Miss Marie Wagner defeated Mrs. A. G. Deane, 6—2, 6—0; Miss Helen McAuslan defeated Miss Edith A. Bagg, 6—5, 7—5; Miss Hazel Gardiner defeated Mrs. Bernard Stenz, 6—2, 8—6.

Doubles—Mrs. S. W. McAreny and Miss Gardiner defeated Mrs. Stenz and Mrs. Paul E. Mead, 7—5, 6—2; Miss Wagner and Miss Bagg defeated Miss McAuslan and Mrs. Deane, 6—2, 6—1.

GIANTS SET RECORD.

Just thirty-two years ago this month Charley Radbourne and a few other worthy workers playing with Providence of the National League completed a victorious baseball march around the country that left the fans astonished. Struggling against every other club in the league this historical aggregation established a record of twenty straight victories, eighteen of which were pitched by the great and only Radbourne. This feat remained on the baseball records unapproachable and unattainable until yesterday, when the revived, reconstructed and revitalized Giants swept it from the boards by completing a string of twenty-one still unbroken consecutive citories.

ANDERSON TO MEET FULTON.

Eau Claire, Wis., Sept. 26.—A contest between the heavyweight fighters, Fred Fulton, of Minnesota, and Andre Anderson, of Chicago, is to be the chief attraction at the boxing show arranged for tomorrow night by a local sporting club. While Fulton has much the bigger reputation of the two, the supporters of Anderson express confidence in his ability to hold his own against the Minnesota giant for ten rounds.

TOMMY APGAR AWAITS LETTER FROM HEFFERNAN

Tommy Apgar, manager of the Dunellen baseball team, is awaiting a letter from James Heffernan, the manager of the Knights of St. Peter basketball team, of New Brunswick.

Tommy started negotiations with the Middlesex manager a short time ago and it is understood that the Knights are anxious to play a home and home series. The first game will be played at Dunellen on Saturday, while the second game will be staged at New Brunswick on Sunday.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS TO HAVE BASKETBALL TEAM

The Knights of Columbus expect to have a clever basketball team this year and will begin practice in a short time. Although nothing definite has been done as yet, it is thought that the Knights will enter a team in the local basketball league should one be formed.

There will be a large squad of candidates on hand when the first practice is called. Dan McAfee, Al Bryniarski, Jack Coyle, Jack Coffey, George Linke and George Taylor have been mentioned as possible candidates for positions.

LOCAL ORDER OF MOOSE MAY ENTER STATE LEAGUE

According to reports received here today, the local Loyal Order of Moose will enter a bowling team in a State league to be formed in the near future. The local organization expects to gather together a truly representative team and will start to practice at once.

The Moose are willing to enter a City League, according to our informant, and expect to use Gates' alleys for all games. These alleys will be used by the Moose when the State competition commences.

PRIMARIES IN MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 26.—One United States Senator, sixteen representatives in Congress, a Governor, State officials and the 1917 Legislature are to be nominated in the Massachusetts primaries today. Virtually the only contest of general interest is that between Charles H. Cole and Frederick W. Mansfield, both of Boston, for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination. No opposition exists among the Republicans to the renomination of Governor McCall. United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge is also without opposition in the ranks of his own party. As a candidate to oppose Senator Lodge the Democrats will name John F. Fitzgerald, former mayor of Boston, and one-time congressman.

Results of Life in Darkness.

A scientist kept goldfishes in a roomy tank and with plenty of food, but in absolute darkness. He kept it up for over three years and then observed the modifications that had occurred in the fish. The color first became black, but after the second year it became golden again, and the reason for this is interesting. In the first instance the dark pigment cells spread out and covered up the subjacent layer of crystals which gives the goldfish its golden sheen. In the second instance the phagocytes devoured the dark pigment cells and thus re-exposed the golden layer. The changes in the eye were even more interesting. The structure of the eye was completely altered. The fish became totally blind. The experiment suggests that an individual fish imprisoned in a perfectly dark cave would become blind. But it does not throw any direct light on the origin of a blind race of fishes in caves.

Snails in the Aquarium.

Every one who keeps an aquarium knows that it is advisable to place a few snails in the tank, not only because snails are interesting in themselves, but because they are good cleaners, says the Popular Science Monthly. If the keeper of the aquarium knows that too much sunlight will produce too much plant growth and has placed the vessel in a partly shaded place where the proportion of light and shade is about right the snails, if they are numerous enough, can control the growth.

Nature has provided them with a peculiar anatomical structure resembling a narrow ribbon, which in detail is like the band of teeth on a carpenter's rasp. Under the microscope these so called "lingual ribbons," or tongues, are seen to be thickly set with rows of sharp edged teeth which are themselves toothed and which rasp off microscopic plants and carry them into the mouth.

How Mines Are Laid.

On one deck of a vessel are several narrow tracks supporting the mines, each of which is mounted on wheels. Each mine is in turn rolled to the stern and by means of special launching tracks is dropped into the sea without tilting. A mine of this character is made up of three parts—a spherical floating chamber containing the explosives, etc.; an anchor chamber, which is connected with the former by a cable, and a weighted sounding line. The length of the latter is equal to the depth at which the mine is to float. When the end of the sounding line strikes bottom the lessening of its pull throws a pawl, which prevents the drum in the anchor chamber from paying out more cable to the sphere. Consequently the latter is drawn under water to a depth equal to the length of the sounding line as the anchor chamber settles to the bottom.—Popular Mechanics.

Looking and Seeing.

There is much in knowing how to see sights. The discreet and skillful person when confronted with a variety of attractions will carefully select those that are for him the best and then will devise means to see them with the least wear and tear. But there are excitable people who set out to see everything, tire themselves out, see only half of anything and are dissatisfied in the end.

MARTINE WINS RENOMINATION; FRELINGHUYSEN AND EDGE ARE SUCCESSFUL REPUBLICANS

SOMERSET MAN HAS MAJORITY OF 3,500 OR MORE IN THE STATE—COLGATE GOES DOWN TO DEFEAT FROM ATLANTIC CO. CANDIDATE.

CAPSTICK RENOMINATED IN THE FIFTH DISTRICT

Former Congressman Fowler and Richard Boardman Fail to Secure Endorsement Over Present Incumbent—Wescott's Defeat Considered Slap at Wilson by Politicians—Heavy Vote Polled Throughout the State.

SUCCESSFUL CANDIDATES.

Governor
Walter E. Edge, Republican.
H. Otto Wittpenn, Democrat.

United States Senator
Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, Republican.
James E. Martine, Democrat.

Congressman
John H. Capstick, Republican.
William E. Tuttle, Jr., Democrat.

United States Senator James E. Martine, of Plainfield, has won a renomination against the opposition of Attorney-General John W. Wescott, and the influence of President Wilson's adminstration. This is the most striking feature of an election which aroused more interest than almost any that has preceded it except a national campaign for the Presidency. Martine's majority over Wescott is estimated at 5,000 in the State, exclusive of Hudson county. He won there by a vote of 4 to 1. The vote in Hudson county was announced as one of the heaviest ever recorded in a primary election, between 60 and 70 per cent. of the registered vote appearing at the polls, and Martine's majority was 16,000.

State Senator Walter E. Edge won the Republican nomination for Governor from Colonel Austen Colgate and George L. Record by about 3,000, and former State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen made an effective fight against Franklin Murphy for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, winning by 3,500.

The success of Martine was noted with alarm by Wilson Democrats throughout New Jersey, for Judge Wescott was tacitly understood to have the support of the national administration and his contest, with the present United States Senator from New Jersey, was regarded in the light of a test of Wilson's strength in the President's home State.

Judge Wescott was the man who twice put Mr. Wilson in nomination for the Presidency, and it was generally understood that he entered the lists against Senator Martine when the Senator's "independence" made it seem desirable to the administration in Washington that he should be succeeded by a man more closely in sympathy with Mr. Wilson's legislative plans. Senator Martine had been quoted of late as saying he would prefer to retire to his farm in Union county rather than to go daily to the White House, "for his orders." Wilson men declared that the President had made the Senator and branded as a display of ingratitude his reported remarks.

Martine carried Essex county by 300, although Jim Nugent was against him there. His big victory in Hudson, the demonstration in his favor in his home county of Union, and a majority in Essex pulled him through. Martine carried Essex, Bergen, Mercer, Middlesex, Ocean, Passaic, Sussex, Union, Warren and possibly others.

One contest that attracted considerable attention in Northern New Jersey, and especially in Hudson county, was the fight of Sheriff Eugene F. Kinkead, who gained renown in the Bayonne oil strike, for Congressional nomination in the Eight district. He lead two to one over John J. Eagan, the present Congressman, and Owen F. Conlon, of Newark.

Still another contest that attracted widespread attention was that of Congressman John H. Capstick to retain his place in the Fifth district against the efforts of former Congressman Charles N. Fowler and Richard Boardman, of Plainfield. Congressman Capstick had been bitterly attacked in this district because his course in the House was considered by some to be a peace-at-any-price one. Former Congressman Fowler, who is an Elizabeth banker and known for his currency measures when in Congress, seized the opportunity to oppose him, and Boardman entered the field hoping to win through the midst of the fight. It appears that Capstick barely pulled through. Fowler carried Union county by 780 votes. Capstick carried 54 out of 64 reported districts in Morris and is leading by a narrow margin.

The showing of Frelinghuysen was almost equally surprising to all except his friends. Murphy had had the backing of the Republican National Committee and was expected to be especially strong in the cities and more populous districts, though the farm sections and small communities were conceded to Frelinghuysen. Nevertheless, the first results obtainable from Hudson county showed Frelinghuysen holding a lead of 2,000 votes. Later returns reversed this condition, and Frelinghuysen made up in other districts what he lost there.

In the face of the opposition of David Baird in Camden and the organization workers in Atlantic Frelinghuysen carried the former by 3,000 and the latter by 1,300. This is a remarkable tribute to his personality and his ability as a campaigner. Although Colgate led in Essex by 10,000, Frelinghuysen cut Murphy's majority down to half this number.

A peculiar feature of the Essex vote was the nomination of Edmund Burke Osborne for State Senator, over W. Clyde Crosby, the organization candidate. Osborne was a local option candidate. He won by a majority of 306.

FRELINGHUYSEN AN EASY WINNER

North Plainfield Gives Him a Majority of 457 Over Murphy for Senator.

HAMMOND IS DEFEATED

Amerman, Local Option Candidate for Assembly, is Nominated—Woolston, for Sheriff, Loses Out by About 1,200.

Polling the largest vote in years, North Plainfield yesterday gave Joseph Frelinghuysen a tremendous majority over Franklin Murphy in the fight for United States Senatorship. In addition, Walter E. Edge, with a vote of 280, polled a bigger vote than any of the other gubernatorial candidates. Austen Colgate received 188 votes and was a fairly close second to Edge. George L. Record, the third Republican candidate, was given fair support in the borough, securing 142.

John S. Amerman, candidate for member of the General Assembly on the Republican ticket, polled 341 votes in North Plainfield and secured a majority of 73 over Ogden H. Hammond. The fight for sheriff waxed warm and a majority of 198 was returned for Lemuel B. Woolston, but he lost out in the county by about 1,200. For tax collector, James K. Arnold secured a vote of 577, the highest vote accorded any candidate on either ticket. A. Gibby Spencer, the Democratic opposition to Mr. Arnold, was accorded only fair support and received a total vote of 160. Senator James E. Martine, seeking re-election on the Democratic platform, was given a vote of 198, easily outdoing John W. Wescott. Frank M. McDermitt polled a light vote and August Bruggeman secured but two votes in all five districts. For Freeholder Guy D. Peck, Republican, received a vote of 447, and George Kirch, Democrat, polled 223 votes. In the fight for the office of Governor, H. Otto Wittpenn was received fairly well, although he had no opposition on the Democratic ticket. His vote in the five districts reached a total of 212, his greatest stronghold being the fifth district.

The figures show that the heaviest vote was polled in the fourth district, where the counting was not completed until midnight. In this district the Republicans polled 194, while the Democrats gathered together 63 votes. U. G. Tingley and Alexander Milne were accorded good support in their fight for Council. Tingley secured 485 votes, while Milne received 505. Opposing these two for Council was John Wolfe, whose total vote was 156.

According to unofficial figures, 1,744 persons registered in the house to house canvas that was made. Of this number about 900 were accepted as voters. The Republicans registered 636 votes, while the Democratic poll reached a total of 363 votes.

WILL PROVIDE FOR BORO CHILDREN FIRST

Board of Education Not Sure There Will Be Room for Outsiders.

That the pupils of the North Plainfield schools must be given first consideration before acommodations for out-of-town pupils are made, is the decision reached by the North Plainfield Board of Education. Instructions to this effect have been given Supervisor D. Fred Aungst and popular sentiment towards the action taken has been in evidence in all but the outlying districts. It is announced that owing to the congested condition of the Somerset school building, some of the pupils will have to go on part time. The tuition rates were reduced, at the order of the State Board of Education, to $50.

North Plainfield township was represented at the meeting of the board on Monday night by F. E. Bodine and G. A. Schmidt, whose mission it was to ascertain what action the borough board would take regarding the pupils from the township. The appeal to the State Board in regard to lowering of the tuition rate had been made by the township committee and the State action was prompted by this appeal. Considerable adverse criticism regarding the action taken by the State Board of Education was made at the meeting. It was hinted that, should the North Plainfield tuition rate be raised the pupils from the outlying districts would be sent to Bound Brook or Westfield.

STANKOVITZ HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Placed Under $3,000 on Charge of Stealing $648 From Anna Tosmlaska.

MAY BE HEAD OF GANG

Wanted in New York Under Two Indictments on Similar Charges—Has Already Served Time in Penetentiary—Wanted in Brooklyn.

After hearing the State's case in city court this morning, Weinberger & Weinberger, of Passaic, attorneys for Peter Stankovitz, charged with obtaining $648 from Anne Tosmlaska in this city last May, waived further examination to let the matter go before the Grand Jury, and Judge De Meza fixed bail at $3,000. The present charge against him is larceny, but it will undoubtedly be changed to one of obtaining money under false pretenses.

In presenting the State's case Robert N. Crane placed Anne Tosmlaska on the stand to describe how she met Stankovitz. While he was in the city Stankovitz boarded at 141 West Front street, and it was there, it is said, he took the girl on Decoration Day, the day he got the money from her. He met her at the home of Josephia Romwaka, an aged Polack, living on Cottage place, it is alleged, and got her to go to his rooms under the pretense of showing her a machine for doubling money. The girl testified that she had gone to the bank and drawn her money before going to see him. Putting the money in a box, he said was the machine, Stankovitz, she said, drew a package from the other end and told her not to open it until the next day, when he would meet her and see how she liked her increased fortune. The next day he had left the city and nothing was learned of him until he was caught in Passaic on Monday.

William F. Arnold, cashier of the First National Bank, took the stand to testify as to the money being drawn, and Mrs. Garretson, the woman who rented the room, described the affair as far as she knew.

Although Stankovitz is held for the Grand Jury and will in all probability be indicted, it is possible that he may be turned over to the New York authorities first, as he is wanted there on two indictments found in Part One, General Sessions, before Judge Rosalsky on June 9, on charges of a similar nature. Lieutenant Rudolph Unger, chief of detectives at 116th street, New York, was in court this morning to serve a bench warrant on Stankovitz. Ever since he obtained nearly $700 from two sisters last April Unger has been trying to catch him and was in Passaic when the man was caught on Monday.

Mrs. Wlady Stamka, one of the women victims of last April, came to this city with Lieutenant Unger and positively identified the prisoner. With her sister, Miss Stefania Batazinski, she lived at 300 East Ninety-sixth street and had Stankovitz as a boarder. After he had lived there several weeks, she said, he one day proposed that they put their money together and double it. After the Stamka woman had drawn $265 from the bank and her sister $445, Stankovitz, it is said, gave them "knockout" drops and made a getaway, coming direct to this city. For several weeks it was thought the women would not live and one is now partly demented.

With the catching of Stankovitz the police believe they have just started on the breaking up of a gang that has been operating along similar lines in many Eastern cities. He is wanted in a number of places, including Brooklyn, for trying the same scheme and in each case is known under a different name. The Plainfield authorities knew him as Bolek Broseiki, but he admits that Stankovitz, the name given by the New York police, is his right one, although he says he goes under the alias of Frank Jalewski also. When caught Monday he was living at 116 Columbia avenue, Passaic, and was employed in a saloon in that city. He is living with a woman, who he claims to be his wife. For being charged with trying the scheme ha has many other places, he was sentenced from Passaic about ten years ago to seven years in the State prison, but was paroled after five years and five months. Coming from Russia, he has been in this country fourteen years and is of neat appearance with polished manners.

CASE LAID OVER.
Upon motion of his counsel, Judge De Meza laid over the case of Charles Rutherford, charged with larceny until tomorrow morning, when he was arraigned in court today. Rutherford is charged with the theft of an overcoat and $5 from Fred Glaser, of Clinton avenue, and he was caught Monday night in front of the police station.

3 PLAINFIELD WARDS NOMINATE COUNCILMEN PLEDGED TO OPPOSE A RENEWAL OF SALOON LICENSES

EDGAR AND HAMILTON GO DOWN IN DEFEAT—BLATZ WINS BY A GOOD MAJORITY—RACE IN FIRST WARD DECIDED BY TEN VOTES.

MARTINE CARRIES THE CITY OVER WESCOTT

Frelinghuysen Polls the Largest Vote—Edge Leads Colgate—Capstick Ahead in Race for Congress—Martin Easily Carries City Over Bauer.—A Total of 2,597 Voters Participated in the Primaries.

Three of the four wards in Plainfield "went dry" yesterday, and no-license candidates for the Common Council were nominated by the Republican voters in the First, Second and Third. Only in the Fourth ward did the candidate for re-election win out over the opposition of the church element that entered municipal politics but a few weeks ago.

In the First ward Frederick S. Cutter defeated A. E. Edgar by a majority of ten votes. In the Second ward Christie P. Hamilton was defeated by Charles E. Loizeaux by a majority of 107 votes. G. Herbert Condict, the no-license candidate, had no opposition in the Third ward. Francis J. Blatz, president of the Common Council, was the only one of the three who sought re-election to win in the primaries. He defeated Chauncey L. Hight, the no-license man, by a majority of 115.

The biggest vote of the day was polled by Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. His majority over Murphy is more than a thousand in the four wards. Edge ran ahead of Colgate, with Record far in the rear in the governor's race.

Despite prophesies to the contrary Plainfield gave a majority to "Jim" Martine, although it was not as big as his friends had hoped for. Martine got sixty-five more votes in the city than Wescott, who opposed him for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator.

A big complimentary vote was given to Mayor Leighton Calkins, City Judge De Meza, Freeholder James F. Buckle and Assemblymen Runyon, Pierson and Morgan, who had no opposition. Judge Runyon ran way ahead of his companions, Plainfield people furnishing proof of their admiration for him by not forgetting to mark his name even though it was but a formality. Hamilton F. Kean, who was without opposition for Republican State committeeman, also received a big vote here.

Races for Council in the First and Second ward were not decided until early this morning, and that in the First ward not until the last district had been heard from. The First district reported earliest and it gave Edgar 48 votes and Cutter 40. Some time later the Third was reported, with 56 for Cutter and 46 for Edgar, putting Edgar one vote in the lead, but the Second gave Edgar 66 and Cutter 65, making the vote a tie with the Fourth out. It was not received until almost 2 a. m., and until the result there was made known friends of both candidates claimed a victory.

Condict polled a good vote in the Third. The name of J. F. Zerega was written in on the Democratic ticket in this ward by thirteen voters, and two or three wrote in that of Robert H. Cox, present councilman, who refused to run again.

While the fourth and sixth districts went against him, Francis J. Blatz came out with a good majority in the Fourth ward. His vote was the same as that of Mr. Condict in the Third and Condict had no opposition.

Martin's friends were elated over his vote in Plainfield. He was given a majority of the total votes cast here, although there were four candidates seeking the Republican nomination for county court clerk.

In the contest for the Republican nomination for the full term as coroner Martin received 1,009 votes against 654 for Galaway.

Hugh T. Treacy led the race for the Democratic nomination for the General Assembly in this city, although McGrath, of Elizabeth, was a close second. Hueston was third in the voting.

Only thirty-two votes separated Leonard and Morris in their fight for the Democratic nomination for county clerk, with Leonard leading.

Congressman Capstick more than doubled the vote of Richard Boardman, and ran well ahead of former Congressman Fowler. The high Republican vote was cast in this contest, the three candidates receiving a total of 2,096. With the high Democratic vote, which was cast in the race for Senator, added, a grand total of 2,597 participated in the primaries yesterday.

NO LICENSE PEOPLE CLAIM THEY WILL HAVE FIVE VOTES IN COUNCIL; CAN THEY GET THE SIXTH?

The nomination of Cutter, Loizeaux and Condict means five votes against the renewal of saloon licenses when they come up in January, 1917, according to Joseph W. Gavett, president of the Interborough Association, and Mr. Gavett believes that the sixth man can be brought around between now and January.

While none of the Republican nominees are assured of election, the "drys" are presuming that they will be and they are elated with the possible success of their campaign, a result even greater than they had hoped for. Cutter, Loizeaux and Condict are pledged to vote against the renewal of saloon licenses. The victory of Cutter also pledges Councilman Sminck, of the First Ward, Mr. Gavett says, he having recently made a volnntary statement in which he said he would be bound by the sentiment of the voters of the ward as expressed in the Cutter-Edgar campaign. This makes four votes against license.

There is a fifth man, the no-license people believe, although he has made no promises. Mr. Gavett would not give the name of the Councilman that he expects to vote with Messrs. Cutter, Loizeaux, Condict and Sminck on the license question, but said that he was convinced one other member of the board would be found on the "right" side when a vote was taken. If this hope is realized, and one other man can be converted to the cause of prohibition between now and January, then Plainfield will go "dry" next year.

All this, however, is predicated upon the supposition that the Republican nominees will win in the general election. Already there is talk of nominating Theodore Martin for Council on the Democratic ticket in the First Ward and he would doubtless get many Republican votes. A full ticket is promised by some of those who are not satisfied with the results in yesterday's primaries, which would mean that the same issue be fought over in the November election.

BORO POLLS BIG PRIMARY VOTE

Edge, Wins Out Over Colgate by Majority of One Vote in Dunellen.

MARTINE IS POPULAR

Senator Receives 92 Votes Against 24 Given Wescott, His Opponent—Marien Elected to County Committee.

Three hundred and twenty-seven voters out of a registry of 670 cast their ballots at the primary election in this borough yesterday. Of this number 185 were Republicans and 142 Democrats.

The only local contest was that between John Marien and Valentine McLoughlin who ran for Democratic county committeeman from the First district. Mr. Marien won out by nine votes, receiving 45. McLoughlin was induced to run by certain Democrats, who thus evidenced their disapproval over the act of the Democratic heads in not calling a caucus to select the candidates.

For United States Senator the Democrats of the borough gave James E. Martine a plurality. He received 92 votes against 24 for Wescott and 10 for McDermit. Joseph S. Frelinghuysen (Republican) ran way ahead of Franklin Murphy, receiving 140 against the latter's 29.

For members of the Assembly (Democratic) David J. Perrine, of Piscataway township, was eliminated, receiving only 57 votes. George F. Baier, of New Brunswick, received 102 votes; Charles Anderson, of South River, 96, and Richard J. Calvin, of Perth Amboy, 95.

For member of the Assembly (Republican) the three men nominated were George S. Applegate, of South River, who received 110 votes, James A. Edgar, of Highland Park, with 108 votes and Frederick C. Schneider, of New Brunswick, with 71.

For Governor on the Republican ticket Edge received 69 votes, Colgate 59, and Record 56. Otto Wittpenn, of Jersey City, (Democrat) received 125 votes.

For member of the Borough Council (Democratic) Forman G. Neighbour was given 122 votes and J. Alfred Wilson, 115. On the Republican ticket Eric M. Jones and Wayne Burns received the nomination with the respective polls at 146 and 137.

For members of the Republican County Committe, Wilson S. Frederick, First district, received 89 votes and Albert E. Randolph, Second district, 87.

Thomas Reynolds (Democrat) received 35 votes for committeeman from the Second district.

For constable C. Wesley Blaine (Republican) was given 160 votes. He also received seven Democratic votes.

BROWN, CREESY AND PANDICK NOMINATED

Will Fight for Seats in Council—No Contest in Fanwood Township.

Edge ran strong in both Fanwood township and borough at the primaries yesterday, especially in the township, where he had a 174 majority over Colgate. Murphy led Frelinghuysen in the township by nearly 100 majority, but lost out in Fanwood.

The councilmanic contest in the borough developed into more of a fight than was anticipated. Luke Pandick and Fred Cressey, the two candidates who filed petitions, were successful in receiving the nomination, but Offley Brown who is running for re-election, and Edward Meeker received substantial votes for having entered the race at the eleventh hour. Pandick received the nomination on both the Republican and Democratic tickets, while Brown, although a Republican and elected to the Council on that ticket, received the nomination along with Pandick on the Democratic ticket. MARTIN NOMINEE FOR COUNTY CLERK

Defeats G. O. P. Machine Candidates by Large Majority —Fowler Carries County.

Colonel William B. Martin won the Republican county clerkship nomination in the only contest of any importance in either party at the primaries. His victory, by a plurality of 1,100 over Edward Bauer, the candidate of the Republican machine, was one of the most surprising results that has been seen in the county since the present primary law went into effect. Neil McLeod, the present deputy county clerk, ran third, and Richard B. Fordham was a poor fourth.

Colonel Martin made a personal canvass of the entire county. He purposely kept away from the politicians, and solicited and received much support from his hundreds of friends in the National Guard. He is lieutenant colonel of the Second Regiment, which has three companies in Elizabeth, and one in Plainfield. These men not only voted for Colonel Martin, but also worked hard and late to assure his success.

In the gubernatorial fight Walter E. Edge carried the county by a plurality estimated at 200, over Colonel Austen Colgate and George L. Record, who ran third. Joseph S. Frelinghuysen had an easy time of it getting the county vote over former Governor Franklin Murphy, in the Republican United States Senatorial fight, his plurality being 2,600. and Senator James E. Martine carried his home county in the Democratic primary over Attorney General John W. Wescott, by a majority estimated at 3,500.

Assemblymen William N. Runyon, Arthur N. Pierson and Charles Morgan were renominated by the Republicans without opposition, and Edward A. McGrath. Thomas F. Hueston and Hugh T. Treacy, the latter of Plainfield, will be the Democratic candidates for the same offices.

Former Congressman Charles N. Fowler carried Union county by a majority estimated at 780.

MARTINE PLEASED WITH PRIMARY RESULT

Declares His Nomination is a Triumph Over Machine Opposition.

United States Senator James E. Martine made the following comment today as to the result of his success in the primaries yesterday:

"In response to your question I would say that I am highly gratified with the result. I feel it a great triumph, when I consider the efforts of the great political organization of Essex county, known as Mr. Nugent's organization, together with the State organization, the entire press of the State except the pleasant words said regarding my candididacy by the Plainfield Press, and the generally understood opposition of the administration. I feel it a great victory and a complete vindication of my course as United States Senator.

"I feel gratified and satisfied inasmuch as my every act was prompted from earnest and honest conviction, thoroughly square with the people, and absolutely in harmony with the Baltimore platform. Of course, the contest in November is yet to come, but I feel so entrenched with the wisdom of our action in Congress in behalf of the people that I believe our nominees will be overwhelmingly elected.

The effort that was made to array me in antagonism to the President was never justified and has been contemptibly unfair. My every act and vote has been conscientious and without refeence to playing small politics. I shall go into the campaign with all the zest and earnestness of my nature. I feel that it would be a calamity to defeat President Wilson and suicide for the Democratic party to connive at his defeat."

SUSPECT YOUR KIDNEYS.

Too Many Plainfield People Neglect Early Symptoms of Kidney Trouble.

If your back is lame—if you feel dull, tired and all-worn-out—
If you have hard headaches, backaches and dizzy spells—
If the kidneys sometimes are disordered—
Suspect your kidneys and "take a stitch in time."
Use Doan's Kidney Pills, the time-tried, home-endorsed kidney remedy.
It may save you from some serious kidney trouble.
Make use of Mr. Vander Weg's experience.

Edward A. Vander Weg, 14 Elm place, Plainfield, says: "Heavy work put my kidneys in bad condition. My back became lame and I had a hard time of it when I tried to stoop over. The kidney secretions were irregular in passage and annoyed me very much. I finally bought a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at L. W. Randolph's Pharmacy and I was surprised with the results. Soon I was in good condition. I took three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and they entirely cured me of these ailments."

175,000 QUIT WORK IN N. Y. ON WALKOUT ORDER

New York, Sept. 27.—More than 175,000 men and women workers, according to the strike leaders, today answered the call for a general walkout in sympathy with the striking traction employes. This number, however, includes 143,000 affiliated with the United Hebrew Trades, who would have stopped in any event on account of the Jewish holiday.

Ernest Bohm, secretary of the Central Federated Union, said he expected the suspension of work would bring victory within forty-eight hours. One hundred thousand more employes will quit work tomorrow and another hundred thousand on Friday, according to the leaders.

It will be difficult until the Jewish holidays are over, three days hence, to determine just how successful numerically the walk-out has been, but it appeared certain today that the sympathetic strike would not be extensive enough to paralyze the industrial life of New York to any extent.

LIKE AN ANCIENT FORT.

Mexico's Spiked Mountain a Curious Geological Freak.

One of the most remarkable geological freaks in Mexico is a mountain situated near Pachuca, which presents the appearance at a distance of being covered with spikes. The sides of the mountain are closely studded with stone columns or palisades. These columns are five feet to twelve feet long and as large around as an average man's body.

It is a remarkable uplift of nature, which has the appearance, however, of being the handiwork of human beings. One side of the mountain is almost perpendicular, and the stone columns protrude from the surface at right angles, forming an impressive picture.

Pachuca is one of the most noted mining districts in Mexico, and it is said by geologists that this remarkable spiked mountain is out of keeping with the remainder of the formation of the mineralized region.

The stone is as hard as flint and has withstood the elements for ages. The spikes form a natural battlement that makes the mountain appear from a distance like some ancient fort.

The mines of the Pachuca district are situated not far from this wonderful freak of nature, but the formation encountered in their respective underground workings is of an entirely different kind from that of the palisade.—Pearson's Weekly.

FLUNG UP FROM THE SEA.

Birth of the Bogoslof Group of the Aleutian Islands.

The first of the Bogoslof group of the Aleutian islands was born in the year 1796.

There was a great convulsion in the Bering sea about twenty-five miles north of Unalaska, and an island appeared above the surface of the stormy waters. This islet, which rose to a height of nearly 3,000 feet above sea level, was christened Bogoslof by the Russians, who then owned Alaska. It remained solitary and alone until 1882, when another volcanic eruption in the sea was followed by the birth of another island near the first.

For two years the new island was the scene of an active eruption. Then it cooled gradually and, like the first islet, became the home of seals and sea lions and the breeding grounds for sea birds.

The third of the Bogoslof group was born in 1906. The "baby" was smaller than its elder sister, being about a third of a mile in diameter and with an altitude of some 600 feet, but the following year another convulsion of nature resulted in nearly doubling its area.

Since then several other islands have been born in various parts of the Aleutian chain.—Chicago Journal.

An Author's Odd Aversion.

The "stoic" meal had attractions for Edward Fitzgerald, who, among his other peculiarities, hated to see people enjoying their food. On one occasion, after a man had finished a glass of wine in his company and gone out of the room, Fitzgerald remarked with disgust: "Did you notice how he took up his glass? I am sure he likes it. Bah!" Fitzgerald himself, according to his biographer, A. C. Benson, "lived practically on bread and fruit, mostly apples and pears, even a turnip, with sometimes cheese or butter and milk puddings. But he was not a bigoted vegetarian. To avoid an appearance of singularity he would eat meat at other houses and provided it in plenty for his guests. But the only social meal he cared to join in was "tea, pure and simple, with bread and butter."

Genius and Appetite.

Sir Francis Galton held that a good appetite is one of the attributes of genius. "Most notabilities have been great eaters and excellent digesters on the same principle that the furnace which can raise more steam than is usual for one of its size must burn more freely and well than is common." Scott was of the same opinion. In a letter to Canning respecting an article promised to the Quarterly Review he advises him to break the neck of it after a hearty meal, "preferably of boiled chicken." And he practiced what he preached, for, like Tennyson, Dickens, Thackeray and many other nineteenth century authors, Scott was an excellent trencherman.—London Opinion.

The Romans Dressed For Dinner.

A sartorial authority says that the custom of dressing for dinner began with the Romans. It was a simpler procedure than at present. A loose robe of fine material was donned for the evening meal, preferably at home, but in cases where guests came from a distance to the home of the host he kept a supply of dinner clothes on hand for the use of his guests who came unprovided.

$29,000,000 FOR WAR SUFFERERS

Vast Sum America's Gift to War Torn Europe.

$10,000,000 FOR BELGIANS

France Has Received $2,000,000, Germany $2,750,000, While Other Nations and Races Afflicted in War Have Received Generous Gifts—Largest Personal Contribution $1,000,000.

Slightly less than $29,000,000 has been given by Americans to the sixty principal war relief societies, according to the book of the Carnegie Endowment For International Peace, just issued. The actual figures for the money contributed to European war sufferers is $28,896,277.

Of the total contributed $7,000,000 went to help the Belgians, who, it is estimated, have received $80,000,000 from all sources. The Belgian relief fund raised $3,085,000 here. The total Belgian contributions from America from all sources are estimated at $10,200,000.

Allies Get $13,000,000.

Twelve organizations here raised more than $2,000,000 for France, while $594,000 was raised for England, $12,000 for Russia and $313,000 for Servia. This, with the Belgian total, makes a grand total for the entente allies of over $13,000,000, not including some $3,000,000 of American Red Cross funds, which were very largely used in allied countries.

The German Red Cross received $2,750,000 from this country, with three German American relief bodies bringing the entire central power contributions to $3,750,000.

The contributions for dependent nationalities affected by the war's ravages amount to $9,000,000. By far the largest single fund of this sort is that of the American Jewish relief committee, with $4,000,000, to which should be added almost $900,000 more from the central committee for the relief of Jews and $323,000 from the people's relief committee for the Jewish war sufferers.

The Poles have received $473,000 and the Syrians and Armenians $430,000.

The American Red Cross has received from all sources $3,231,000.

The largest personal contribution is given as $1,000,000, while many donors are reported to have set aside a percentage of their incomes. The total gifts represent about one-twentieth of the $600,000,000 spent here by the allies for war munitions.

AMERICA PUT IN FIRST RANK BY THE WAR

Max Hoschiller in an article in the Paris Temps contrasts America's financial position now in respect to foreign countries with what it was before the war. The article says:

"Then the United States was sending to Europe from $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 in interest on its borrowings, $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 spent by tourists, $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 to expatriates and $20,000,000 to $40,000,000 on ocean freights.

"Since the war the United States has imported $730,000,000 in gold and has paid back a considerable amount of its previous borrowings, increased its foreign trade by $2,250,000,000 yearly and loaned to foreign countries $1,470,000,000, so that the dollar now has replaced to a considerable extent the old sovereignty of the English pound abroad."

15,000 VOTES FOR DEAD MAN.

Candidate Died Just Before Chicago Primary Elections.

Fifteen thousand Democrats went to the polls in the Chicago primaries and voted for a dead man. With 1,291 out of 2,396 precincts heard from, Leopold Pfaelzer, who was buried several days ago, received 11,950 votes to fill an unexpired term in the assessor's office.

The remaining precincts are expected to bring the total up to 15,000. His name was on the ballot when he died, and it was too late for the election commissioners to make any change.

Mr. Pfaelzer's death was widely advertised in the newspapers, with notice to the voters that his name appeared simply because it was a physical impossibility to take it off the ballot.

Politicians are using this incident in arguing that there is nothing to prevent a dead man from being nominated to office.

AMERMAN WINS IN SOMERSET RACE

Optionist is Successful —Brokaw Bests Woolston for Sheriff.

Somerville, Sept. 27.—John S. Amerman, local optionist, won the Republican nomination for Assemblyman over Ogden H. Hammond, the present incumbent, who voted against the bill last year. Mr. Amerman's majority is estimated at 45 this morning. C. Martin Wyckoff, also pledged to home rule, is the Democratic candidate, having been nominated without opposition.

Ellsworth Brokaw, at present deputy sheriff, was nominated by the Republicans over Lemuel B. Woolston, of North Plainfield, by a majority estimated at 1,500. The Democrats named Charles S. Hamilton, of Neshanic, over Joseph E. Buck, of Bernardsville.

Walter E. Edge carried the county for Governor by a plurality estimated at 500 over Austen Colgate and George L. Record, the vote for the latter being larger than was expected.

Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, whose home is at Raritan in Somerset county, had a majority over Franklin Murphy of 2,500, polling practically all of the Republican vote in the county over Franklin Murphy. United States Senator James E. Martine was also successful over John W. Wescott, by about 200 votes.

Azariah M. Beekman, of Somerville, was named as the Democratic candidate for Congress over Charles J. Blake, of Trenton, carrying all three counties, Somerset, Mercer and Hunterdon. The prese representative, Elijah C. Hutchinson, was renominated without opposition.

ATHLETIC ACTIVITIES START AT Y. M. C. A.

Gala Gathering on Monday Evening Will Be "Co-ed" Affair.

The social at the Young Men's Christian Association on Monday night bids fair to surpass any of those which have gone before. In the first place it is to be a "co-ed" affair, the members of the Young Women's Christian Association joining in the unique program which is to be given. Already the savory odors which betoken the good things to be prepared for the "eats" are floating through the atmosphere, and it looks as though an early start will be necessary in order to get inside the lines. The festivities will be held in the outside gymnasium, weather conditions permitting, and there will be songs and other stunts around the camp fire . Among the events will be: Three-legged race, wheelbarrow race, one-yard chew, jump-jump-jump, potato race, couples 25-yard dash, bridal tour, wide stretch, tug-of-war.

Athletic warriors representing Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Rutgers will compete in the greatest athletic contest the people hereabouts have ever witnessed. This marks the opening of the social work of the senior department and will include the members of the high school and employed boys' groups. The younger boys will have their first social on Monday afternoon, when H. J. Center, the new secretary for boys' work, has arranged for a very interesting time.

BAPTISTS TO MEET AT ASBURY PARK

State Convention Will Hold Three-Day Session Beginning October 23.

Preliminary arrangements for the annual session of the New Jersey Baptist Convention have been completed. The meetings, covering a three-day period, will be held in Asbury Park October 23, 24 and 25. Business sessions will be carried out at the First Baptist church under the direction of President F. Wayland Ayer, of Camden.

The convention, which will be formally opened Monday night, Oct. 23, will be preceded by the annual conference of ministers in the afternoon in the convention church. Coincidentally the Women's Home Missionary Society will have its annual meeting in the Methodist church. At the latter addresses will be made by Mrs. S. T. Ford, of Chicago, and Miss Belle Crawford, formerly a missionary in the West.

Following the organization of the convention Monday night, the period will be taken up with addresses. Among those to speak are Rev. Arthur T. Fowler, of Orange, and Field Secretary Rev. Dr. Raymond M. West. Reports of accomplishments of the various boards will be submitted and reviews of the work of the several fields made, the latter by Rev. William A. Waldo, of Paterson; Rev. Rolla Hunt, of Summit; Rev. Albert King Morris, of Jersey City. Rev. Frederick A. Apgar, of New York, five-year program secretary of the Northern Baptist Convention, will tell of the results of this movement to date.

"A Campaign of Education" will be discussed at Tuesday afternoon's session. Participating in this will be Elmer B. Bryan, of Colgate University, and Roger W. Sweetland, headmaster at Peddie Institute. Eugene C. Foster, of New York, will speak on "Developing the Resources of Youth."

Following a series of banquets Tuesday evening, a general meeting will be held at which talks will be given by Mrs. Ford and Rev. Edward M. Poteat, president of Wake Forest College, North Carolina. The dinner for delegates will be held in the New Magnolia Hotel, the women gathering at the Baptist church and the young people in the Y. M. C. A.

Four topical conferences will consume the time set apart for Wednesday morning's meeting. These will be on the subjects, "The Rural Church," "Foreign Work," "Shore Problems" and "Suburban Problems." Officers will be elected for the ensuing year and reports of the several committees made at the concluding session Wednesday afternoon.

ROSH HASHANA, JEWISH NEW YEAR, BEGINS TONIGHT

New York, Sept. 27.—Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year, begins this evening at sunset, and for two days will be observed by orthodox Jews throughout the world. The reformed, or unorthodox Jews, only celebrate one day at the beginning of the New Year.

The year this is ushed in is 5,677. The event is second to none in importance in religious significance in the Hebrew faith, Easter, or the Feast of the Passover, being the first. From time immemorial, in the orthodox churches, two days of Rosh Hashana have been observed with prayer and worship in almost exactly the same manner. It is a time especially set apart for repentence and purification.

At sunset the rabbis around the world will summon the Jewish believers to the synagogues with a blast upon the ram's horn, or shofar. This method of calling the congregation together has an especial symbolical significance. The use of the ram's horn dates back to the almost prehistoric days, shrouded in the half-light of tradition, when those musical instruments were about the only means which the wandering tribes of Israel, who were shepherds, possessed of calling to worship.

In the orthodox congregations, which cling most tenaciously to the old-time ritual, one of the customs is for the men to appear in the temples wearing shrouds to typify the significance of the day as a reminder of death. This part of the ritual is not now used in the reformed temples.

Third Degree In Turkish Army.

At last we arrived at the prison and were locked into separate cells. That same night we were tortured with the falagy, or bastinado, writes Alexander Aaronsohn in the Atlantic Monthly. The victim of this horrible punishment is trussed up, arms and legs, and thrown on his knees; then on his bare soles a pliant green rod is brought down with all the force of a soldier's arm. The pain is exquisite; blood leaps out at the first cut, and strong men usually faint after thirty or forty strokes. Strange to say, the worst part of it is not the blow itself, but the whistling of the rod through the air as it rushes to its mark. The groans of my older comrades, whose gasps and prayers I could hear through the walls of the cell, helped me bear the agony until unconsciousness mercifully came to the rescue.

Steep Farming.

A slope in the valley of the Ollantaytambo, Peru, with an angle of about 45 degrees, or steeper than the roofs of most houses, is covered with transverse ridges, showing that the entire surface was cultivated in former times. Parts of the same slope are still cultivated.—National Geographic Magazine.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1916.

THE PRIMARY RESULT.

Never since the passage of the present primary law has it been so difficult to get a line on the results as it was last night and this morning. As this is written Senator James E. Martine, of Plainfield is reported to have won the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, and rebuked President Wilson and his friends who were opposed to the renomination of New Jersey's senior Senator. Former Governor Franklin Murphy and Joseph S. Frelinghuysen have had a close race, and Frelinghuysen apparently has won. Walter E. Edge will be the Republican candidate for Governor against H. Otto Wittpenn, which practically assures the election of the Democrat. Thousands of Republicans who voted for Colgate and Record in the primary yesterday will not vote for Edge at the general election. Edge's record on the Sunday booze question, and his failure to aid with his newspapers, efforts to enforce the law in Atlantic county, will alienate from him all of the decent Republicans who will be attracted to Wittpenn, who has had a clean and able record in many public offices.

One of the most gratifying things about the election was the victory of William B. Martin, who was nominated for county clerk over Deputy Register Edward Bauer, who had the support of the entire Republican machine, and Neil McLeod, the present deputy clerk. In this county nomination for such an office is equivalent to election, and Mr. Martin, who made his canvass entirely outside of the party organization, has effectively proven that the machine is not all powerful, and cannot dictate nominations.

AMERICAN BRAINS IN WAR

From the Newark News.

Those armored caterpillar tractors, described as "tanks" in official war reports, and facetiously named "Willies" by British "Tommies," are nothing more than the application to land fighting of a principle put into effect in the United States during the Civil War. They are in effect "moving batteries," just as was the Monitor built by John Ericsson and equipped with the revolving turret invented by Theodore R. Timby.

The Monitor was an invention by an American made necessary by changed conditions in warfare. Fixed harbor defenses had proved to be ineffective. What was needed was a fort that could travel around so that the enemy could not secure the range and reduced the fort by concentrated fire. The Monitor quickly proved the practicability of the idea and brought about a complete change in naval warfare and harbor defense.

Fixed fortifications were shown to be a failure in defense against heavy guns early in the European conflict. Trench fighting was the next move to meet the new conditions. Then to offset this successful method of defense by driving traveling forts over the trenches, the "tanks" were developed by the British from the caterpillar tractor. And that tractor, like the Monitor with its revolving turret, was the product of the brains of an American and the mechanical skill of the workmen of this country. Thus is another radical change in modern warfare to be credited to the United States.

And, as usual, the United States is about the last to avail itself of its own inventions. Witness the dreadnought, the aeroplane, the Lewis machine gun and now the tractor.

MAY FORCE RETALIATION.

The direct charge that legislation authorizing retaliation against Great Britain for the blacklisting of American firms is but a "bluff" for political purposes is not likely to force President Wilson to invoke the authority recently invested in him merely to silence his critics, but the growing insolence of England may precipitate action. The following statement is quoted from a Washington despatch, and is deserving of the attention of some official of the United States government:

"It is no secret that the British government has not the least bit of fear that any drastic action will be taken. Embassy officials scoff at the idea that this administration will ever seriously attempt to exercise the right to retaliate by stopping the importation of British goods or refusing clearance papers to British ships. In fact, the statement is made quite openly that the legislation authorizing retaliation is not worth the paper it is written on."

• • • • • •

Most of the New Yorkers who bitterly denounced Wilson for stopping the railroad strike are urging the New York Legislature to meet in special session for the purpose of preventing a general tie-up of industries there.

• • • • • •

Having ended their missonary work among the people the prohibitionists will now seek to reform the Common Council from within.

• • • • • •

Those who do not want to live in "dry" territory can move to the Fourth ward.

At any rate, it's over! How many time have you heard that today!

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

The Country Editor.

A Michigan editor sings as follows:

The country editor, they say,
Has got a snap most every day.
At six o'clock—or just about—
He takes the office ashes out.
Then builds about three fires or more.
And tries to clean the office floor.
He thinks of several items then
And writes them with his rusty pen.
He grabs the big old awkward stool,
And finds a composition rule;
Goes to his favorite eight-point case
And sets type at a steady pace.
In just a half an hour
A man comes in a-feelin' sour,
And with a voice just like a yell,
He starts to talk and swear like thunder.

"Why didn't your old measly news,"
He says while wiping off his shoes,
"Have something in about my Phil,
Who visited at Bishop Hill?
Take my subscription off your books
Before I go and spoil your looks."
And then the sour-faced talking guy
Departs and doesn't say "Good-bye."
The editor, then let alone.
He hears the office telephone.
"I lost a brindle cow last night,
Put in an ad; I'll make it right.
I don't believe in paper ads.
They're merely foolish little fads,
But put the ad in anyway,
And wait six months to get your pay."

Yes, It Happened.

It was the last half of the ninth inning and the score was tied. There were two out, but with three men on bases and Demon Dick, the pinch hitter, at the bat, the fans felt that there was still hope.

Dick struck at two of the pitcher's offerings and missed. The next three were wide of the plate and the umpire called them balls. The pitcher sent over a fast one on a level with the batter's eyes. Demon Dick dropped his bat and started for first base. "Striker out!" yelled the umpire as the ball thuded into the catcher's glove.

The pinch hitter stopped in his tracks. Breathless with suspense, the fans watched him turn and walk toward the umpire, his hands clenched and his face black with rage. "He won't do a thing to that cross-eyed mutt," chortled the bat boy gleefully.

And, as it happened, the bat boy was right. Demon Dick did not do a thing to the umpire. For just as Dick opened his mouth to intone his song of hate, a woman leaned out over the railing of the grandstand box and screamed:

"Richard, don't you dare talk back to him. You know what he did to you yesterday. I'm not going to have you fined again. I want that ten dollars for a new hat."

Only 50 Per Cent. Efficient.

A facetious boss said to a new hod carrier:

"Look-a-here, friend, didn't I hire you to carry bricks up that ladder by the day?"

"Yes, sir", said the hod carrier, touching his cap.

"Well, I've had my eyes on you and you've only done it half a day today. You sepnt the other half coming down the ladder."

The hod carrier touched his cap again.

"I'll try to do better tomorrow, sir," he said humbly.

An Editor and His Money.

Just to show how mighty is the power of money saved, we might mention that somewhere about two months ago we made up our mind to cuit imitating the prodigal son and begin putting our shekels in the bank. Since that time the local bankers have let the contract for a new bank building here in Pawamo, besides purchasing a half interest in another bank over at Hubbardston.—Pewamo News.

While Conductor Hugh Haggerty of the Grand Trunk was taking up tickets on his train the other day he ran across a lady and her son and she tendered him but one ticket. "Madam," said Hugh, "that child looks older than three years. "Yes, indeed, he does, conductor," replied the lady, "that child has had a lot of trouble." The kid rode free.

- Proctor's Theatre -

At Proctor's Tomorrow.

Patrons of Proctor's local theatre will witness a decided treat today in the form of a double feature Fox program, consisting of Virginia Pearson in "Daredevil Kate," and June Caprice, in her second screen vehicle, "Little Miss Happiness."

Virginia Pearson in "Daredevil Kate" introduces to the screen a new and unique character of the vampire type, with a Western background. She is both heroine and villainess with a woman's courage and fearlessness intermingled with a kindness of heart and a nature which at the root has not a spark of evil. In her portrayal of Kate, Miss Pearson is and is not a vampire; her characterization has not the taint of that mythical creature which feeds on the blood of her victims. Kate is a bad woman, though at one time she relents but quickly relapses and is worse than before. Finally the true woman asserts herself and one then sees the largeness of her heart. The portrayal of Kate by Miss Pearson is wonderful.

The second vehicle provided for June Caprice is a very charming story with an unusually refreshing atmosphere, from the pen of Clarence J. Harris. The theme treats of the experiences of a girl who has passed her days surrounded by the flowers of the wild and God's pure air. June Caprice, as Lucy White, is delightful; her work is harmonious and absolutely natural. John G. Adolfi, who directed this production, has shown excellent choice in the selection of locations, and the action throughout the film is smooth and many human situations have been masterfully handled.

Tomorrow another double feature program is presented at Proctor's, and consists of one of the greatest pictures Thomas H. Ince has ever contributed to the Triangle program, entitled "Home," with Bessie Barriscale, Charles Ray and Louise Glaum in the leading roles. William A. Brady tomorrow also provides Holbrook Blinn and Ethel Clayton in "Husband and Wife," and a Keystone comedy completes the bill. On Friday first run Paramount pictures will be introduced at Proctor's to Plainfield film fans, the first offering being Leonore Ulrich in "The Heart of Paula."

Reed, Mayor Leighton Calkins, City Clerk Carroll, V. W. Nash, Jr., J. A. Gaffney, Constable George York, Councilman John Cose, J. Henry Crane, hangers on, and others. Time, from 10:30 last night to 2:30 this morning.)

Bill Townsend—"Boys, it's a great night for the party. Has anybody heard anything from the First ward?"

Jack Gaffney—"Well, Abiel Edgar got one vote for Council on the Democratic ticket in the Fifth district in North Plainfield. If he can break even in the Second district ——— ."

Senator Reed—"Edge is running well. Wait until all the returns come in. How is your brother in-law running, Bill?"

Townsend—"I don't know. Has anybody heard anything from the First ward?"

Townsend—"That's pretty close, boys. Too close! See if you can get something else from the First ward."

Gaffney—"It will all be in soon. Abiel Edgar got a vote for Council on the Democratic ticket over in North Plainfield. If he can break even ——— ."

Bill Nash—"If Cutter wins the Democrats will nominate Ted Martin, and you know what Ted will do in the First ward."

Senator Reed—"The prohibitionists showed they were real politicians. They sure did hire a big band. Crane, if Plainfield goes dry you've got to prosecute the speak-easies. I'm a busy man already. How's your brother-in-law running, Bill?"

Townsend—"Looks like somebody ought to hear something from the First ward. Gaffney says Edgar got one vote for Council on the Democratic ticket in the Fifth district in North Plainfield. I wish it had been in the First ward. He may need it."

J. Henry Crane—"We'll win in every ward but the Fourth and that will be close. Cutter will be nominated in the First all right."

Nash—"If he is, the Democrats will run Ted Martin against him. How's your brother-in-law running, Bill?"

Townsend—"Wonder why that First ward don't report. Somebody go ask Carroll if he's heard anything else from the First ward."

Mayor Calkins—"I am glad to be back at work after a delightful vacation. It was all peaceful and quiet up in Massachusetts. No noisy crowds like you encounter at the sea-shore."

Gaffney—"Edgar and Cutter are tied with the first three districts of the First ward in. They have 161 votes each. If we could only count that vote Edgar got on the Democratic ticket in the Fifth district in North Plainfield."

Townsend—"Look at that Second ward vote. Wonder why that Fourth district in the First ward doesn't show up. This is some primary, believe me!"

Senator Reed—"George York just telephoned that Cutter carried the Fourth district of the First by ten votes. If that's true he's nominated. Your brother-in-law is some runner, Bill. Well, I'm going home."

Nash—"Don't all you fellows go home. Somebody has got to stay and help me bury Bill Townsend when that First ward vote does come in."

Townsend—"Well, here's the Fourth district of the First ward at last. Ten majority for Cutter. Horace Adams ought to be ashamed of himself. That's the sorriest bunch of returns he ever brought in. Some primary!"

.· Plainfield Theatre. ·.

"The Scotch Beaus and Belles," musical comedy, heading the bill at the Plainfield Theatre, elicited much applause from the capacity audience last night. Especially mounted and costumed, the presentation introduces twelve lads and lassies from the land of the heather. The act contains a program of tuneful Scotch song numbers, as well as a line of clever drollery. For speed, snap, dash and all-around superiority, "The Twelve Beaus and Belles" present an act that will be remembered by Plainfielders for a long time. H. W. Anderson and A. C. Evans, playing in J. C. Fitzpatrick's little comedy, "The Wanderer," vie with the above act for the honors of the evening. The sketch contains just enough comedy dialogue to make it an unusually pleasing play.

Girard and Dixon contribute a character singing and talking act, in which they provide a series of clever songs and amusing stories, and the Rogers sisters, eccentric singers and dancers, are presented in a new song and dance offering. Hale, Houson and Company round out the vaudeville numbers with a little bit of variety.

The entire show will be shown at the theatre this evening for the last time. Tomorrow Manager Shannon has secured five entirely new acts which he will present for the remaining three days of the week.

Photoplays are shown at every performance, as well as the Pathe Weekly, the scenic newspaper of current happenings and the latest Paris fashions.

"MAIDS OF AMERICA."

A real treat is in store for those who enjoy good music, at the Plainfield Theatre next week, when the "Maids of America" will appear for one day only, Monday, October 2, with the entire strength of the company which recently was seen at the Columbia Theatre, on Broadway, New York. Al. K. Hall, who is considered to be the funniest man on the stage, is featured with the show and he is responsible for several of the musical numbers, which are tuneful and catchy. Hall will be seen in an eccentric comedy part which will be new to theatregoers in this city, in fact he has just broke away from the present-day comedians, and gone twenty years in advance of the time, to get something new and original. Hall, without a doubt, is the most copied man on the stage. He creates something new one season, and next season it will be done by many of the so-called comedians. That is one of the reasons why the owners of the "Maids of America" engaged Mr. Hall to head its cast this year. Hall has surrounded himself with an excellent cast, including Bobby Barry, scion of the famous family by that name; Miss Billie Hill, who has been spoken of as the most perfect formed woman on the American stage, who has a most exquisite wardrobe of many designs and makes, which will be pleasing to the ladies; Alfaretta Symonds and Mary Mack, two pretty young girls who are just full of life, add much action to the show as well as lead several numbers. Harvey Brooks, the handsomest straight man in the show business, recruited from the ranks of musical comedy, wears twelve different suits during the performance. Others are Joe Weston, Bob Calvert, Ed Bisland, Tony Shane and a great chorus.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

A Little Mermaid Sat In Her Garden.

She Used to Sit With Arms Around the Statue.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Anderson.]

WITH Jack on one side of him and Evelyn on the other daddy began the bedtime story: "When a little mermaid watched her prince wake up and go away into a big white house without her she was very sad. She had saved his life from a shipwreck, you see, and loved him dearly.

"She had always been a silent, thoughtful child, and, with this disappointment on her heart, she now became quieter still. Often her sisters used to ask her what she had seen on her first visit to land, but she would never tell.

"Many a morning and many an evening, the time that mermaids love best to come to the surface, she would rise to the place where she had laid her poor prince upon the white sand by a garden. She watched the fruit in it ripen and gathered. She watched the snow melt on the mountain tops next spring. But she never saw the prince and always dived back home sadder than before.

"At home her only pleasure was to sit in her garden. All six of the mermaid sisters had little gardens of their own, you know. Here she used to sit with her arms around the beautiful marble statue that she had picked up on the bottom of the sea when she was a tiny little mermaid and that now reminded her of her prince.

"Her garden was all gloomy shade now, for she no longer cared to tend her flowers. It looked like a neglected wilderness, with its long stalks and big leaves all tangled in the branches of the sea trees.

"At last she could not bear her sadness any longer. So she told one of her sisters about the prince. From her it spread to some others, but no one except two or three mermaids, who only told it to their dearest friends. One of these knew all about the beautiful prince. She had even been up on the surface and watched him celebrate his sixteenth birthday on board his big ship. She even knew where he came from and where his kingdom was.

"'Come, little sister!' the princess mermaids called. They threw their arms around each other's shoulders and arose from the water in a long line. They came to the surface just in front of the prince's palace.

"It was built of light yellow glistening stone. Great marble staircases ran through it, and one led into a beautiful garden. Above the roof arose great gilded cupolas, and in all the spaces between the marble columns which encircled the palace were lifelike statues."

SMART HAT AND SCARF OF CROCHET.

Among the Many Beautiful Novelties Produced for the Autumn Are These Matched Sets in Wool Crochet.

By Mary Glynn.

The summer sport girl is to be succeeded by her autumn sister, and the most beautiful lot of novelty crocations for outdoor wear of this kind are being produced. Crochet needles and knitting needles which have been so industriously plied in behalf of the soldiers in the trenches in Europe are giving some attention now to the needs of Madame and Mademoiselle, and so in consequence, many very lovely accessories are to be found in the shops. Of zephyr and also of angora are these sets made. They consist usually of scarf and hat or cap. One very interesting feature is a scarf with broad ends and narrow neck muffler. These broad ends are finished in points, and trimmed with a heavy fringe. On the ends are appliqued crocheted roses and foliage, after the style of the Jeanne Lavin of Paris. These quaint little floral garnitures are just too old-fashioned for words, and look like the crewel work of our grandmothers. That kind that we now keep framed in glass cases as an illustration of patience and industry of our feminine forbears.

Accompanying this scarf is a crocheted hat, a real hat, shaped a good deal like a soft felt or cloth hat that a man wears. The brim and the crown are made separately and then set together, and ornamenting the top of the crown almost like a wreath are some pretty crocheted flowers that are used on the scarf. These flowers are really a pink wild rose, eglantine, with green leaves in the natural shade of the rose foliage, but all made out of crochet, painstakingly and sets have a charm which is irresistible.

PARIS LETTER.

The Paris openings are in full bloom and everybody is rushing madly around trying to get news about the latest fashions and news there is a-plenty.

Among the latest startling items are tailored suits and dresses with entire sleeves of fur. Bernard is responsible for this eccentricity and also for the suits which have the entire basque pieces, which, however, it must be admitted, fall from a low waistline, made of fur. It is as if the loins were girded about with bands of fur. A queer idea indeed, but nevertheless it is the "dernier cri" and Paris calls it Charles VI style.

Another point in furs is the funnel collar, which is cut in one with a yoke and being shaped in with seams it stands up about the neck and makes the lady look like she had sunk down into the smokestack of a steamer. Along with these funnel collars that swallow up the neck are shown big sleeves, which starting at a low shoulder line flare widely at the lower edge and are called "pagoda," though I do not know why. Another sleeve eccentricity is the half and half effect, the upper portion of the fabric composing the suit or dress and below the elbow plush or satin to the cuff line which is of a third effect; that is, either braided or trimmed with fur.

Not by any manner of means are all collars funnel shaped, as many of the new suits have band collars often set from a low rounded neckline and in many instances allowed to drop in soft folds about the throat. So if it is not a funnel it is a swathing or neck muffling collar. A frantic effort is everywhere evidenced to make something new.

The more conservative houses have simple looking dresses in Russian blouse style, often with a tunic skirt trimmed at the sides to stimulate the edge of the Russian blouse.

The use of fur and gold embroidery is much in evidence and the craze for pleating already well started extends even to its use in velvet.

I cannot refrain from emphasizing the semi-princess effects which are appearing so strongly. Some of these are obviously of the Moyen-Age type and have the bodice portion and hip yoke of one kind of material to which is set a pleated skirt of another material or color. Sometimes this bodice portion and yoke are made of silk jersey and then it looks as if the wearer had on a real jersey with a pleated skirt.

The Sinews of War.

On the occasion of the annual encampment of a body of militia one of the soldiers, a clerk who lived well at home, was experiencing much difficulty in disposing of his rations. A fellow sufferer near by was watching with no little amusement the first soldier's attempts to Fletcherize a piece of meat. "Any trouble, Tom?" asked the second soldier sarcastically.

"None in particular," was the response. Then, after a sullen survey of the bit of beef he held in his hand, the amateur fighter observed:

"Bill, I now fully realize what people mean when they speak of the sinews of war."

Training a Husband

Marian Has a Plan Which Should Make It Possible For Her to Eat at Meal time.

"Marian, what can be the matter with this coffee?" asked Morris Southy, sipping a spoonful of the beverage.

"Why, I don't know. Isn't it all right? I made it the same as usual." She had no more than poured the coffee before she had to leave the table to attend to the baby.

"It is perfect slop," Morris made a wry face.

"Something must be the matter with the percolator, for I put in the same amount of coffee and of water that I always do."

"I don't know anything about that. This is not fit to drink."

"Will you have time for me to make more?" asked Marian solicitously.

"Guess not. I'm late this morning anyway. We seem to get later and later with our breakfast every morning."

"I overslept about fifteen minutes. When the baby fails to wake me I oversleep. I have lost sleep right along for some time." Morris had pushed the coffee away from him and was addressing his efforts to his egg and toast.

"Let me make you another slice of toast?" Marian had settled the baby in his buggy and was at last ready to eat some breakfast.

"I believe I will eat another." Marian left for the kitchen.

"Make me another, too, mother," called Roger shrilly.

"One egg is enough for you, dear," answered Marian.

"Ah, please, mother, I am hungry," he begged.

"Stop that teasing," commanded Morris sharply. Eat what your mother gives you and be quiet."

"I will give you some more mush, Roger." Marian reached for the bowl. Roger shook his head. Mush had no attractions for him.

"You said you were hungry, now eat your breakfast." Morris reached for another slice of toast.

"I'll have a little more mush, please," announced the polite little Florence.

"Morris, will you please get the child some mush. It is in a stewpan on the stove." Her husband looked up in surprise. "I have not eaten a mouthful yet ,and I am beginning to feel faint. I think that is one thing that makes the day so hard. I never get much breakfast. Everything is stone cold and I am too tired to heat it again when I finally get around to eat." Morris rose and filled the mush bowl.

"I would like some, too, announced Frank . Morris again marched to the kitchen, grumbling about Frank's not finding out about his needs sooner.

"I believe a good plan would be for you to be responsible for Florence's food, cutting it up and getting her wants supplied generally. I will do the little Frank needs and attend to the baby," suggested Marian. "It really is essential that I eat more regularly."

"Why, yes, father's girl is so big she needs very little done for her," assented Morris pleasantly. Marian beamed with pleasure.

"That will be fine. It is so much better for us all to be at the table together."

"That will never do. Even when there were no children you could not set the table. You had to to get up and run five or six times every meal. I got so used to it I could hardly eat when you were here. It did not seem natural." Morris grinned.

"I suppose that is why you never offered to help with feeding the children until I suggested it," retorted Marian.

"Exactly. I grew to expect you to be flying around the room."

"Now Roger sets the table and we will see if we cannot get everything on so there will be no running around at meal time." Marian smiled across the table.

Age of London.

London was probably an ancient British town. It appears to have been resettled by the Romans about 43 A. D., and Londinum (called also Augusta) was the capital of Britannia in the last part of the Roman period. After the departure of the Romans (about 412) and in the early Saxon period its history is obscure, though there were bishops of London from the seventh century. It was plundered by the Danes and rebuilt by Alfred and Athelstan. By the fourteenth century its commerce had greatly developed. It was scourged by the plague in 1665 and was almost entirely destroyed by the great fire of 1666.

WOMEN'S FALL SUITS OF STUNNING STYLE—OF SPLENDID TAILORING.

There's something about the style of our suits—their immense variety—and it may be, too, the unusualness of their prices—whichever explanation you like—there's surely some reason why this department is always so busy.

Suits of Broadcloth, velours, checked and plain — Poiret twills and whipcords. Fur, whether beaver, opossum, sable or near seal edges, the broadcloth suits that have blouse like coats with yoke top peplum, whose fullness is decidedly a side issue. The velours with their double-breasted coats — pockets of skirts are a bit more mannish, while the Poiret twills have panel backs and double belts across the front..... 29.98

Suits of broadcloth and very soft velours—with moleskin—flying squirrel or seal like fur for collars and trimming. Fullness of the peplum on knee length coats is achieved in many ways by skillful yoke—by box pleated in pleats, and one style has a very distinctive draped peplum. The colors are a warm burgundy—a gentle brown—navy and black—and all of these suits are copies of French styles. Very smart. 44.98

Suits of Broadcloth in prune, navy, brown, burgundy, green and black. Semi-fitted knee length coats—with side peplums and pleats, and panel backs. Very simple skirts. Rather distinctive cuts of collar and cuffs of seal and moleskin—and tabs on coat.. 37.98

"The Piping Rock Suit"—In gabardine, poplins, Poiret twills and diagonal whipcords—in navy, black, green and brown. Some are simple straight line models—others with semi-flare coats—simple gathered skirts under belts. Sizes for misses and women.. Specially priced at 17.85

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room in your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

MAKING RETRIBUTION.

James Scott is an individual who believes in treating the fans in the right sort of way. James had a baseball team on Avon Oval last Sunday and is now determined that the "same" calibre of playing put forth by this outfit will not be repeated again this year. James is determined. Therefore something more than promises will be shown next Sunday. Joe Albert has contracted to bring his Scotch Plains team to this city and, according to reports, Joe is ambitious. His ambition is centered about a desire to capture a victory at the expense of Scott's Tabs. Home talent, aided by a little "spice" from Elizabeth, will be Joseph's offering to the public. On Monday evening we had an exclusive story regarding the coming battle. Yesterday we printed the full lineups of each team. These lineups were furnished to us by a press agent of the Tabs. That these lineups are authentic, we firmly believe Harry Applegate or Jimmy Stevens, of the Perth Amboy Pacers, will oppose Cliff Randolph on the mound. Behind the bat, present plans place Frank Hand, for the Alberts, and Eugene Lidgate, for the Tabs; Albin Carlstrom, of Elizabeth, together with Boetner and Johnny Erlexben, of the same burg, have been secured by the Scotch Plains manager. Twing, of the Perth Amboy Pacers, will play with the Tabs, who will present a creditable lineup. And, fans, this will be the last game of the season.

JOHNNY McGRAW LEADS.

James P. Sinnott, author of "In Mid Channel," is one of the most clever baseball writers. Mr. Sinnott is original. He says that Johnny McGraw is the greatest manager of all when it comes to the "business" of baseball. The engineering of beneficial trades is the phase of the "business" to which Mr. Sinniott makes reference. And we guess that J. P. is about right. Mugsy may not be the brainiest manager of all, but still he has the grey matter—at least, enough of it to outguess Wilbert Robinson and a few of his colleagues. Yes, McGraw is one of the best managers, after all.

• • • • • •

WINNING TWENTY-ONE STRAIGHT.

The record is broken. And little Ferdie Schupp had a hand in the breaking. The spirit of the Providence Grays hovered over the Polo Grounds on Monday when the trick was being pulled. For a time it looked as though there would be a hitch in the proceedings but "Poll" Perritt—evidently pleased with the "seed" in "proceed"—came forth from the battle victorious. Now the Giants can crack under the strain if they want to. But a lot of fans would like to se McGraw's men "crack" Brooklyn under the strain. And the opportunity to do that little trick is going to be afforded Johnny and the Giants in a few days.

• • • • • •

EBBETS AND HIGH PRICES.

It is very evident that Colonel Cholly Ebbets and the high cost of living have been pals for a long while. Ebbets has raised the prices for the Brooklyn end of the World Series. And the fans of Brooklyn are up in arms. They see no reason why Ebbets should take advantage of them. Many sport scribes are also "excited." But this much is certain. Although Ebbets has done something "desperate" by raising the prices, still he has not been favored by any startling crowds this year. In fact the attendance figures at some of the games have been disappointing. Perhaps the "ill humor" is mutual, after all.

"DOC" DOYLE AWAKE.

"Doc" Doyle, following in the footsteps of Coach Ralph Patch, ought to wake up and call first practice for his Holy Cross warriors. We hate to censure Mr. Doyle—our predecessor said the same thing about this time last year—but we feel that something definite regarding that football team should be done. We cannot surmise that there is going to be no team, because we know different. And we cannot speak of the team, when we have not seen it. So there you are. Practice, please.

SPORT NOTES

The Worcester club led the Eastern League in batting this season, and finished fifth in the league pennant race.

Gladstone Graney and Ty Cobb are battling all the way for the lead among the American League run-getters.

Eleven regulars in the American League and eight in the National League are batting for .300 or better.

Pitcher Ayland, of Detroit, has forced Nick Cullop, the Yankee twirler, out of first place in the list of American League pitchers.

Joe Jackson, third man in the American League batting averages, is twenty points ahead of Hal Chase, the National League leader.

Billy Miske, the St. Paul middleweight, will clash with Battling Levinsky at the Clermont Club in Brooklyn on Columbus Day.

The Chicago White Sox have lost Kopp, whom they drafted from Buffalo. The Boston Red Sox have copped Kopp through purchase prior to the draft.

Charley Barrett, all-American quarterback and star gridder at Cornell last year, has signed with a Pittsburgh eleven made up of former college stars.

The Milwaukee Brewers have clinched the cellar championship of the American Association all three ways—last in team standing, last in team batting and last in team fielding.

William J. L'Heureux, of San Francisco, who holds the national amateur heavyweight title, is to enter the professional ranks. He boxes under the name of "Bill Larue."

About the most interesting pugilistic clash in prospect just now is the proposed bout between Champion Freddie Welsh and Johnny Dundee. Welsh has been boss of the lighties for several years now, so perhaps Johnny is looking up at the right time.

Coach Paul Withington, assisted by Ed Soucy, Dick King and Jack Doherty, is working day and night with the Wisconsin football squad. If being tutored by all-American gridiron kings counts for anything then the Badgers should come through right side up.

Cornell grads would like to make the Harvard game, rather than the contest with Pennsylvania, the big game of the Cornell football schedule.

The William College football team was riddled of stars through graduation last spring. The team lost Plante, Garfield, Brown, Overton, Tompkins and Wright.

Now that Fred Mitchell has signed a three-year contract with the Braves, Harvard will have to get busy and find another baseball coach. Fred turned out a crack Crimson team this year, but he evidently figures that his prospects in professional ball are better than in the college game.

CONNIE MACK WOULD CONFER WITH HAND

But "Nibs" Cannot Listen to the Athletic Leader's Plea.

Frank Hand and Connie Mack have held another conference. But Cornelius and Francis have come to no agreement. "Nibs," according to the report, has received a letter from the Athletic leader, requesting a little visit from the Scotch Plains boy.

This is not the first time Connie Mack has been after Frank. Some time ago, the energetic Philadelphia squire thought he had "strings" attached to Frank. But, evidently, something went wrong. Now Connie is short of catching material. He has written to Hand, endeavoring to induce the Scotch Plains youth to finish the season with the White Elephants. But Frank has received a business offer from the South and will be unable to harken to the call of Cornelius McGillicuddy.

TWING WILL PLAY WITH SCOTT'S TABS

"Heavy Hitter" of Pacers to Help Trim Scotch Plains.

That the battle between Scotch Plains and the Tabs on Sunday will be well worth witnessing is a certainty. Joe Alberts, who is leading the Scotch Plains team, has assured the fans of the best in the entertainment line. And Joseph is a past master in this line.

Jim Scott has promised to have Cliff Randolph on the mound, with Eugene Lidgate behind the bat. We understand that Twing, the leading batter on the Perth Amboy outfit, will also be on hand to help the Tabs out. Joe Alberts expected to have Hand behind the bat, but, inasmuch as "Nibs" is going South, genial Joseph will have to look elsewhere for material. Harry Applegate or Jimmy Stevens will do the pitching for the Plains team.

KNIGHTS OF ST. PETER DECIDE TO PLAY

Negotiations Are Completed Whereby Jake Deinzer Will Hurl Here.

Announcement was made today to the effect that the Knights of St. Peter will take on the Dunellens on Maurer Oval Saturday afternoon. Negotiations have been under way for some time and the deal was not definitely closed until last night.

The Knights come to Dunellen with a reputation which they must uphold. Jake Deinzer, the Rutgers pitcher, who is signed to a Red Sox contract, will be on the mound for the visitors. Tommy Apgar's present plans do not include any changes in the lineup of his team. In all probability, Johnny Dixon will be on the mound with Eddie Bergen behind the bat. George Ortleb, the Westfield phenom and "vet," will be held in reserve.

This game will mark the close of a most successful Dunellen season. The team, led by Thomas Apgar, finished second in the City League and, but for a poor start, might have finished on top of the heap. A local record of sixteen straight victories was made by the Apgarites and much of the credit is due to Johnny Dixon.

Pert Caddies.

Harry Vardon, the famous English golf player, says in the Golfers' Magazine that American caddies are as a class more independent than their English cousins. He instances the case of a boy in Florida who, coming to him eagerly in the middle of a round, exclaimed, "Here, hold these clubs for a minute and I'll go and kill that snake for you."

This story is fairly matched, however, by that of a Scotch caddy who on Mr. Vardon's dissenting from his judgment as to a certain shot exclaimed indignantly: "All right. You can have your own way now till the finish. Don't ask me anything else."

—When discontent reaches a certain point, the furnished room advertisements become very interesting to some people

By Peter P. Carney.

It has been 16 years since the international match between American and British trapshooters took place. Isn't it about time to think of another meeting?

When the Americans invaded England and Scotland at the beginning of the Twentieth Century, they didn't lose a match, even though they conformed with the rules in vogue in the British Isles.

The "E. C." trophy, permanently won by Homer Clark at the Grand American, had only been won once before by Clark. Bill Crosby had won it six times; Rollo Heikes and Fred Gilbert five each; George Lyon and J. S. Day twice each, and Charley Young, Clark and J. S. Freeman once each.

Live bird shooting is allowed in four States now—Pennsylvania, Missouri, Kentucky and California.

More and more trapshooting is getting the publicity it deserves. Any sport that attracts several hundred thousand shooters to competition during the year is deserving of considerable mention.

There were 17 runs of 100 or better in the Westy Hogan shoot, with R. D. Morgan, of Washington, D. C., topping the list with 233.

Twenty-one trapshooters who participated in the three-day tournament of the Hogans averaged better than 95 per cent. of the 500 targets.

George K. Gilmore, the one-armed shooter of the Wallace (Idaho) Gun Club, is out with an offer to shoot for money, marbles or chalk any one-armed shooters in the country.

HOLY CROSS TEAM TO HOLD MEETING

Gathering Will Be Held in the Daily Press Office Tonight.

The Holy Cross Football club will hold their 1916 organization meeting in the Daily Press office this evening. This club is composed of young men from Plainfield and vicinity and the followers of the gridiron game can look forward to a profitable season.

All of the regulars will report to manager "Doc" Doyle and it is expected that a wealth of new material will also be on hand. It is proposed to have one or two practice games before the regular season is opened. A very hard schedule has been arranged and most of the games will be played on Cricket Field, which has been again secured for Holy Cross operations. Games will be played with the Vikings of Bayonne, Elizabeth A. A., Bradhurst F. C. of New York, Cupids of Brooklyn, and the Franklins of Newark. The locals defeated the Wyomings last year. This was the sailor boys' first defeat in four years.

New uniforms have been secured from the proceeds of last year's games, and will be donned in the opening game. Many new plans will be proposed at the meeting this evening. The following players will, in all probability, report for first practice: Jack Wilson, Lou Brown, Tom Ricketts, Jack Ricketts, Joe Barto, Joe Carty J. Hohenstein, George Trust, Joe Widdowson and a host of others.

LOCAL DOG WINS.

"King Charles," the full-blooded Pomeranian belonging to Mrs. E. Z. Stalter, of Somerville, was declared by the judges at the Allentown Fair, last Thursday, as being the best dog of that breed that they had ever seen. The little fellow is two years old and weighs exactly two and a half pounds.

Why Elephants Fear Mice.

It seems almost incredible that so small and harmless an animal as a mouse is able to frighten an elephant almost out of his senses, yet one little mouse in the hay on which they are feeding will stampede an entire herd. In the elephants' native land there are little animals known as chacanas, which feed on a small sour berry of which elephants are very fond.

They live in settlements, something after the manner of prairie dogs, under the berry bushes, and sometimes, when feeding, the elephants trample upon the little towns, and the chacanas in their fright frequently run up the tubes of the elephants' trunks.

Their long, sharp claws catch in the flesh, and they cannot be ejected. The more violently the monster blows through its trunk the more firmly the hooked claws of the little animal become imbedded in the flesh, and inflammation and death are the result. In captivity, therefore, the elephants think they are in danger of the deadly chacanas when they see a mouse and show signs of great fear.

More Labor Than You Thought.

To write a single letter of the alphabet, it is roughly estimated, requires from 200,000 to 300,000 distinct processes, all of which are controlled and directed by the mind. To make the letter O, for instance, takes but a second, yet if all the mental processes involved had to be performed consciously years would be consumed in the performance. First, the making of the O is willed in the brain, setting in motion the activities of thousands of cells in the hearing areas, the seeing areas, the speech motor areas and the muscular motor areas. Hundreds of nerve threads connecting these cells with various cells and nerve threads in the brain are set to work to organize the movement, while other nerve centers attend to the business of furnishing the requisite amount of blood. As a result, the spinal centers are actuated, and finally the smaller nerves in the fingers direct the forming of the O.

Discovering a Star.

Long had he worshipped her at a distance, but his shyness prevented him from proposing.

Then one evening, for the sweet sake of charity, a theatrical performance took place in which the charmer was leading lady and more adorable than ever. Afterward the lady admirer drew near, his love made valiant by the sight of her beauty.

"You are the star of the evening," he said as they stood alone in a corner.

"You are the first to tell me so," said the damsel, with a happy blush.

"Then," he retorted promptly, "may I claim my reward as an astronomer?"

The lady looked puzzled.

"What reward?" she asked.

"Why, the right to give my name to the star I have discovered," said the young man, speaking boldly at last.—Chicago News.

FINE OPPORTUNITY TO BUYERS OF SURBURBAN PROPERTIES

Beginning Thursday, Sept. 28, at 2 p. m., the auction sale of homesite plots in Flanders Park, Scotch Plains, will offer an unusually fine opportunity to buyers of suburban properties for discreet investment.

As advertised and announced, a wagon load of handsome gifts will be distributed among those in attendance upon the sale. These will be given whether anyone buys or not.

The terms of payment for the plots to be sold at this auction have been made so easy that anyone can purchase and pay in installments to suit himself.

The plots are large enough to provide kitchen gardens and spacious front lawns. Transportation facilities to and from Flanders Park in every direction are splendid—regular and quick.

In addition to the building sites, a large dwelling which occupies the center of a very attractive grove of old trees, and is surrounded by ample grounds will be offered to the highest bidder on Saturday.

Call at 173 East Front street, Plainfield, for maps, circulars and all information pertaining to this sale. The gifts are on display at this address.

Remember tomorrow, Thursday, the sale starts, and that every visitor shall be entitled to participate in the distribution of the gifts—Adv. **

MAY CHANGE SITE OF HOPE CHAPEL

Question Discussed at Parish Meeting of Crescent Ave. Presbyterian Church.

DEFER IMPROVEMENTS

Congregation Believe New Edifice at Another Location Would Be Advisable—Plans for Enlarging Bethel Chapel Considered.

The congregational meeting of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church parish, held in the lecture rooms of the Crescent avenue church last night for the purpose of taking further action on the proposed additions and alterations to Bethel and Hope chapels, brought out a large number of members from the three parishes. The plans for the additions and alterations of the two buildings, together with reports and recommendations of the official boards of the churches were received.

The proposed alterations to Bethel chapel include a two-story addition to the Washington avenue side of the present structure. This increased room will provide for added social and educational work as well as more Sunday school room. The improvements as presented last night would cost approximately $10,000.

The Hope chapel plans call for an enlargement of the gymnasium, the restrictions of which has been felt for a number of years by the younger people of the chapel; the building of two additional bowling alleys, as well as additions to the club and Sunday school rooms. The estimated cost of the changes would be about $15,000. No definite action was taken last night, however, owing to the fact that the members of Hope chapel who were present appeared to be of the opinion that a new location for Hope chapel further west would be more practicable than the present location, because of the shifting population. It seemed to be the unanimous opinion of the Hope chapel members that if it were possible for the church to see its way clear to select another site at this time it would be preferable to invest the $15,000 this way than in alterations and additions to the present chapel.

Beginning in January, 1887, with a Sunday school enrollment of twenty-seven children, Hope chapel has grown to such proportions that the present structure is entirely too small for the many activities of the congregation.

The late Henry C. Squires organized the Sunday school on that date at the chapel's present site, the first structure having been a small frame building moved from the present site of Bethel chapel, to West Fourth street, at the head of John street. Since 1888, twelve additions have been erected to the original building, the latter still standing at the center of the most unique set of extensions to be claimed by any structure in this vicinity.

Another meeting of the parish will be held within the course of the next month or six weeks at which time the questions will again come up for deliberation and in the meantime the boards of the various churches will meet with the committee from Hope chapel and go over the situation confroting that congregation. The report of the latter will be acted R report of the latter will be submitted at the next congregational parish meeting. Townsend Rushmore acted as chairman of the meeting last night.

COUNCIL HAS RIGHT TO CLOSE SALOONS

City Charter Gives Body Authority to Refuse All Licenses.

The Plainfield Common Council has full authority to refuse all applications for saloon licenses and to make the town dry so far as open saloons are concerned. This is given in the city charter, and Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed has passed on the authority allowed. He says that the Council has the right to grant as many or as few saloon licenses as it deems fit, or none at all. After a majority have decided to grant licenses the manner of procedure is fixed by State law.

Section 30 of the charter of the City of Plainfield reads:

"And be it enacted, That the Common Council of said city, or a majority thereof, shall have the exclusive right and power to regulate or prohibit the sale of spirituous and fermented liquors within said city as they deem most conducive to the public good; no person or persons shall in any manner sell or dispose of spirituous or fermented liquors unless licensed to do so by the Comman Council."

It is the opinion of many of those connected with the city government that if the local Council refuses all saloon licenses and directs a petition to the Union County Court asking that club licenses be refused for this city the court will obey the wishes of the Council, thus making the town absolutely dry so far as legal sales are concerned.

CUTTER TO REFUSE ONE NOMINATION

Does Not Want to Go on Ballots as Representing Two Parties.

Frederick S. Cutter will not qualify for the Democratic nomination for Councilman from the First ward, according to his friends. Mr. Cutter was on Tuesday nominated on the Republican ticket by defeating A. E. Edgar, but he also got six Democratic votes, and according to the New Jersey primary laws he can go on the official election ballots as the Democratic nominee also. This would not add to his strength, his advisers have decided, and the Democratic nomination will be left to the Democrats. Theodore Martin, former Councilman, has said that he would make the race. Whether Mr. Martin will have his name put on the ticket as the Democratic nominee or will run as an independent has not yet been decided. He can do either. It is only necessary that he file a petition thirty days before the election.

ANOTHER ARREST IN SWINDLE CASE MADE

The local police advanced another step toward rounding up those responsible for taking $648 from Anne Tosmlaska in this city last June, and who are believed to be operating in various other cities, when Josephia Rokoski, aged 47, of 331 Cottage place was held in $200 bail by Judge De Meza this morning charged with aiding and abetting in the affair. She is to be taken to Elizabeth today along with Bolek Broseiki, alias Stanley Stankovitz, who was held under $3,000 bail yesterday morning, charged with larceny.

It was at the house of the Rokoski woman that Anne Tosmlaska first met Broseiki. The woman is said to be a regular matchmaker for the young Polock of the city, and after she succeeded in bringing the couple together, it is said, she advised the girl to draw her life savings from the bank, with the result that she lost the money.

She was arrested by the police the day after the affair happened last June, but for lack of evidence was let go. Since Broseiki was caught in Passaic last Monday, however, things have been found out that warranted her rearrest.

FRELINGHUYSEN CELEBRATES VICTORY AT THE PRIMARY

Members of the Domino Club of North Plainfield were among the invited guests at a celebration held in honor of Joseph Frelinghuysen at Somerville last night. A parade with plenty of red fire, was part of the celebration.

In his fight for the Republican nomination for Senator, Mr. Frelinghuysen received undivided support in North Plainfield, and it was in appreciation of the good work accomplished by his borough friends that the invitation to attend the celebration was extended.

CHARLES RUTHERFORD HELD FOR GRAND JURY FOR THEFT

Waiving examination to allow the case to go before the grand jury, Charles Rutherford, charged with the theft of a magneto from the Standard Aero Corporation, of this city, valued at $60, was held in $200 to await the action of the grand jury by Judge DeMeza this morning.

The two charges of larceny preferred against Rutherford by Fred Glaser, of Clinton avenue, were dismissed, the overcoat he took being recovered and he offering to refund the money. The reason for the alleged thefts seems to be rather mysterious. He is a young fellow, well dressed, and seems to have plenty of money. It is known that he has an estate in California and on several occasions has had money telegraphed to him.

WANT FULL ATTENDANCE.

The Agoga Bible class of the Park Avenue Baptist church is making special efforts to have a 100 per cent. attendance next Sunday morning at 9:45 o'clock, when several new feautres will be introduced. The members not interested enough to respond to the special invitation will be dropped from the list.

TEMPERATURE TODAY.

Temperature at the State Trust Company this morning at 9 o'clock was 78; at 11 a. m., 74, and at 1 p. m., 80 degrees.

Judge and Mrs. Wm. Newcorn and family wish their many friends a Happy New Year. No cards.—Adv. ***

TUTTLE HAS WON UNUSUAL HONOR

Democratic Nominee for Congress Had No Opposition in Primary.

IS SURE OF SUCCESS

Frankly Admits He Is Seeking Seat in Congress, but Because of Desire to Serve a Nation, a People, a World.

The unopposed nomination of William E. Tuttle, Jr., of Westfield, as the Democratic candidate for Congress is not unprecedented but unusual enough to attract public attention. It is both a personal and political tribute to a man who stands high, and deservedly so, in the public, business and social life of the Fifth Congressional District. Whatever may be the partisan results of the election in November the fact will be admitted by sincere men of all parties that the Democracy has named a man "worthy and well qualified," a man absolutely free from the petty political entanglements that often inspire, and sometimes justify, party disloyalty. Mr. Tuttle is seeking, and he frankly admits the seeking, no new or untried place in the public service, but a place he has filled with conspicuous honor and ability. He has demonstrated the keen insight and fine courage of the business man in politics. His record is the irrefutable pledge of what one of the most important districts in the East may expect from its representative if his election shall follow in November.

A Press reporter found Mr. Tuttle

DEFER OPENING OF THE DAY NURSERY

Date is Set for Monday, October 9—Appeal Made for Financial Assistance.

Although permission has been granted by the Board of Health to reopen the Day Nursery on West Front street, next Monday, the King's Daughters will defer the event until Monday, October 9, at which time they will resume their daily reigstration of infants and little children. The building has been closed practically the whole summer, as a precautionary measure against the spread of infantile paralysis. The milk station, however, has been kept open the entire time and has been a wonderful help to the scores of parents. It was announced today, as a record well worth being proud of, that not one of the children who have been taken care of at the Nursery or the milk station suffered in the slightest way from infantile paralysis during the present epidemic.

During the time that the house has been closed the rooms have been entirely cleaned and renovated. The management has looked after every comfort of the tots who are to be registered and have provided plenty of wholesome amusement for their benefit during the day.

Because of the suspension of registrations, the expense of the helpers and paying for vacations of those in charge, the treasury has been greatly depleted. Although many Plainfielders have been very generous in contributing to the support of the Nursery, there are still those who in former years have helped, but this summer have for some reason or other neglected to make their contribution. In order to carry on the work in the usual way, the Nursery appeals to the public to assist it along financial lines. Donations or checks may be sent to Mrs. A. M. Most, at Myrtle avenue and Sycamore avenue, the borough, at any time.

The public is cordially invited at all times to visit the West Front street home and see just how the work is carried on of caring for the little tots whose mothers are obliged to work during the day in order to provide food and dress for the family. Some of the cases are really pathetic—where the husband is a cripple or the mother is a widow. Plainfield people are asked to assist these worthy children by contributing your mite. All contributions are gratefully accepted and will be applied to a good cause.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY.

The Temple Baptist church will observe its twenty-fifth anniversary the week beginning October 17, and the members of the First and Park Avenue Baptist churches will unite. Rev. Evarts C. Conover, the pastor, has the program in charge.

BAPTISTS TO RALLY.

Rally day exercises will be held at the First Baptist church next Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock, when there will be a special program of interest together with instrumental music.

AT TRENTON FAIR.

John Smalley, Clinton Conover and Warren Townley, of the borough, were taken to the Trenton Fair this morning in George Giddis' car.

WILLIAM F. ARNOLD IS CRITICALLY ILL

William F. Arnold, city treasurer of Plainfield for the past thriteen years, and custodian of school funds, is critically ill at his home on Third place, following a stroke of paralysis about 7 o'clock morning. He was stricken in bed before arising, and immediately became unconscious. He remained in this condition until toward noon when he became partially conscious. Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, the family physician, who was summoned, said this afternoon that Mr. Arnold's condition was serious, but that he had hopes that he would recover from the attack.

Mr. Arnold is perhaps one of the best known citizens of Plainfield, where he was born. He has been connected with the City National Bank for many years and is now vice president and cashier of the institution, beside being president of the Plainfield Savings Instiution. He has been unusually active of late, attending to his many duties as a city and bank official. He was first elected as city treasurer November 4, 1902, taking office January 1, 1903, and serving continuously ever since.

HENRY J. MOHRING KILLED BY A "FLIER"

Aged Citizen Was Deaf and Failed to Hear Approaching Train.

Henry J. Mohring, a resident of this city for the past forty-one years, and known to hundreds of Plainfielders, was struck and instantly killed by a Philadelphia "flyer" yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Rock avenue crossing of the New Jersey Central. Spectators who witnessed the tragedy say that passersby cautioned the man not to cross the tracks btu he contiued across, probably thinking he could reach the other side of the track before the flyer came upon him. Mohring was stone deaf and this fact was responsible for his not hearing the approach of the train.

Mohring was 77 years of age and had made his home while in Plainfield with his daughter, Mrs. Charles S. Wilson, of 526 West Fifth street. He came to this country from Germany, and for many years was employed as a gardner for various local families. In recent years he has acted as assistant in the care of the Evergreen Avenue cemetery. He was a widower and beside the daughter with whom he resided, he leaves one son, Louis Mohring, of Bayonne.

The body was taken charge of by J. J. and C. A. Higgins, and the funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from the residence of Mrs. Wilson. The service will be in charge of the Rev. Mr. Hauser, pastor of the German Reformed church, and the interment will be in the Evergreen Avenue cemetery.

"WETS" MAY HAVE A PARADE ON LATZKO

Tomorrow Night They Plan to Serenade Mayor "Bill" and His Gang.

Morris Latzko will not have a wholesale liquor store on Somerset street after tomorrow, for Saturday Constable George York is to sell him out, but before he retires to the environments of his farm on the Rahway road to take up his calling as a horticulturist, Morris says he is seriously thinking of giving all the "wets" in town a rousing good time and as a result they are laying off for a few rounds in order to be able to do the occasion justice. Some brilliant mind suggested to Latzko the plan of having a grand parade down Somerset street tomorrow night and past Mayor "Bill" Smalley's and other borough celebrities' houses that will rival the "dry" parade of last Saturday. A large hay wagon will do the trick nicely, it is thought. With a bottle of "the cup that cheers" in each hand all the advocates of the "wet" program will be seated in the wagon singing "How Dry I Am."

Latzko says that now they have succeeded in running him out of business, he is to start a horticultural school for the farmers of Union, Somerset and Middleex counties on his farm on Rahway road. He has qualified with the Government as an instructor and says he is going to teach the farmers all the fine arts of grafting a peach tree on an apple tree.

Up the Hudson to West Point, Etc.

By JAMES J. McNAMEE.

Douglas, Ariz., Sept. 22.—Captain Frederick E. Rohrbach, of Company A, Fifth infantry, today expressed hs indignation over what he believes is a slighting of his company by Election Officer Benjamin Farrier, of Jersey City, who was sent here by Secretary of State Thomas F. Martin to take the soldiers' primary vote and who completed his work last week. According to Captain Rohrbach, but two members of Company A were apprised of the fact that they would be given a chance to cast a ballot and the rest of the outfit knew nothing of the officer's presence until today.

In speaking of the Paterson soldiers, Captain Rohrbach declared that he believed every man would have taken advantage of the opportunity to cast a primary ballot if they were notified in the proper way, and he is at a loss to understand the circumstances surrounding the incident. All of the other companies in the Fifth voted, but Company A happened to be isolated in the center of the site vacated by the First regiment and the news of Mr. Farrier's presence was therefore kept from them.

MUSIC WILL FEATURE GUILD ANNIVERSARY

Numbers to Be Given by Queen City Quartet and Orchestra—Reports Presented.

As announced on previous dates the Plainfield Plant Flower and Fruit Guild will celebrate its second anniversary tomorrow evening at 7:45, in the lecture room of the First Baptist church. The reports that will be submitted will prove satisfactory to all who are interested in the work for which this society was organized, and the many cases of absolute need to which it has rendered assistance and the many homes which it has brightened through the distribution of fruit, flowers and many articles of clothing and food will be a surprise to many citizens, and it is hoped that a good attendance will greet the president, Joseph M. Harper, and the officers of the guild on this occasion.

The program committee promises a very pleasing entertainment, having arranged several numbers of vocal and instrumental music by the Queen City Quartette and the guild orchestra, under the direction of Mrs. John C. Evans, whose ability is well known in this city, and very interesting speakers will give an outline of the work as accomplished in larger cities, displaying several stereopticon views in connection with the work.

The Biederwolf song books will be used, and it is requested that all who have them bring them on this evening.

A birthday offering will be taken for the benefit of the guild treasury and may there be a generous response for this worthy cause.

"PLAYING" COST HURLING AND MARCH $10 EACH

It cost Matty Hurling and William March, colored, $10 a piece or forty days in the county jail for "playing" at 215 Muhlenberg place, yesterday afternoon when they were arraigned before Judge DeMeza in city court this morning. Patrolman Charles Wicht made the arrest after he found March running around the street with a big gash in his head. The latter said the two had been playing, but when the Hurling woman appeared in court with a black eye the judge thought it was a little too strenuous. March was hit over the head first with a beer bottle and then he hit the woman.

The quarterly business meeting of the First Baptist church will be held October 11 and the trustees will meet on the following evening, October 12.

Becomes Wife of Edward M. Pyatt at Attractive Home Wedding in Dunellen.

Following the wedding a reception was held, during which the young couple received the congratulations of their friends. The parlors and reception hall were decorated for the occasion, the prevailing colors being pink and green. Naylor's orchestra provided music during the evening. At a late hour, Mr. and Mrs. Pyatt left for Atlantic City on their honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Pyatt received numerous handsome presents, among which were included furniture, cut glass, silver and several substantial checks. The couple are well known throughout this section. EDUCATOR'S NOTEBOOK

"Go down East," young woman," would be at this time a good version of Horace Greeley's advice to young men, to the trained teacher who has not found any situation in the teaching field. The demand for trained teachers in Maine far exceeds the supply. The State needs about one thousand new teachers every year and the normal schools do not graduate nearly that number. Consequently every normal graduate can secure at once an excellent position in the Pine Tree State, two, in fact, if she could fill them both. One of the reasons for the Maine shortage, besides the fact that she does not graduate a sufficient number of normal trained teachers, is the fact that many of those she does graduate go for positions to Massachusetts, where the pay is higher.

For the first time in the history of New Jersey young women of this State will be able to begin a college course this fall. New York University, in co-operation with the Newark Institute of Arts and Sciences, will offer there the freshman year of its course in arts and sciences leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees, and following its general policy of extending higher education to all the university will open this course to women as well as men. This step marks the entering wedge into what is probably the last stronghold of educational conservatism in the United States. That New Jersey, the seat of Princeton University, should be perhaps the last State to have a college course open to women is the more surprising since there are and there have been for so many years such excellent opportunities for the higher education of men. For girls graduating from the high schools, the only higher education available has been that given by the State normal schools and the city training schools, and that available only to would-be teachers and by no means comparable to that of collegiate standard. The one tiny breach in the wall of conservatism raised so far against the woman by the higher educational institutions of New Jersey, had been the opening to women a year or two ago of the special summer courses conducted with State aid at Rutgers College, New Brunswick.

As trade follows the flag so does language follow trade, and the efforts made in Great Britain and France at the present in the study of Russian, preparatory to the enormous amount of trade expected with their great imperial ally after the war, can be precisely paralleled in the feverish "stampede" for Spanish in North America, intent upon securing the enormous markets of the Spanish-speaking continent to the South. The University of Birmingham will inaugurate next month a chair of Russian, whose endowment by the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce is proof enough of its being established "with special reference to the commercial point of view," as its announcement tells us. Admirers of the treasure house of Russian literature, which through its extraordinarily gifted novelists, is beginning to influence the whole thought of Europe and America, are noting with great interest the departure in the study of the language which has not yet been cultivated to any extent in the universities of Western Europe. It is a significant beginning, and concords with the prophecy that after the war the intellectual and political prestige of Russia will be greatly increased, and a corresponding desire to study her life, art, thought and language come into existence. The three master tongues now most eagerly sought by students the world over, English, French and German, may within two decades or so have a vigorous young Russian brother sitting by their side on school benches.

Motion pictures are used with the greatest success in several grade and high schools in Minneapolis as an aid in commercial and industrial instruction as well as in history, geography, zoology and botany. Industrial classes are given the opportunity to watch the manufacture of an article throughout the entire process, giving them a quicker and fuller understanding of the matter at hand than any other presentation. Many of the pictures shown in the industrial classes beside have an added geographical value, such as, for instance, those depicting the shipping industry along the coast or the Great Lakes. In history, the interest and consequently efficiency of the pupils has increased to an astonishing degree since the introduction of the "movies." In zoology, pictures of animals and their haunts and modes of life in the various localities they are found, have transformed a rather dry subject into a veritable romance world for students, who now "travel" eagerly along with their subject, on the wings of the "movies."

Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., claims the distinction of the "oldest living graduate," in the person of Stephen K. Williams, of the class of 1837, and living in Newark, N. J. Union College was founded in 1795 and has a promising young brother and namesake in Nebraska, with a number of pupils almost equal, which was founded in 1891.

Rheims, under intermittent German bombardment for over two years, has a daily average of 1,300 pupils attending school above and below ground, and more below than above, the majority of the classes being held in the cellars and wine vaults of the town, with which Rheims is very well supplied, being the centre of the famous Champagne industry. The children will soon enter upon the third year of this sub-terranean school work, for which one can imagine hardly any other parallel than the early Christians teaching neophytes in the catacombs of Rome. In periods of comparative quiet the teachers at times assemble the children in customary school rooms, and even venture into the open air to hold their classes, but the roar of German guns is the signal for the quick descent of the brave little processions into the bowels of the earth, at times two stories below the surface, where by the light of candles the class work is resumed. The teachers are said to have grit their teeth, after the manner of all France at this time, and vowed that Rheims would have "school at any price." The children themselves show little fear, having become accustomed to the extraordinary conditions.

The Modern School of Methods for Sunday school leadership is developing among the negoes, and the second such educational convention is assembled this week at Clark University, Atlanta, Ga. The movement among colored people began in September, 1913, at Knoxville College, when forty-seven people were present, representing nineteen institutions. Almost every person then present has taught a teacher training class each year since, and there are now such classes in one hundred negro colleges in nineteen States, registering 3,060 students. Seventeen college presidents teach in these classes and sixteen classes were organized exclusively for members of the faculties. This training is now officially approved by the Congregational, Methodist, Presbyterian, Christian and United Presbyterian bodies. There are three million negroes in the United States under twenty years of age, and more negroes altogether than there are Canadians in Canada.

SCOTCH PLAINS AND FANWOOD

ACTIVITIES OF LABOR LEADERS DISCUSSED

J. Philip Bird Believes Time Ripe for Comprehensive Public Inquiry.

Under the caption, "Let In the Light," J. Phillip Bird, of Evergreen avenue, president of the Manufacturers' Association of New Jersey, has the following to say regarding the activities of organized labor leaders:

"Busines men, big and little, and business interests, interstate and local, lawfully engaged in the prosecution of workaday affairs, have in recent years been treated to an overgenorous measure of investigations, surveys, questionnaires, valuations, national inventories and other third degree whatnots, ostensibly in the public interest.

"That some good has resulted I do not deny; that injury and injustice have been wrought through the manipulation of facts, through the twisting and garbling of data to fit conclusions preconceived by self-annointed reformers, social experimenters and would-be industrial emancipators, is beyond argument.

"Throughout the whole process there has developed a frenzied effort to divorce capital and labor, by heaping obloquy on capital to destroy the mutuality of employer and employe.

"Assuming to represent all those who work with their hands, if not with their brains, organized labor has dinned its demands upon the law makers with lure of rewards and threats of political destruction. Strong in the numbers of their blind followers, irresponsible as to obligations, reckless, treacherous and vindictive in methods, merciless in their persecutions, the overlords of organized labor have set up a hierarchy that has become a national menace. The recent federal railroad wage law, the threats of wholesale sympathetic strikes in New York, the spirit of sabotage engendered and encouraged everywhere, the contemptuous campaigns planned before State Legislatures, afford ample evidence of an evil, pernicious influence that should be exposed to the broad light of day.

"Is not the time ripe for a comprehensive public inquiry, by a formally constituted tribunal of men judicial in temperament, fearless, disinterested, patriotic, as to the operations of those agencies whereby the makers of the laws of the land are whipped and bribed to their knees in subservience, to the prostitution of their offices that their terms may be prolonged?

"Speed the day when it shall come and with it bring a searching of hearts and memories among those in high legislative, executive and administrative places with whom through baseless fear and sordid dread the edge of conscience has been forever dulled!"

NOW A MAJOR GENERAL

"Black-Jack" Pershing.

The Washington nomination of Brigadier General John J. Pershing to be a major general was looked upon today by his brother officers at the War Department as the most popular and deserved promotion made in Secretary Baker's incumbency in office. "Black-Jack" Pershing, as he is affectionately called, has had his name "written all over the army's book of fame." The enlisted man idolizes him. Selection of General Pershing to lead the Mexican expedition was commended universally, because of his record. His first real field work was in the capture of Geronimo.

BROWN MAY RUN AS DEMOCART, IS RUMOR

Was Nominated at Primaries on That Ticket for Council, Although Republican.

As far as Fanwood township is concerned there is need of another election to determine the local political offices. With no opposition at all William Ward is certain to return as a member of the township committee, which is the only office to be filled.

In the borough, however, things are somewhat different. Fred W. Creesy, who is up for re-election as Councilman, is fairly sure of retaining his seat, but it is probable that the fight for the seat occupied by Offley Brown will wax warmer as the campaign grows.

Luke Pandick filed his petition and last Tuesday was successfully nominated by the Republican and Democratic tickets both, the Democrats having none of their own party in the field. Brown, although a Republican, was also nominated on the same ticket, and if he decides to run at the general election may stand a chance of election. He has not yet said whether or not he will run.

A large crowd of local rooters will accompany the boys when they leave by trolley.

WAGNER COLLEGE MAY COME TO NEW JERSEY

Lutheran Clergy Discuss Advisability of Change at Conference.

The fall conference of the Lutheran clergy of North New Jersey concluded its sessions yesterday afternoon. The principal topics of discussion were the removal of Wagner College from Rochester to the environments of New York city, either to the New Jersey shores or to Staten Island. There was also a review of the mission fields of Northern New Jersey counties.

The services at St. Peter's German Lutheran church, held on Tuesday evening, were well attended and the congregation edified by two eloquent sermons, one in English by Rev. F. A. Bavendam, of Jersey City, was a word picture of Christ at the Pool of Bethesda, and the lesson of sin, selfishness and final sunshine to be learned there. The sermon in German, delivered by Rev. W. Eickmann of West New York, was a philosophical discourse of life in comparison with the journeying on the ocean through the storms under safe guidance of the Master. The church choir rendered two selections, one in German, Miss Hedwig Grotmann as soprano soloist; and the Lost Chord for the English part of the service.

Some fifty ministers and lay delegates attended the conference, and were royally entertained by the congregation. Automobiles were engaged to take the visitors to the Washington House for dinner, and in accordance with the urgent wish of the clergymen, the tour was extended by a visit to the Castle and the Mausoleum of the Moldenke family, where the tomb of the late Rev. Dr. E. F. Moldenke, once the head of the Lutheran Church of America, received the offering of silent prayer.

Plainfield will ever be remembered by the visitors, who were delighted with this city, its cleanliness, beautiful surroundings and the hospitality of its people. The church, the Ladies' Aid Society, choir, and individual hosts, were especially thanked by joint resolution.

HAS WON UNUSUAL HONOR

very frank in the expression of his gratitude for honor given him in the primary on Tuesday. "It is no empty honor," he said, "to have deserved the confidence of a great party, to be selected as its standard bearer and spokesman in one of the most important campaigns in American history. The party must win because it deserves to win, and I believe the great and diversified interests of this district demand representation in a Congress that is almost certain to be in sympathy and accord with President Wilson. Just so long as ours is a government by parties and legislation the voice of party controlled committees and caucuses, just so long will the units represented by minorities be without voice in the conception and direction of legislation. Perhaps this is the weakness of our system, but it is a condition, not a theory we are dealing with.

"I recall a very important campaign over in he Sixth District several years ago. At the end of a strenuous primary Judge Martin was the successful candidate and the party settled down in calm anticipation of victory in November. With startling suddenness there came from the most influential Democratic newspaper in the district this inquiry: 'Judge Martin what do you want to go to Congress for?' The inquiry was denounced as an impertinence by party organization but with keen discernment Judge Martin accepted it as the inquiring voice of public conscience. That inquiry remains a pertinent and proper interrogation in our politics. Perhaps I will be understood by saying that my answer to this proper inquiry is the record of my recent two continuous terms in Congress as the representative of this district.

"No greater honor could come to any man than to become by popular choice the Representative in Congres of this district, one of the most conspicuous for its intelligence and patriotism, and one of the most diversified in its commercial, industrial and agricultural interests. As I look back on the four years given to the service of this district I have particular satisfaction in the service rendered and the recognition of that service. I have particular satisfaction in my connection with the great postoffice committee on which I served during both terms, a majority member, and personally entrusted with some of the most important constructive work of that committee, helping to frame the parcels post law, aiding in the adjustment of legislation that has added wonderfully to the efficiency of the greatest department of our national government. Few indeed realize the extent and efficiency of this wonderful organization. As an appreciation of service rendered in the workshop of that committee I was the selection of the Speaker to represent the House on the joint commission, of which Senator Bourne was chairman, to regulate and readjust the compensation of railroads carrying the mails. So much of fairness to both the public and railroads is involved in this adjustment that my interest in that leigislation has grown with my separation fro mresponsibility. Perhaps I may add, without being accused of using the splendid new postoffice buildings that adorn Plainfield and Morristown, that my influence and personal relations with my colleagues was of some practical value to my constituents.

"Another committee assignment, and the public understand that all legislation is perfected and determined in committee, was the committee on coinage, weights and measures, one of the oldest committees of Congress without a single piece of constructive legislation to its credit. I became interested, as all business men were, in the nation wide movement for better and permanent standards of weights and measures. The 'Tuttle Standard Barrel Bill' was the result of that interest. It became effective on July 1 last, and is the first act of Congress to actually fix a national standard and to eliminate the confusion and dishonesty of fraudulent containers and pave the way for other useful and practical legislation along this line.

"Since my retirement from Congress I have been associated with one very important public enterprise at the personal request of President Wilson, i. e., U. S. Commissioner to the Panama Exposition. I allude to it only because the business interests of this country have come to realize that their business relations with South America, the practical sincerity of our Government's protestation of helpfulness was involved in the success or failure of that exposition. To the very much involved interests, political and personal, of our excitable Latin neighbors I gave what I had of tact, energy and business ability. The success that came out of original failure has done something to establish the better understanding with the Republic of Panama in particular and all South America in general.

"President Porras, of Panama, in his letter of February 26, 1916, said: 'The success of our exposition is entirely due to your valuable co-operation and that of your government.'

William Price, American minister to Panama, on March 8, 1916, wrote the State Department as follows: 'I am sure that Commissioner Tuttle is entitled to the highest credit for the manner in which he has fulfilled all duties appertaining to his position, and it is a distinct pleasure to bear witness to the tactfulness, thoroughness and excellent good sense and ability, which have been evident at all times in his work as commissioner from the United States to this Exposition.'

"Robert Lansing, Secretary of State, on April 11, 1916, said: 'The Department desires to convey to you an expression of its high appreciation of your services in preparing the exhibit and of the tact, discretion and good judgment you have shown in your relations with the Panama Government and people.'

"I deem these facts, stated as briefly as possible, important because my first campaign was made on a platform of sentiment and any further claim I may have on public confidence and support must be found in the record of service and accomplishment. There is no offensive public curiosity in a desire to know men, to understand actuating motives, to appraise ambition. Our country is facing conditions unprecedented. The world is concerned. You are concerned about the men this new condition has developed. You want to know about their inspirations and aspirations, the environment in which they are developing, the quality of their ambition for public service. It is going to be the most important year in the history of republican form of government, perhaps the supreme test of self-government. By reason of its exceptional and unusual prominence in national affairs New Jersey has been set upon a hill to be observed of all men and our citizenship is scrutinizing with intense interest the men who aspire to be associated with a New Jersey President in the conduct of national affairs, to render to mankind that service which is essentially and fundamentally nonpartisan.

"Without discussing the issues of this campaign I may re-assert my loyalty to President Wilson and the policies he has made the articles of Democratic faith. No man since Lincoln has faced the problems that have confronted him. He has kept us out of war and maintained the honor and dignity of his country, made his party the instrument of peace and prosperity, patience and patriotism. No greater honor could come to any man than to have a part in big things, to serve a nation, a people, the welfare of the world. I am frankly ambitious for this service."

DECLARES IT WAS SLIGHTED

The return today of Lieutenant Colonel Wilmer A. Cadmus, of the Fifth, caused a general shaking up in the duties of the field and staff personnel of the regiment. Colonel Cadmus has been enjoying a fifteen-day furlough at his home in Paterson granted to him in order that he might discharge his duties as county jury commissioner.

Charging that politics influenced the promise of a discharge for Private Harold Billington, of the Jersey Signal Corps, Capt. William Y. Dear today declared the procedure that will in all likelihood bring about the private's discharge was the rankest displayed by the powers higher up since the Jerseymen arrived. In referring to Private Billington the corps captain claimed that he was one of the laziest men in the Jersey troops and assigned his promise of a discharge from the War Department solely to his intimacy with Secretary Joseph Tumulty, also of Jersey City.

Not since the Jersey troops came to Douglas has there been such a flood of applications for discharges as are now pending action. Brigade headquarters has been kept busy twelve and fourteen hours a day checking up affidavits.

The season of standstorms has set in, according to natives, and the soldiers may be treated to some thrilling experiences every day from now until early spring if they stay here. The hurricanes, accompanied by clouds of sand so thick that one cannot see a foot in front of him, come up almost instantaneously and last from fifteen minutes to three-quarters of an hour. They are frequently accompanied by a driving rain and the best policy when one approaches is for everybody to seek the nearest shelter.

Those in camp before taps last night were treated to some excitement when a sentry discovered a fire in Captain Barnard's tent and sounded the fire call. Members of Troop D and Battery B were first on the scene and attached a line of hose to the troop mess shack. The blaze was extinguished after it had done considerable damage to tent and contents.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney troubles, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.—Adv.

ROYAL WELCOME AWAITS TROOPERS

PREPARING A FEAST

Troopers Calder, Walker and Caulfield Ready to Feed the Hungry Men——Further Hikes Have Been Called Off.

By JAMES J. McNAMEE.

Douglas, Ariz., Sept. 22.—Those members of Troop D who were barred from participating in the eight-day hike to Fort Huachuca are anxiously anticipating the arrival back home of the entire squadron late this afternoon. The past week has been a long one for those forced to stay at home, and inasmuch as only a few were left behind by each of the four troops there was considerable work to be done with a limited force. It is expected that the troops will arrive in camp about 5 o'clock and they will find a royal welcome in store for them.

A detail consisting of Troopers John Calder, Dick Walker and Jack Caulfield, the last named having returned from the hiking party after it had been out two days at the order of Captain Borden, has been busy about the mess hall all day tidying things up and preparing a meal that is sure to size up the big appetites that the men are sure to have upon their return. The outfit has been on field rations since leaving and they will find many choice delicacies in tonight's layout.

While trying to land another horse together with his own to water yesterday Trooper Ernest Schultze, a New York lawyer, who is connected with Troop D, was thrown heavily to the ground and sustained a sprained arm. He was sent back here last night and is resting comfortably today. Examination at the base hospital showed that no bones were broken and he will be back on regular detail in a few days.

The troops were met at Warren yesterday by Second Lieutenant Louis A. Kilgus, squadron quartermaster, and he distributed the August pay among the soldiers. The money was certainly welcome and the cavalrymen visited Bisbee last night, many of them with the first money that has been in their pockets in several weeks. Sergeant Donald A. McGee, who has been kept in camp for several days after his discharge because of certain mustering out details that had to be attended to, accompanied Lieutenant Kilgus to Warren, and there said good-bye to his former soldier mates.

Since the outfit has been in Arizona Sergeant McGee has covered himself with glory as an officer, and he was respected by every enlisted man. The parting last night was a sad one for McGee's going did not seem to strike home until that time. Besides doing a lion's share of the work in the troop he has proven himself a leader and friend maker, the latter being a particularly difficult thing to accomplish in the army. Few officers in the New Jersey militia are without their enemies, some because they deserve to be without them and others because they are not possessed of leadership qualities, but he was liked by every man in the Plainfield outfit as well as scores in other units here. Although his word was law in the details which he commanded serving under him was a pleasure even in the hardest assignment.

The provisional detail which has been in charge of the troop street for the last eight days, has had its hands full doing guard, police and picket line detail. Many head of horses were left behind and these had to be cared for as well as the camp property.

Cook Charles Duclo, who takes care of the officers' meals when the squadron is in camp, has been splitting up with the mess officer of Troop D in the absence of the squadron, but will resume his usual duties tonight. The entire provisional guard, from Troops A, B, C and D has been eating in the Troop B mess shack.

That there will be no more hikes or similar outings is certain. General T. F. Davis, commander of the Arizona district, has issued orders to this effect, believing it proper that the units sent here to guard the border be kept at border stations and not a hundred or more miles from it.

FIRE IN SEVENTH AVENUE SUBWAY DRAWS CROWDS

New York, Sept. 28.—Fire, which threatened to destroy the entire wooden structure of the Seventh Avenue subway, broke out between Forty-ninth and Fiftieth streets, this morning. Largue quantites of gasoline were stored nearby. Crowds attracted by the smoke become so great that police reserves had to be called out.

Mrs. Whitall, of Martine avenue, has returned home after some time spent at Manasquan.

C. M. Trowbridge and family, of Kensington avenue, have returned home after the summer spent at Avon-by-the-Sea.

Howard Carter, of this city, has leased G. W. French's house on Prospect avenue, and Chauncey Holt, brother of Councilman F. L. Holt, has leased Mr. French's house, adjoining the one taken by Mr. Carter.

PRIMARY RESULT GREAT SURPRISE

Both G. O. P. and Democratic Machines Are Puzzled by Returns.

ORGANIZATIONS UPSET

Victory of Independent Candidates Looks Like Repudiation of Old-Time Methods—Strength of Colgate and Fowler Another Surprise.

In many respects Tuesday's primary election was one of the most notable in the history of Union county politics, in that it completely upset in more than one instance the calculations of Democrats and Republicans, who, for many years past, had been wont to place absolute reliance in the success for those candidates known to be backed by organization support. This is especially true in the case of the Republican candidates for Governor, county clerk and Congress.

Up to 11 o'clock Tuesday night there was not a Democrat nor a Republican in the county who would not be willing to wager that Senator Edge would come out of the Union county primary battle with more than 1,500 over Colgate. As a matter of fact the managers of the Edge campaign in the State were banking upon their candidate receiving less than 1,000 over Colgate in Union county. The constant plugging of the small band of Colgate workers, with headquarters established in the Hersh building, Elizabeth, aided by a force of field men, who were busy night and day in every election district in the county, made Colgate not only a close contender, but a very formidable runner-up in the three-cornered fight for the Republican nomination.

From what was originally considered a very poor second, Colgate continued to cut into the Republican organization support in back of Edge until the result was almost an even break between the two candidates.

When it is known that Edge had a large majority of the most influential Republicans in the county working in his interest, it is considered more than passing strange that organization lines could be broken as the result showed the Colgate workers to have broken the Edge lines. A month ago the average Republican in touch with the political situation in the county was ready and willing to predict that Edge would win out by not less than 2,000.

The showing made by Colgate is attributed to the personal work made by the little coterie of men backing his campaign in Union, and this showing is taken as proof of the statement not infrequently made that no organization is bigger or stronger than that kind of campaigning which brings the voter into personal contact both with the candidate and the men working in the interest of that candidate.

The victory won by Colonel Martin is another concrete and forceful argument against the claim that a candidate cannot win without organization backing. Bauer was conceded to have had the lion's share of Republican organization support in the county clerkship race. What Bauer did not have was conceded to be with McLeod. Martin was the outside man—outside in that he was working for the most part aside from the Republican organization. Martin's fight was an individual fight. He made it practically alone, and the result shows that he was able to draw enough votes to easily vanquish the two men counted upon as likely winners because of the organized support back behind their candidacies.

There might be some logic in the argument that Martin was enabled to come through a victor because the organized efforts of the Republican party in Union county were divided between McLeod and Bauer, but results in Elizabeth, in Plainfield and in a great many other towns and boroughs outside this city prove that not only did Martin's candidacy appeal to the independent Republican voter, but that scores of organization men lined up for him despite the appeals made to them in behalf of his opponents.

Martin's victory is, first of all, proof of his popularity and his remarkable ability as a vote-getter and also the fact that his record on the Board of Excise of the city of Elizabeth was to him an invaluable asset both inside and outside that city. This is particularly true as regards Plainfield, where Martin easily defeated Bauer and McLeod. Of course, there is no question but what the battle between the license and the no-license forces in Plainfield helped swell Martin's total.

The fact that former Congressman Fowler carried the county in the race against Capstick and Boardman can also be taken as an indication of the fallacy of the claim frequently set up that the organization candidate stands the best chance of winning out. It is a fact that Fowler did not have the party backing that was Capstick's. It was taken for granted that with the organization in back of him Capstick would win out over Fowler in the county. The result, however, brings out forcibly the truth of the assertion often made by friends of the former Congressman that no matter how formidable an array of candidates he might have opposing him, Union county will stand by him even though the Republican organization would have it otherwise.

Leonard's victory over Morris in the Democratic contest for the county clerkship is still another example of how a candidate, personally popular, can upset the plans of an organized political body. Every effort was made to get Leonard to withdraw from the county clerkship contest, even H. Otto Wittpenn, Democratic nominee for Governor, interesting himself in behalf of Morris. Wittpenn wanted Morris, and the leaders in the Democratic organization wanted Morris because they considered that he might make a better run election day than Leonard, but their calculations as to Leonard's strength within the party apparently missed fire.

COMBLES CAPTURED BY ALLIED DRIVE

The shaded portion of the map shows the Allied gain in Picardy since the offensive began, on July 1. The black sectors indicate the advance made by the British and the French within the past few days. The British capture of Morval and the French advance to Fregicourt breached the last roads leading from Combles.

New Autumn Neck-Finishings

Choker Effects Popular in Paris - Organdie the Favored Material for Dainty Collars and Cuffs - Deep Capes of Crepe de Chine - Fichus for House Wear.

ONE has to follow fashions closely to keep in touch with the very latest modes in neckwear—yet neckwear has an incalculable style value in the ensemble of the costume. There are so many kinds of collars in the shops—dozens and dozens of charming styles, all attractively displayed and only the woman who keeps up with the last word of Paris is likely to know which models are unequivocally new and which, leftovers from a past season.

The woman who wishes to be exceedingly chic this fall, will go in for choker effects about her throat. All Paris is wearing tall collars and swathed effects at the neck—a most uncomfortable style to be sure. But since the choker vogue never obtains great favor with American women, and quite as many open-at-the-throat collars are seen over here as high ones, I have picked out for you today the prettiest models I could find in the open style. All of these collars are authoritatively new and some of them are fresh from Paris shops.

Organdie The Favored Collar Fabric.

Practically all the new neckwear built to be laundered is of sheer white organdie. Sometimes a dainty bit of color is added in a narrow hem of pastel tinted organdie applied with hemstitching. White organdie is embroidered with color, and pastel tinted organdie is embroidered with white. A collar and cuff set of lavender organdie is embroidered with white violets and narrow hems of violet organdie are hemstitched to collar and cuffs. Another set, from that delightful Paris shop, the Galeries Lafayette, is of white organdie with narrow hem of red organdie—an extremely effective finish over a blouse of navy blue silk. The collar fits high and close around the neck, the upper part with its narrow red hem turning down at the front to make room for the chin. To this tall collar are attached two long tabs that widen at the lower end and finish in a semi-circle. The red hem runs all around each tab and at the rounded end a half-inch shirring of white net is set in with hemstitching. Four white crochet buttons add to this clerical collar the smartness that buttons always, somehow, give neckwear.

Of organdie also is a choker collar just from Paris. There are two turnovers falling from the high, featherboned foundation which fits neatly around the neck. The first turnover is composed of eight long tabs of the organdie which spread out over the shoulders. At the upper end, these tabs are run with pintucks to make them fit closely to the foundation band. Over the tabs is the second turnover, a narrow, straight collar embroidered by hand which does not meet at the front. This most trying but extremely chic neck finish is matched by cuffs with tabs fitted to a foundation by pintucks, the tabs extending up over the sleeve; and a narrow turned back cuff is hand embroidered like the turnover on the collar.

Cartridge Pleats And Pleated Frills.

Cartridge pleated frills are tremendously smart on neckwear now, and some of the shops are carrying cartridge pleating by the yard, just as they carry pleated organdie and net, ready to attach to collars that have been laundered—for there is no doubt that the life of a pleated frill is brief; the first laundering ends its usefulness. From the Galeries Lafayette also, is a collar of pale pink organdie trimmed with three rows of cartridge pleating, made of the material. At the edge, this collar is hand scalloped in white. It is a deep, circular collar reaching to the armhole of the bodice beneath and as far down from the neck at back and front. It is in the new choker effect—that is, it is built up on a tall neckband with featherbone stays to keep it crisply erect; but at the front the collar is allowed to open in a V. The modish collar this fall opens very modestly; the V comes only just below the collarbones but looks much deeper than it is because the back of the collar is mounted so high on the feather-boned neckband.

Still another Paris collar shows a strip of black velvet ribbon for a neckband. This needs no stiffening. The ribbon is about two inches wide and ties at the front in a bow. Above it rises a plisse frill of white organdie with a narrow hem of pink organdie; and the deep cape-collar of white organdie is made of many godet sections, each hemmed all around with pink organdie. These sections have rounded points at the top and the points are attached to the velvet neckband under black velvet buttons.

Cape Collars Are The Rage.

Deep cape collars of organdie, chiffon, Georgette crepe and crepe de chine are the smartest thing in neckwear at the moment. Some of the big capes reach well over the shoulder and half way to the elbow. Models of organdie have plisse frills of cartridge pleating around the edge. One cape of white organdie has three rows of pleated organdie and the deep cuffs, reaching quite to the elbow, have three frills likewise. The cape pictured is in the average size and depth decreed by fashion, and is made of cream white crepe de chine with a French-fold hem put in by hand with blind-stitching—with silk of course! Paris would be aghast at the idea of stitching anything so dainty as this bit of neckwear with cotton. And just here is one of the big differences between exclusive, Paris-made things and the ready-mades one picks up on the bargain counter. Paris frocks and Paris neckwear, if there is a thread of silk in the material used are invariably stitched with silk. No French concern would begrudge—as the tight-fisted American manufacturer does—the trifle of sewing silk which adds so much of distinction to a garment. But we were speaking of cape-collars! The woman with graceful shoulders should take advantage of this mode, for nothing shows off the lines of shoulder and arm more successfully than one of these deep capes, made of soft fabric. Georgette crepe collars are particularly graceful and two collars of this material may be added to the same frock. A Lanvin afternoon frock of navy blue soiree silk, has a deep cape-collar of navy Georgette crepe with deep, hemstitched hem; and over the blue collar is a slightly smaller one of white Georgette, similarly hemmed.

An Embroidered and Braided Pique Coat Set in Good Style

The Queen Anne collar of hand embroidered batiste, with deep, pointed cuff to match is in pale bisque tint and accompanies a frock of dark green faille matinee. This frock has a skirt pleated from waistband to knee with a straight flounce below; the flounce of faille matinee; the pleated top of broadcloth, and there is a coat of broadcloth to match the frock. The bodice is really a draped bolero and under it is a guimpe of pin-tucked bisque batiste to which are attached the gathered jabot and the feather-boned collar. The jabot is no more nor less than a handkerchief-size square, slashed down for three inches at the top where it is gathered to the collar.

Another collar with valuable qualities for dressing up a dark frock is the lace-trimmed model of apricot silk. With the delicate tint of the silk, the cream lace frill blends admirably and groups of pearl buttons add a tailored touch. This collar is worn with a trotter frock of mahogany brown taffeta—the new warm color which is coming in for autumn and which is exactly the shade of fashionable tabasco glazed kid boots. Tobasco brown is one of the smart browns of the season.

A New Necktie Arrangement.

A very attractive collar for wear with a morning blouse of tub silk is the model of white organdie with a sailor tie of colored silk and little silk-covered buttons to match. It is a new idea to bring the tie from the outer edges of the collar and of course this tie is in two pieces and does not pass all the way around under the collar but instead, is attached to it by the silk buttons. An easier way for laundering purposes, would be to sew the buttons to the collar so that they may be ripped off with a snip or two of the scissors and then to tack on the tie. Cravats of ribbon or velvet appear on almost all the new collars and add much to their smart style. Inch wide black moire or velvet ribbon makes a very chic cravat; and a great deal of picot edged grosgrain ribbon is used. The best looking cravats are black, for colored ribbon on neckwear is nearly always unfortunate.

Two of the modish collars for autumn are the Henry II and the Valesquez. The former style, erect and unstiffened, outlines a neck well cut out in round or elongated line. Sometimes the collar is higher at one side than at the other in coquettish effect. The Valesquez collar is most artistic and is of course copied from neckwear worn by the cavaliers and courtiers in Valesquez paintings. It has a flaring top rising from a well cut out neck-line and this top portion is attached to a moderately deep cape. In almost all instances the Valesquez collar is trimmed with a narrow lace edge.

Fichus Of Utmost Grace.

The fichu is so popular that it appears even on dance frocks. A Doucet model of pale blue Georgette crepe has a full, gathered skirt with graduated nun's tucks and the bodice is almost hidden by a fichu of silk dotted net in pale blue which is drawn down in surplice fashion from shoulders to belt, the ends of the fichu falling below the belt on the skirt. The bodice has short, puffed sleeves of the dotted net and the whole effect is quaintly simple and charming. Frilled fichus of organdie are worn over afternoon frocks in the house and there is no prettier way of adding a festive look to a dark frock. Some of these fichus are in two layers, each layer edged with a plisse frill of the organdie attached with hemstitching. The V opening at the front is very low and the fichu falls well over the shoulders and in a deep, rounded cape at the back. Of moderate size is the pretty fichu illustrated. The foundation is of white Georgette with a pleated ruffle and jabot; over this is a scalloped, lace-trimmed collar of organdie.

Neckwear For Out Of Doors.

When furs come in neckwear goes out—for street wear; but during these warm days of early September many crisp neckwear sets add smartness to the tailored costume. A collar and cuff set of white pique with eyelet embroidery and a flat braided design is pictured. The cuffs in extravagant size are a modish feature. The furriers are beginning to show captivating collarettes of seal and moleskin for the first cold days. A particularly smart model is the postillon cape-collar of seal and mole. Another collar in the Valesquez style is of sealskin, lined with ermine.

FOR THE AUTOMOBILE PICNIC

EQUIPMENT for al fresco meals grows more and more complete and luxurious. One may lunch comfortably at a table set up in the tonneau of the car; or even camp out over night with automobile tents, carried behind the car and set up at night with guy-ropes, each tent fastening at its inner and higher side, to the canopy of the car. These tents have canvas floors and isinglass windows like the car canopy and one is supposed to roll up in a blanket like a true camper, with one's head on an air pillow. Among the conveniences for auto picnicking are, folding canvas water buckets and coffee pots, folding camp-chairs, gasoline tent lanterns, refrigerator baskets and thermo bottles and complete kitchenettes which travel on the running board of the car and make themselves into camp tables with racks holding plates, cups and other table utensils.

A Dainty Corset Cover

THE autumn blouse of chiffon or georgette crepe in dark color demands a special corset-cover and a very good one for this purpose comes with a silk petticoat to match. The petticoat, of taffeta or soiree silk in dark or neutral color, is the usual flare model with a distending hoop of featherbone tubing or several slightly gathered ruffles, each covering a strip of stiffening. The later method gives a very graceful flare without a bulky effect. The corset cover is made of the silk also, cut in two deep points which run up from the waistband over a square yoke of shadow lace, or if one prefers, flesh colored chiffon. Thus the blouse seems to be lined with silk below the bustline while the sheer fabric covers shoulders and neck. The smartness of this corset-cover depends on the line where silk and sheer fabric meet. The more pointed the cut of the lower, or silk, portion the more graceful will be the effect; and by the way, the points run upward, over the chiffon or lace, toward the center—not downward in V effect.

Art in the Veil and in Its Wearing

ARE you a woman who can wear a veil anyway that fashion happens to decree its arrangement? If so, you may thank your lucky stars for you are one of the fortunate ones of earth. Very few women are so blessed; for the average woman belongs to some special type which demands a certain sort of veil; perhaps she is tall and slender and artistic and can wear clouds of chiffon floating around her shoulders and down her back; perhaps she is distinguished and can wear a lace veil drooping from a small hat—the most difficult mode of all; perhaps she has the piquant features, the saucy little ne retrousse which will stand the fluttering half-veil like a petticoat depending from a sailor hatbrim; but more likely than not, she is the plump, not very tall person who looks best—and only looks well—with a trim face veil drawn smoothly over hat and hair and tucked under her chin. Fortunately the last method seldom goes out of fashion and wise is she who abides by it, season in and season out!

Study your type and then study your image in the looking-glass with various veils draped in various ways. If you have square shoulders and a short waist I beg of you, do not attempt the large veil falling from a wide hatbrim for this is becoming only to the woman with sloping shoulders and a rather small head. If you are a big woman with a rather large face be careful not to get veil and hat too small or the effect may be grotesque. If you have a sallow complexion, do not attempt a lace veil. If your nose is over-large, do not wear close turbans and stubby dream fascinators. If you have not a charming mouth, beware of the half-veil which covers eyes and nose, but throws the uncovered mouth into high relief. If you have gray hair, do not wear a brown or taupe veil. Unless you can make some claim to beauty, leave for others the artistic type of floating veil which only beauty should wear.

There are scores of veils in every shop, and scores of yards of face-veils; there is a pattern to suit every face, every complexion.

Another point about veilings: Be sure to have plenty always on hand and keep them very daintily. And buy the best you can afford. A twenty-five cent face-veil soon becomes stringy and unpresentable; a dollar and a half veil will last, with care, a whole season. Have on hand strips of cardboard ten or twelve inches long and perhaps four inches wide and fold the veil around one of these strips the moment it is taken off. The folded veils can be kept one on the other in a special box and will never become rumpled and stringy as veils thrown loosely into a dresser drawer always do. Never fold a veil into a wad and thrust a pin through it, if you want to keep it fresh and crisp for many wearings, and never leave it on your hat for the next wearing. A veil should be adjusted for each wearing, and adjusted, moreover, with the aid of a hand-mirror, or better still, a triple dressing mirror so that the effect from all sides may be judged. Nothing is more chic than a smartly adjusted veil; nothing more slovenly and unbecoming than a carelessly adjusted one. The proper adjustment takes time, to be sure, but the time is well worth while—even if you sit fifteen minutes before your mirror in the process.

Never trust to a veil to disguise hastily applied make-up on the face. The veil may—and it may not hide the artifice; everything depends on the strength of the light out-of-doors, or wherever you are going. A black veil with a dotted pattern may be a complexion too generously rouged will give an unpleasantly hard look to the face; the same veil over a complexion too pallid will be even more trying. As a rule, the brown or taupe veilings are most becoming; very fair women can wear the gray veilings with great success; blue-eyed women often look well in navy blue veiling. Red veils and green veils should be avoided as the plague, and as I have said, women with white hair should not wear brown veils, or brown hats for the matter of that. For them there are the black veils of fine, dainty mesh and pattern, the Russian veils with gray and white twisted threads—always very flattering, and white veils with black dots, or vice versa. A new veiling this fall is black with a narrow white border in an effect like bead embroidery. A very smart veil this and a very becoming one, too.

A Smart New Way Of Swathing Head And Hat, The Veil Gathered Into A Neckband.

The French complexion veilings are charmingly flattering to the face but they are a trifle expensive. The veiling is in two layers, outside the fine dotted or hand-run mesh pattern, and inside a layer of almost invisible flesh tinted tulle. Cream and bisque tinted veils are very fashionable just now, but not every woman can wear them. A circular veil of biscuit colored mesh with border design in biscuit and old blue has just come from Paris. Another French veil in cream hexagonal mesh has an allover floral pattern in white, outlined with brown. Still another Paris veil is of gray filet mesh with an allover design in darker gray and blue dots outlined in white.

Veils are used now not only as an accessory to the hat but as an integral part thereof. Crown band veils are attached to ribbon or brocade strips which fit around sailor hats so that the veil may be adjusted very easily. A French veil of this type, in gray hexagon mesh is attached to a band of blue Servian embroidery, and a border of this embroidery edges the veil. Dark brown and mahogany brown veils are exceedingly fashionable and it is surprising how much more becoming a brown veil is to the average woman, than a black one. The mahogany shade in veiling matches the smart tabasco color which is the smart thing now in buttoned boots. Tabasco boots of glazed kid have tops of tan or cream shade; or cloth tops in harmonizing tone.

Almost any woman could wear a veil under the chin and swathed about the neck. One very smart veil is of taupe mesh in an allover, or ramage, pattern. At the top it is fastened to a crown-band of velvet matching the hat—a moderately large sailor shape with low, gathered crown. The lower edge is shrired to a collarette of velvet which fastens at the back and the veil drapes over the hatbrim and face in graceful manner. An important item in the general smartness of effect is the downward curve of the hatbrim at the back. Over a stiff-brimmed sailor this veil would not be half so graceful.

Facts About Ferns

FERNS are always favored by the maker of the window garden, as their finely cut leaves can be massed in places where the more stately plants could not be used. The delicate and feathery maindenhair fern is always beautiful, but often withers and dies from the dry heat and the coal gas fumes of our homes.

The Boston ferns, sword ferns, spider ferns and holly ferns require less care and will, therefore, appeal more readily to the housewife. The holly fern is especially pretty on account of its dark glossy green foliage, which is also thick and feathery. The upper side of the fronds is dark green, while underneath they are lighter and heavily studded with brown spores. The common Boston fern is inclined to grow to an immense size, and, consequently, is not very satisfactory for the window garden, but is very pretty when used individually, in a large jardiniere set upon a stand.

The Boston ferns are also known as sword ferns, of which there are several varieties, the most valuable being the ostrich plume fern whose fronds are broad and feathery. For the fern dish, the spider ferns are the favorites because of their size, as they do not grow to over a foot in length of stem. Their fronds are once divided, and the divisions are long and pointed. One has a bold white line through the center of each frond, another is beautifully crested, some are variegated, and one is a dwarf.

The shield or lace ferns and the hare's foot ferns are also attractive. The latter has its rootstock resting on the earth and sends forth long yellow hairs, which resemble a hare's foot. When it becomes necessary for the ferns to be repotted or resoiled, it is best to send them to a florist to make sure that it will be done properly.

A northern window is preferable for ferns, and the temperature of a room where ferns are kept should not fall below fifty-five degrees at night. If the atmosphere is dry a glass bowl of water kept among them will prove beneficial.

Playthings for Grown-Ups

MOST interesting, as examples of the modern trend toward frivolous decorations of the home, are the carved wood birds which lend a supposed "charm," and a very pronounced smartness to the garden. The substantial cost of these playthings for grown-ups has a good deal to do with their smartness, no doubt. At the tidy sum of nine dollars, is a tall crane who presides over an artificial pool among the shrubbery. The big crane is carved from wood and spar varnish in shades of brilliant red, blue and black touches up his plumage. Ordinary paint would not stand wet weather as successfully as the glossy coat of spar varnish—which of course adds to the expensiveness of his craneship. There are wooden ducks too, with natural looking blue, gray and black coloring; and there is a garden goose, life size, with a yellow head and bright black eye. Even the gallant chanticler is not forgotten and there are brilliant parrots for the porch.

SATIN FOR FALL.

SATIN is once again at the height of fashion and is displacing taffeta from favor for very formal frocks, though the latter silk is used for afternoon costumes and for dancing frocks in pastel shades.

A new silk for autumn is soiree, which is very like satin in its lustrous texture. Faille matinee is another new silk, beautiful for dancing frocks in combination with lace and tulle. Both of these silks come in a wide range of shades for afternoon and evening wear and one notes that the yellow shades, from palest daffodil to deep orange and amber, are offered with special emphasis at fashion's shrine.

THE PEOPLE LAND A WALLOP.

Analysis of the vote at the primary on Tuesday indicates that the party machines in practically every county of the State received the worst wallop that has been handed to them in years. It was a complete vindication of the direct primary law, and the success of anti-machine candidates assures the continuance of that excellent act on the statute books without amendment.

The most remarkable example was the success of Senator James F. Martine in defeating Attorney General John W. Wescott, who had the support of the party organization and of President Wilson's friends in almost every county. The Senator went into the campaign purely on his record, which has been an unusually independent one, and he had no organization of any kind behind him. He even defeated the notorious Nugent organization in Essex county. Former Senator Frelinghuysen's victory was almost as much of a triumph in the Republican primaries, as the Murphy supporters sat back and smugly contented themselves with the idea that the organization could pull him through in the State. Except in Atlantic and Camden counties this support was below what he expected it to be. At the same time credit must be given to the Republican organization in Union county for foreseeing Frelinghuysen's strength with the people and giving him its support.

Another striking example was the victory of Edmund Burke Osborne over W. Clive Crosby for the Republican senatorial nomination in Essex county. Osborne ran on a local option plank, which makes his success all the more astonishing. Similarly, Frederick W. Gnichtel, as fine a type of man as ever sought office, was defeated in Mercer county because he had the endorsement of the county committee, his opponent, James Hammond, winning by a substantial majority. In that case both candidates were pledged to local option.

The success of Major William B. Martin, which was commented on in these columns last night was equally gratifying. He ran as an absolutely independent candidate, and his landing of the nomination was so surprising that even so staid a party organ as the Elizabeth Journal printed an article last night admitting the chagrin of the organization.

The result of the primaries will encourage the independent voters to believe that they at last have made organization selection of candidates impossible.

VEGETABLES TO BE DELICACIES.

The humble baked bean may soon be a delicacy served on the table of the munition millionaire. Steak smothered in onions may be nothing but a fragrant memory.

Big dill pickles, once purchaseable at the corner delicatessen store for a penny each, will come in the same class as the diamond back terrapin, champagne and lobster. Head lettuce may take a place side by side with hothouse grapes from London.

This is the picture which confronts the distressed householder now struggling under the burden of domestic expenses through the failure of the season's vegetable crop. It is also one of the big problems to be threshed out by the Vegetables Growers' Association of America at its annual convention which opened in Chicago, Ill., today.

Prices of vegetables in general have advanced from 200 to 600 per cent., and will go even higher in the future. The most inexplicable phase of the situation, according to the members of the association, is that the grower is not profiting by the soaring market. More gardeners and greenhouse men have gone into bankruptcy during the last year than ever before, say the association annual reports.

One of the reasons for advancing prices is the scarcity of labor, but the major reason is the general crop failure due to the dry season. The pickle crop has suffered from blight; onions have been ruined by maggots and smut, while the bean crop is almost a total failure, as is the potato crop in many sections.

The convention of the vegetable growers will continue its sessions for several days. Soil fertility, marketing and kindred topics will receive attention, but the big problem of existence is the chief matter to be considered by the growers. They declare that while prics are high, they have nothing to sell, and unless something is done shortly to improve the general condition of the industry hundreds will face financial destruction.

Proving that he is too big a man to engage in any factional fight that threatens to disrupt the party, Sen. James E. Martine is ready to go to work with his coat off for the election of Wilson and all other Democratic nominees. There is no man in the State who can justly see that "Jim" Martine owes anything to Wilson any more and yet the Plainfielder is earnest and sincere in his support of the full Democratic ticket and is preaching already that it would be a national calamity if the voters failed to give Wilson another term.

- Proctor's Theatre -

The management of Proctor's local theatre have launched their photoplay campaign for the fall season with a series of wonderful photoplay attractions, and that popular playhouse is taxed to capacity every afternoon and usually is inadequate to accommodate the large crowds who seek admission in the evening. Reservations have been made with the most prominent producing corporations for their output and practically every week in addition to the remarkable pictures being presented from such prominent manufacturers as V. L. S. E., Triangle, Fox, World and Metro, the patrons may expect to witness some of the big attractions that are now and have been drawing capacity audiences in New York, Boston and other large cities. But recently the Proctor management succeeded in closing contracts with the Paramount Corporation for the exclusive showing of first run Paramount pictures in Plainfield. The inauguration of this remarkable service will be witnessed by the film fans of this city tomorrow, when the initial first run Paramount picture will be presented at Proctor's. It is "The Heart of Paula," with Leonore Ulrich as the star. Starting tomorrow and every Friday and Saturday thereafter Paramount first run productions will be presented in addition to another prominent feature, and for this unparalleled program Saturday prices will prevail on Fridays.

The show today consists of Thomas H. Ince's latest contribution to the Triangle program, entitled "Homa," a wonderfully interesting and pulsating drama, starring Bessie Barriscale and Charles Ray, while in addition today Holbrook Blinn and Ethel Clayton will be seen in a William A. Brady production, entitled "Husband and Wife." Tomorrow, in addition to the "Heart of Paula" William A. Brady presents E. K. Lincban and Frances Nelson in "The Almighty Dollar," while on Saturday the program will consist of the Paramount production, "The Race," with Victor Moore and Anita King as co-stars and the Metro offering, "The Flower of No Man's Land," starring Viola Dana.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

An Unusual Chap.

He doesn't care how prices soar,
The cost of living is a joke,
He ne'er lets out a frenzied roar
The same as other common folk.
He lets things happen as they will
And takes the good right with the bad.
No hobby can give him a thrill,
He's not a crank on any fad.
He never speaks an unkind word
About a single living soul,
For gossip to him is absurd,
His tongue is under strict control.
"Remarkable," of course you say,
But this man you will never know;
Because, you see, it is this way:
They buried him ten years ago.

Uncle Abner

Miss Pansy Tibbitts says she has had nine offers of marriage but is waitin' until she finds a feller that her mother thinks is good enough for her. But when she does find this feller he probably won't ask her.

There is only one class of people that gossip as much as the wimmen, and they are the men.

I never yet see a foreign nobleman who didn't look the part.

A model husband is a feller who kin make his wife believe his excuses.

Deacon Stubbs has got a mewl which is the stubbornest critter in our township. When the deacon wants the mewl to stop he hollers "Giddap," and when he wants the mewl to start he hollers "Whoa!" so the mewl does just what the deacon wants him to without knowin' it. The deacon uses the same system on his wife.

What has become of the old-fashioned business man who used to discount all his bills?

One drawback to being president is a feller has got to meet an awful sigh of sordid and uninteresting people.

Since Lem Tubbs held the office of notary public in our village and got a taste of politics, he ain't fit fer work of any kind.

Some Friendship.

What is greater than the friendship that exists among men? The young Grand Rapids man had carefully explained that he must go to Kalamazoo, but declared that he would surely be back for 7 o'clock dinner, as usual. He did not return as per schedule. The hours dragged by and his wife became anxious. Finally she telegraphed to six of her husband's friends in Kalamazoo asking them if the missing man was there.

With the dawn came a farmer's wagon, dragging a broken down automobile and the husband. Almost at the same moment a messenger boy arrived with six telegrams, and all of them read:

"Yes, Walter is passing the night with me."

Col. Heeza Liar has nothing on a farmer at Pearl Bend, who noticed while plowing a jack rabbit run around his team like a playing dog, trying to attract his attention. Finally he decided to investigate and followed bunny to an old well. Looking down he saw another jack rabbit floating on a bit of board but unable to get out. He got a ladder and rescued it and it joined its mate and hiked off for the timber—Cass County Leader.

Uplift Stuff.

Don't deal in woe or tearfulness,
Most folks have a supply
Of wares like these, and cheerfulness
Is what they want to buy.

So deal in joy and truthfulness.
Put on a smiling phiz
And you'll preserve your youthfulness,
And do a lot of biz.

Plainfield Theatre.

The Maids of America come to the Plainfield for one day next week, Monday, October 2, playing a matinee and night performance in "The Girl From Nowhere," with Al K. Hall as the principal comedian. The most important characters are the "East Wind" and the "West Wind." Hall, is the "West Wind," while the latter is impersonated by Bobby Barry, of the old theatrical family of that name.

The book tells an interesting story of two men created from the winds, who travel over the globe from the drawing room of a millionaire's home on the banks of Long Island Sound, near Rye, N. Y., to the Cahu Gardens near Honolulu. The Hawaiian act is elaborate and the Hawaiian songs delightful.

The cast includes besides Hall and Barry, Joe Weston, Harvey Brooks, Bobby Calvert, Eddie Bisland, Tony Shanes, Misses Billie Hill, Alfaretta Symonds, Mary Mack and a large chorus of male and female voices.

A complete change of vaudeville was seen at the Plainfield Theatre this afternoon, the initial performance of the show which will be seen at the playhouse tonight, tomorrow and Saturday afternoon and night. That today's program was up to the usual high standard of vaudeville attractions which are being booked by Manager Shannon was evidenced by the hearty applause of the large audience in attendance. The headline act on the program is Niblo's Trained Birds who furnish amusement for nearly twenty minutes. The birds possess almost human intelligence and their remarkable demonstration is worth seeing.

The bill contains four other high class acts announced as follows: Rose and Fowler, entertainers extraordinary; Budd and Clair, known throughout the vaudeville world as the "comedy kings" and "gloom dispellers;" Dealy and Cramer, comedians, and the pleasing sketch entitled "The Pottery Shop," with Lee Rogers and Company.

Pathe pictures, featuring prominent photoplay stars, are seen at each show as well as the Pathe Weekly the animated newspaper of current happenings.

The management announces at this time also, that one of the features of the vaudeville bill to be presented at the Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday will be the appearance of Bob Fitzsimmons in an especial production. He will be assisted in his act by Bob, Jr., his son. "Bob" will offer the audience a surprise and no doubt his followers of old days will be on hand to see him again behind the footlights.

Shows at the theatre commence at 2 and 7 p. m., and popular prices will prevail at all times. Come early and stay late.

NEWARK AMUSEMENTS

At the Broad Street Theatre, formerly the Shubert, for the week beginning Monday, October 2, the attraction will be "The Fear Market," a three-act play written by Amelie Rives, the pen name of the Princess Pierre Troubetzkoy. The many admirers of this writer, who is perhaps best known for her widely read books "The Quick or the Dead," and "World's End," will no doubt be much interested in the announcement that this, her only play, is to be on view at the Broad Street Theatre next week. "The Fear Market" was presented for upwards of four months in New York last season, opening first at the Booth Theatre and later being transferred to the Comedy Theatre, where it finished a brilliant run. It is produced under the managerial direction of Harrison Gray Fiske and George Mosser, and was staged by the former gentleman. It is described as a drama of intense interest, dealing with a certain phase of life in the upper circles of New York city, and it was declared by critics on its production that it came nearer to reproducing society life in the metropolis than any other so-called society play.

Not only did Miss Rives write "The Fear Market," but she also made the designs for the scenery and the settings are described as being true works of art. A superior company has been engaged to present this interesting play, among the principal members of which are Edwin Mordant, Robert Stevens, V. L. Granville, Owen Meech, Harmon MacGregor, Philip Perry, Robert Stevens, Richard Quilter, Jerome Renner, Theodora d'Combe, Leslie Love, June Congreve, Merle Maddern and Alice Travor.

FALL OPENING OF PHYSICAL DEPARTMENT

Y. M. C. A. Sets the Date for Monday, October 2.

As usual at this time of the year the boys and senior members are getting anxious to begin the regular fall gym. work. The date has been set for October 2. All classes will begin during this week and by Saturday night there will be many men and boys with sore muscles and healthy appetites.

Several changes will be made in the boys' classes this year. The Indian League Class will be reorganized and divided into two groups. The Employed Boys' Class will also be divided into a junior and senior division. Both of these classes were too large last year and by this division many of the younger boys will be given better opportunities to compete in athletics and games. Owing to this plan of reorganization all members of the Boys' Department are urged to see Mr. Meerman some time before the opening of the classes and be assigned to their proper class.

A Junior Boys' Class will also be organized. Any boy between the age of ten and twelve will be admitted into this class. These boys will meet one day each week for gymnasium and swimming pool. The members of this class will not be regular members of the association, the membership age being twelve years. The fee for this class will be two dollars for the year. This class is being organized because of the many requests for admittance into the membership by boys under the twelve year age limit.

Seniors will meet for gymnastics on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 8 p. m., Wednesdays and Saturdays for games at 8 p. m.

The regular class for business and professional men will meet from 5:30 to 6:30 p. m. on Monday, Wednesday and Fridays evenings. All business and professional men of the city are invited to join this group. See the General Secretary about rates.

Senior employed boys, 8 to 9:30 on Monday and Friday nights.

Junior employed boys, 7 to 8 on Monday and Friday nights.

High School Class, Tuesday, 3:15 to 4:15 on Mondays and Wednesdays, and 10 to 11 a. m., on Saturday.

Indian League, 3:15 to 4:15 p. m., on Monday and Wednesdays; 9 to 10 a. m. on Saturdays.

Junior Boys' Class, 3:15 to 4:15 p. m. on Thursdays.

Boys' Club, Wednesday, 7 to 8 p. m.

NEW COLLEGE HEAD.

Salem, Ore., Sept. 28.—Elaborate preparations are being completed for the coming inauguration of Dr. Carl Doney, former president of the West Virginia Wesleyan College, as the new president of Williamette University. The exercises are to be held here two weeks from tomorrow and will be attended by representatives of the Methodist church and numerous prominent educators from all over the Northwest.

CORN CARNIVAL.

Casselton, N. D., Sept. 28.—Many visitors were in town today for the opening of the annual Corn Show of the Casselton Commercial Club. Fine specimens of corn are on exhibition from many counties of North Dakota. Enormous pumpkins and other farm products are also included in the display this year. The show will continue three days.

HUGHES TO INDORSE WHITMAN.

New York, Sept. 28.—Now that the New York primaries are over the efforts of the Republican leaders will be directed toward erasing all evidences of discord resulting from the hard ante-primary battle, so that the party may present a solid front in the campaign now about to begin. Mr. Hughes, the Presidential nominee, is to spend the remainder of this week travelling across the State and will be given an opportunity to talk over the situation with the representatives of all sections and all factions of the party. His first address is to be delivered tonight at Saratoga, where a State conference of Republican leaders is now in session to draw up a platform and select Presidential electors. Mr. Huges, in his address, it is said, will come out with a strong indorsement of Governor Whitman's candidacy for re-election. This is expected to offset the stories recently published, that Mr. Hughes had told friends that he considered Mr. Whitman and William M. Calder, the Senatorial nominee, a weight upon his campaign.

"CANDY DAY" COMES NEXT.

New York, Sept. 28.—Every one is expected to be a "candy kid" on the fourteenth day of next month, which has been designated by the manufacturing confectioners of the United States for the first national observance of "Candy Day." Every man, woman and child in the land will be expected to consume an extra allowance of sweets on that day—peanut brittle, cocoanut bonbons, chocolates, fudge, or the humble all-day sucker, according to taste. Confectioneries, drug stores and other retailers of candy will be asked to make unusually attractive displays of their goods during the week, so that the first celebration of "Candy Day" may go on record as the biggest sales day in the history of the trade.

NEW HAMPSHIRE AS RESORT.

Maplewood, N. H., Sept. 28.—Not satisfied with its reputation as "America's Summer Playground," New Hampshire is ambitious to rival Florida and southern California as a winter resort. Plans looking to this end were discussed by the New Hampshire Hotel Association at its annual meeting here today. In recent years there has been a steadily increasing number of people coming to the White Mountains during the winter months. The hotel men believe that a liberal campaign of advertising to make known the attractions at the White Mountain region for lovers of winter sports and pastime, would enable many of them to run their establishments as all-the-year-around resorts.

SAUERKRAUT FESTIVAL.

Forreston, Ill., Sept. 28.—A sauerkraut festival was opened here today with hundreds of visitors in attendance. The occasion was designed to call public attention to the fact that Forreston and vicinity have developed into one of the best sauerkraut producing sections in the country. In further evidence of the fact a head of cabbage weighing nearly sixty pounds was exhibited. During the day a dozen barrels of kraut, a thousand pounds of frankfurters and many dozens of loaves of rye bread were served free to the visitors.

GRANITE STATE REPUBLICANS.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 28.—A State convention of New Hampshire Republicans assembled here today to adopt a platform and otherwise prepare for the coming campaign and to listen to addresses by several noted party leaders from outside the State. The convention was called to order shortly before noon by John H. Bartlett, of Portsmouth.

The Lad Rode on With the Princess.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — A Princess Runs Away With a Lad.

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

WHEN the children begged daddy to tell them a story he began: "There was once a fox who helped a lad to get a golden bird, a horse and a princess for a king. The game was that if the lad got the princess to leave her home the king would give him the gold horse. But first he had to dig away a big hill that stood in front of the king's window. The fox did this for him, and then the lad ran to the king and said: 'Your hill is gone. Now give me the princess.'

"The king was obliged to keep his word, and away the lad and the princess went. But the fox said: 'This will never do. We must get all three.'

"'That would be great!' said the lad. 'But how can we do it?'

"'If you will obey me it can soon be done. When you come to the king's castle where the gold horse is and he asks you for the beautiful princess you must say, "Here she is." Then he will be glad to see her and run to welcome her. You must mount your gold horse they give you, put out your hand to take leave of them, but shake hands with the princess last. Then lift her quickly up on to the horse behind you, stick your spurs into your horse and gallop away like the wind.'

"All went as the fox had said. Then he came to the lad and told him: 'When you come to the castle where the gold bird is I will stay with the princess by the door while you ride in and speak to the king. When he sees that you have the gold horse he will bring out the gold bird, but you must sit still and say you want to look at the bird to see if it is the real one. When you get the bird in your hand you must ride away as fast as the wind.'

"This also happened just as the fox said. The lad carried off the bird, the princess mounted again, and off they rode till they came to a big wood. On their way through the wood their old friend, the fox, came to them again. 'Pray kill me! Cut off my head and my brush!' he cried.

"But the young man would not do such a thing to so good a friend. So the fox said: 'Then I will give you some more advice. Beware of two things—ransom no one from the gallows and sit down by the side of no brook.'

"So the lad rode on with his princess till they came to a village where he had once left two brothers who had set out to find the gold bird, but who had failed because they stayed there to make merry. He heard a great noise, and when he asked the people what was the matter they said, 'Two rogues are to be hanged.' As he came nearer he saw that the two men were his two brothers, who had turned robbers."

TAILORED FUR COAT.

Of Simple, Clear Cut Lines and Made of Flat Pelts—It Looks Just Like Cloth.

By Mary Glynn.

The simpler the better, is the rule in some of the new coats which, while made of fur, look just like cloth. Sometimes they are of cloth which looks just like fur. The flat pony skin, leopard skin, mole skin, and sealskin all adapt themselves to this particular kind of coat, that is, the tailored coat. Going one step further we find these tailored furs assimilated also in leather and imitation leather models. A beautiful new fabric which serves the purpose well is pontine, which is like leather on one side and made up of whatever material you like on the other. When the pontine is trimmed with broad bands of fur, it is indeed lovely, because the reverse side can be also had in a charming color contrast, as well as in different materials. Checked, striped, plaited, or plain serge of cheviot—plain, striped, brocaded, or printed satin, just as you wish, with a lovely leather finish on the surface. Better than all, this leather surface resists the water, being both spot and rain proof. Such coats are usually in a simple smocked style, and made up with or without a belt. Lapping it one side, such a coat buttons high to the neck and finishes usually with a Russian band collar. The cuffs are in gauntlet or broad turned back style, and at the edges of the skirt which reaches just to the knees, there is a deep fur band. The big buttons which fasten with loops are fur covered. One may choose with equally good taste a pony skin in natural brown or in black a leopard skin, or a pontine in any one of the beautiful shades for trimming. This may be of Hudson seal, mole skin, nutria, or Belgian hare, "Lapin Belge," as the French say, which fur is most attractive, being a thick gray hair powdered well with white hairs.

Training a Husband

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Marian Feels That Her Wishes Deserve Some Respect, Too.

"How do you like the suit?" Morris stood Roger up in front of his mother to display his new garments. "You see, it is the end of the month and the pay checks are in."

"I like the suit. It is a good color and fits well, but the cap——"

"It was all he had," explained Morris.

"It is coarse and unbecoming. It spoils the effect of the whole thing."

"Now, don't try and make the child discontented with his clothes. He has got to wear them." Morris scowled.

"I can't see any necessity for his keeping the cap. Get something more becoming somewhere else," persisted Marian.

"Now, look here. That cap is paid for and it is not going back. I despise returning goods; men don't do it." Morris set his jaw.

"Morris, don't be foolish. We don't get things very often. We can't afford to keep a thing we don't like. We need to make our money go as far as possible for there is none to waste," said Marian.

"Nonsense! That cap will do as well as another. We do not want the name of cheap skates—people who are always returning goods. Merchants don't like that kind, you may be sure." Morris hung up the cap on the peg in the hall.

"Mother, I don't like that cap. It is heavy and it comes way down to my ears," whispered Roger, following his mother to the kitchen.

"Hush, dear. Mother will see what can be done," answered Marian. Roger was comforted. Mother's "I'll see" often worked wonders for him.

That night the cap was carefully wrapped and placed in a box where no harm could come to it. The next time Marian went downtown the cap went along. She found a cap to her liking in a new consignment of goods at the same store where the cap was bought and the merchant expressed himself as perfectly willing to make the exchange.

"Where did Roger get that cap?" asked Morris when the boy appeared in the new one.

"I exchanged the other one for it," replied Marian.

"Took the other one back?"

"Took the other one back," she replied.

"After all I said about it?"

"After all you said about it," calmly repeated Marian.

"Well, I like that" exploded Morris.

"I found this cap at the same store with very little difference in the price and Mr. Townsend was very ready to exchange. He said he did not want me to have a cap I did not like; that it was not good business. If he is satisfied I see no reason why you should not be." Marian seemed very calm.

"So my wishes count for nothing?"

"They count for just as much as mine did with you when I did not like the other." Marian smiled. "Don't be foolish, my dear. You believe in having everybody satisfied if possible, don't you?" Morris made no answer. "I look at it this way: Either marriage is a partnership where each loves the other enough to make concessions to give the other pleasure, or it is everyone for himself, in which case turn about would be fair play, I should think."

"If you know what you are talking about it is more than I do," broke in Morris.

"In all the twelve years that we have been married I cannot think of a single time when you have given up what you wanted to please me," continued Marian. "I have always listened to your views and governed myself according to your wishes. You have not even realized that you were imposing your will on me."

"You are right there," Morris interrupted.

"It proves my point that it is the wrong way to conduct affairs. One of my mistakes has been not to stand up for what I thought was best."

"You make me out a tyrant of the deepest dye," said Morris sullenly.

"You have not meant to be unfair. I know that; but when you spoke you expected me to conform; now, didn't you?"

"I do not see yet why my wishes should not be respected," was the dogged answer.

"Strangely enough I feel the same way. I think we are on the way to understand each other," was Marian's reply.

The Real Value of Salary.

Books.

Books are full, full to overflowing, of the seeds of noble and heroic actions, of lovely imagery and beautiful observation, of splendid stories of friendship and self-sacrifice and self-discipline. Books are the open sesame to all the best life that has been lived, and all the finest and most beautiful things that have been thought and sung.

Even those people who with every wordly language, get at life firsthand, can never go down so broad and beautiful an avenue as the avenue of books that stretches back in the dim backward of the dawn of life and onward to the stars and men's dreams and speculations of the future. That avenue leads through all lands and all languages; it has a free access to the houses of the great and the lowly, the noblest thinkers and the lonellest sages.

If you teach but yourself to love books, and to read them, and to make their contents a part of yourself, you will have the seed of the flowers of life ready to scatter wherever you pull up a thistle. For, remember, all the very best of life is put into books, sooner or later.——L. C. Willcox.

Mother's Rights.

Justice Shearn, of the Supreme Court of New York, recently handed down a decision that caused wide editorial comment in the East. The decision was to the effect that a mother had an equal right with the father to the children of the union.

To most American mothers, unacquainted with the peculiarities of the law, the idea that this right ever could have been questioned is astounding and maddening.

Yet so unprecedented in legal annals was Justice Shearn's decision that newspaper editors commented on it. And if the necessity for the decision was not sufficiently trying to the temper of mothers, the naivety of the newspaper comments certainly was.

Says one, "The vast majority of Americans are already reconciled to the notion that a wife is her husband's legal equal." Says another, "The decision means that wives are people." Says a third, "Poor Father! Several members of the bench seem to act upon the theory that he is chiefly important as a meal ticket.

Undoubtedly the majority of American women are indifferent to woman's suffrage. And just as undoubtedly a decision such as this, coupled with its comments, turns more indifference to desire than any amount of direct campaigning could.

It rouses sex hostility in a woman at once. "What!" she demands, "can there be any question to my right to my child that I have bore in agony and reared in self-sacrifice and utter devotion?"

There comes in reply the fact that Justice Shearn's decision "will be historical for disestablishing one of those sacred precedents that are supposedly the basis of our entire legal system."

The vote in the hands of the men has done remarkable things. In the hands of women it undoubtedly will make her legal status equal to men's at every point. Yet one thing the vote can not do, and that is, change the inherent nature of womankind. And it is her inherent nature as well as man's that has given rise to most of her legal abuses.

Back of the chattel idea of women, of the regarding her as man's property, lies not only a man's selfishness, but women's quality of abject devotion to the man who marries her. Be he rich or poor, high or low, mean or great, brutal or gentle, the average woman clings to her man. And through the ages this quality of hers has not helped to foster in him tenderness or generosity.

No one characteristic of woman has contributed more toward lowering her legal status than this. No one factor in human life has been more potent in maintaining the integrity of the home. It is a quality that has been recognized since human history began—now compared to something slavish and dog-like, now to the fidelity of the angels.—Delineator.

BATTLING FOR NEW JERSEY.

Trenton, Sept. 28.—The appearance of Charles E. Hughes as a speaker at the Interstate Fair here today marks the beginning of a hard fight planned by the Republicans to capture the home State of President Wilson. The Republican leaders are claiming New Jersey for Hughes, but they are going to give decided attention to the State as a battleground, nevertheless. Mr. Hughes will speak in Newark, probably on October 9, and will pay a third visit to the State in the last week of the campaign. In addition to the head of the national ticket some of the foremost spellbinders in the Republican ranks will be sent here as the campaign progresses.

CAROLINA W. C. T. U.

Sumter, S. C., Sept. 28.—Sumter extended a hearty greeting to the many women gathered here from all over South Carolina to take part in the annual State convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. The visitors will be here through the remainder of the week and elaborate preparations have been made for their entertainment. Daily sessions for the transaction of the business of the convention will be held. The annual reports prepared by the several officers of the State organization show that the year has been one of steady growth, and the outlook for the coming year is very encouraging.

BANKERS LISTEN TO REPORTS.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 28.—The sessions of this, the second day of the American Bankers' Association convention, were devoted largely to the reception and consideration of reports from several sections and standing committees of the association. This afternoon the convention listened to an address on "Co-operation," by Joseph Chapman, of Minneapolis. The business will be concluded tomorrow with the election and installation of officers.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

Raking 'Em Over

PHILLIES AND FORTUNE.

Pat Moran leads a baseball machine that is waging a monster fight with but little startling talent on hand. It is true that Alexander is a pitching phenom and that "Gavvy" Cravath is a betting genius, but outside of these players there is no Philly man who has earned unusual distinction. And yet Pat Moran has what is rightfully termed a ball club. He is not referred to as the "Miracle Man," nor are his accomplishments posted all over the village billboards. It may be Fortune and Philadelphia that is waging this fight for the flag and, then again, it may be Philadelphia and Moran.

DONOVAN AND DOOM.

Searching for words that "sound," at least, somewhat the same, we struck the combination of "Donovan and Doom." The rumor that "Wild Bill" would soon be through as manager of the Yankees may not have been so very false after all. While Donovan, as a leader, has done fairly well, we fail to see where he has been a howling success. About a year ago there was talk of his being released by "Cap" Huston and Colonel Ruppert. But, William is still at the helm. Perhaps Frank Baker may do a little managing before long.

ROWLAND DUE TO FALL?

Clarence Rowland may not lead the Chicago White Sox next year, according to present indications. In fact, it is now almost certain that Kid Gleason will head the team. It is said that Rowland, who had only minor league experience, finds it difficult to lead the Sox. Some offer the excuse that Eddie Collins, Joe Jackson and the other high-salaried stars on the team find it irksome to listen to Rowland, whose salary, it is said, is nothing exceptional. Perhaps there may be a change, after all. Remember, Kid Gleason once said that Jack Martin was the best shortstop in baseball.

DEMPSEY AT FORDHAM.

"Rumor is again rampant in favor of one Andy Dempsey, former Barringer football star and last year one of the best fullbacks Georgetown University ever had. Andy decided in the summer that he would not return to the Washington college, and then rumor started in its work and sent Andy on a journey here and there, and hither and yon. Andy was reported a prospective member of various stalwart football teams. Then for a while rumor slipped away and took a rest. Now she is wideawake again and has Andy, perhaps only for a day or two, perhaps for a season or more, in Fordham. And if Andy is to go to Fordham, to study law, somehow or other one can't help thinking he might get out for the football team. So there it rests at present."—Newark News.

MORE THAN TIMELY.

An article, appearing in the Pittsburg Leader, is more than "timely;" it is a sort of a "miracle." Written in regards to the peculiar—and not a little embarrassing position—in which Jawn McGraw will be put, it shows a careful study of the question and, although the story is rather long, it so sums up the situation that when one completes the reading, he is certain that he possesses a clear idea of "what's what." Hence, we reproduce the article:

"A peculiar condition has been put up to John McGraw, and it is going to be tough for him to handle it. Back in the old-time days, McGraw and Robinson were pals on the Baltimore Orioles. They jumped together, and it was Robbie and McGraw who saved the National League by sticking away from the big offers of the opposition. McGraw, when he took hold of the Giants, promised to take care of his side-kick. He gave Robinson a $6,000 a year job when anyone else holding the same berth would have been lucky to get $2,000 a year for training pitchers. McGraw made the public statement that Robbie would never leave the Giants unless he bettered himself, and it was John McGraw that put through the deal that made Robinson manager of the Brooklyn club. They are both of the type of Irish that stick to each other. Moran and McGraw have nothing in common, in fact, have shown an antagonistic spirit toward each other, and the awful setback the Giants gave the Phils recently was directly responsible for the Dodgers still being in the lead.

"It means hundreds of thousands of dollars to Brooklyn, thousands of dollars to each of the Dodger players and the greatest boost that could be given Robinson if Brooklyn pins the pennant. New York does not have a chance in the world. Once this winning streak is broken, and it is sure to come soon, McGraw will not care a whole lot, as he has fourth place certain. Now, Brooklyn and New York have several games to play against each other. No one could say a word if rookies were shoved in so that Jawn could test them out, the way Callahan has been doing with Pirate kids. It would only be natural, but if he did, Boston and Philadelphia would raise the clouds with their yelping. McGraw is on the square, no one ever accused him of any crookedness, but the wish may unconsciously be father to the thought in picking pitchers and using rookies. Undoubtedly McGraw wants to see Brooklyn win. It is his protege that will benefit. McGraw is not looking for any personal glory out of it, but it will keep the baseball honors in the Gotham district, and civic pride will help just a little. The decision in this pennant fight is going to be up to the Brooklyn and New York series. If the Dodgers cop three out of four from the Giants, Robinson can feel sure; if the Giants knock them off, hope is blasted.

"The biggest yelp would probably come from Boston. The officials of the Brave team are the most rabid and radical of any in the National League. They yelled about the other teams helping Philadelphia; then New York went in and knocked Moran's crew cold and silenced Boston."

ATHLETES OFF FOR SWEDEN. New York, Sept. 28.—With the cheers of many enthusiasts ringing in their ears, a quartet of America's star athletes sailed away on the steamship Oscar II today en route for Scandanavia, where they are to compete next month against the selected representatives of Norway, Sweden and Denmark in feats of skill, speed and endurance. The athletes selected to represent the United States should hold their own against the best all-around competition in the world. The team includes Robert Simpson, of the University of Missouri, Fred Murray, of San Francisco; J. G. Loomis, of Chicago, and Ted Meredith, of Philadelphia. Both Simpson and Murray are holders of world's records.

DUNELLEN TO VISIT.

It was announced late this morning that the Knights of St. Peter will play the Dunellen team at New Brunswick on Sunday. The Knights, as told elsewhere in these columns, will visit Dunellen on Saturday and will entertain the Apgarites on Sunday.

HOLY CROSS FOOTBALL SEASON WILL OPEN OCTOBER 14 WITH FRANKLINS HERE

Enthusiastic Meeting Held in Daily Press Office Last Night—Many Candidates Report for Instructions—U. S. S. Wyoming Team Booked—Practice Called for Saturday.

A meeting of the Holy Cross Football team was held in the office of the Plainfield Daily Press last evening, Manager "Doc" Doyle presiding. Assistant Manager Joe Green was also on hand and all talk of his resigning seems to have been but a myth. Billy Coyle, the energetic quarterback, about whom there was also "resignation" talk, was on hand and entered into the proceedings with much enthusiasm.

Many of the players were on hand last night. Joe Widdowson, the former Plainfield High School athlete, was on hand and promised to bring two new recruits. Captain Jack Wilson introduced his brother. Leo Wilson, as a candidate. Leo, while young, is well built and should develop into as much of a star as his brother is. Danny McAfee, another candidate, was on hand and took an active part in the discussions.

It was decided to book eleven games for the season, the first to be played with the Franklins, of Newark. First practice will be called Saturday, when the warriors will get together on Cricket Field. On Monday evening practice will be held on the field adjoining Marshall's laundry on Watchung avenue. This is a convenient spot and it is expected that all the players will report regularly. Failure to be on hand for practice may result in suspension from the team.

Manager Doyle announced that he would book a game with the Bradhurst F. C., champions of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle League. Attractions are also carded with the Cupids, Midwouts, Franklins, Vikings, Elizabeth A. A. and U. S. S. Wyoming teams. The game with the sailor boys is always a popular one, and on the day the game is played the town is literally flooded with "sea soldiers."

It was announced last evening that the following candidates would report for first practice: Jack Wilson, Leo Wilson, Walter Wilson, Jerry Manning, Lee Manning, Billy Coyle, Tom Ricketts, Jack Ricketts, Bill Ruttledge (who desires to play in but one game), Danny McAfee, Joe Barto, George Trust, "Turk" Webster, Joe Carty, Lou Brown, Joe Widdowson, Hohenstein, Witherson, Bill Smith, Andrew Stiglitz, Benson, Eddie Bremble and a host of others, including two recruits from Westfield.

SEVEN LOCAL STARS MAY PLAY AT SHORE

Several Local Managers May Find Themselves in Fix on Sunday.

We are informed from reliable sources that seven local baseball players will cast their lot with the Red Bank baseball team on Sunday. It is said that the manager of the Red Bank team, together with Lou Slocum, visited this city the other evening in an effort to secure talent for a coming game between his team and one representing Atlantic Highlands.

Reports have it that seven of Plainfield's best talent will take the little trip to the shore and will receive surprisingly large pay for doing so. If such is the case, then one or two local managers whom we know, will have to look around for players. It is said that the championship of Monmouth county can be annexed by Red Bank, if that team wins on Sunday. It is also said that certain parties are willing to pay good cash to see the trick accomplished. Therefore we can only await developments.

ELIZABETH ALL STARS AT PARKER FIELD

Will Play Return Engagement With Warden's Plainfield Stars.

Present indications point to a gala day at Parker Field on Saturday. At least the last Saturday baseball game of the season will be played on that date. Manager Warden, of the Plainfield Stars and kindred outfits, has secured the Elizabeth Stars for the attraction.

The last time the Elizabeth team played here, victory was recorded for the locals only after a hard battle, in which excitement reigned supreme. Advices from the Rail and Harbor City state that more excitement is going to prevail on Saturday, when the second engagement starts. The local team will have stars of the City League in the line-up. Manager Warden expects a large crowd and will make known his line-up tomorrow.

MOROS TURN SWORDS INTO BASEBALL BATS

Civilization Follows the Bat, Is New Version of Old Saying.

The Moros, wild men of the Philippines, are beating their swords into ball bats, according to news brought from the islands by Bishop Brent. From head hunting they are turning to run getting. The man who dies on second may not have been stabbed to death.

Like the British dominions, the sun never sets on the baseball diamonds of the world. A game starts in one quarter of the globe before the last inning is played elsewhere. The sound of the bat and the bleachers' yell harmonize in a hymn of civilization.

So at last the Moros, most dreaded of Filipinos—cruel, relentless, whose pride for generations has been in the number of enemy heads they could show as trophies—turn to the king of sports to work off their superfluous energy. By the same token there is hope for the Moros. Some day one may read of a great Philippine baseball league, Moros clashing with Igorrotes for the championship.

This, apparently, is to be one of America's gifts to its wards in the far east or a part of the supreme gift of civilization—baseball, the leader of all sports, binding the east and the west in a brotherhood of sympathy and understanding. When baseball becomes universal throughout the islands of the archipelago we may consider that the Filipinos are apt candidates for independence, for they will have learned one prime essential of freedom—the willingness to lose a game by a close decision without murdering the umpire.

COULDN'T KEEP UMPIRE OUT.

Crawls Through Hole In Fence to Declare Game Forfeited.

Denied admission to the baseball park at Petersburg, Va., by officials of the Petersburg Virginia league club, Umpire Buckley, assigned to officiate at a game with Newport News, crawled through a hole in the fence, declared the game forfeited to Newport News and then was taken to jail on a trespass warrant sworn out by the city collector. He was released on bail.

The incident caused a near riot among the fans. Petersburg club officials said Buckley's decisions had made him obnoxious, and they took these vigorous measures to force another assignment.

BRIDWELL SUCCEEDS MARTIN AS LEADER

Former Giant Will Take Over Reins of Brewer Outfit.

According to reports given out by members of the Milwaukee team, Al Bridwell, formerly a member of the New York Giants, will manage the Brewers next season. Jack Martin will continue as manager of the team for the rest of this season.

About twenty "big league" players were after the position as manager of the Brewers—at least that is what Al Timme,, president of the club, said. Bridwell has had considerable experience in fast company and was, at one time, a bright star. He will get Jack Martin's job as manager, but he certainly will have to go some to take away his shortstop position. In all probability Bridwell will manage the team from the bench.

SOUTH SIDE PREPARES FOR RED AND BLUE

Coach Cavallero Getting Ready For Opening Game Here.

With their first game in the New Jersey Interscholastic Football League near, South Side High School gridiron warriors are putting in hard licks every day. Coach Cavallero is putting the squad through the paces at Weequahic Park. Monday they went through scrimmage and signal practice. Yesterday he paid particular attention to his punters.

William Schwartz and Clifford Slater, both ends on last year's first team, seem sure of their berths. The other end candidates are Harold Henderson and Harold Leveens.

John Alexander, of the 1915 eleven, Herman Shapiro, George Mount and Herman Kahn are out for backs. The guards will be picked from Edwin Smith, Robert Fava and Sam Blume. Harold Rutan is the only candidate for the pivot position.

South Side will be well supplied with backfield men. Zucker, Birkenmeyer, Gordon, Seaman, Weissmiller, Bioren, William Schwartz and George Mount are the most promising. Cavallero will have Zucker, Gordon and Mount for the kicking department.

The first game is with Plainfield High School and will be played here on October 6.

WILL PLAY FINALS.

S. R. Voshell and Fred C. Baggs will play the Vandeventer brothers on the Plainfield Country Club courts in the finals of the night tourney started some time ago.

The King's Way.

It was characteristic of the late King Edward VII. that he never showed too much or too little courtesy, but just enough to maintain his reputation of being the most gracious gentleman of Europe. Some years ago, according to the author of "The People's King," his majesty visited Aberdeen and knighted the lord provost. At the luncheon which followed the king sat next to Mrs. Lyon, the wife of the lord provost, and noticed on the table the card denoting her place.

"I must alter this," the king said, smiling on the lady.

With his pencil he effaced the word Mrs. and in its place substituted Lady and graciously handed the card to her newly made ladyship.

Family Harmony.

"I am very easy on my shoes," said the stout lady complacently. "Look at this pair. I've worn them three years, and they're still as good as new. I'm easy on clothes too. There's my tweed—just as fresh as the day I bought it, seven years ago. And hats, gloves, stockings—in fact, I'm easy on everything."

"Except father, eh?" said her daughter quietly, without looking up from her book.

That Settled It.

She—You remind me so much of my brother. He—Indeed! In what way? She—Well, Harry seems awfully fond of me, yet he never offers to kiss me.

After that it was quite unnecessary for her to ring in any of her relatives.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Early Astronomy.

Anaxagoras, a distinguished Athenian, in 525 B. C. taught that the sun was not a deity, but an inanimate fiery mass. He also suggested that the moon shone by reflected light and correctly explained solar and lunar eclipses.

Masked Balls.

Henry VIII. introduced the bal masque into England. As this form of amusement gradually spread the people began to hire halls and charge admission fees, and the routs of the court were imitated by the orgies of the mob.

At the Traps

By Peter P. Carney.

History is authority for the statement that the sling as a weapon is probably the earliest form of device known to mankind by which an increase of force and range was given to the arm of a thrower of missiles.

When the youthful hero David slew the giant Goliath with stones hurled with his sling, he little knew that the idea exemplified in his action with the weapon of the stone age would be generally used by trapshotters three thousand years later, but such is the case.

All of us have, no doubt, when at the water's edge, picked up flat, thin stones and "skipped" them across the water. How fascinated and interested we were in trying to excel ouselves by making each succeeding throw record more "skips" than the previous one. The principles governing the throwing of the stones and producing the "skipping" features are exactly similar to those which govern the throwing of clay targets.

Attached to every trap manufactured for the purpose of throwing clay targets for trapshooting is a part known as a "carrier." The success or failure of every trap lies in the carrier. The carrier is attached to the throwing arm of the trap and is held "set," ready to be released at the shotter's call of "pull." When this signal is given by the shooter, the trap boy pulls a lever, the throwing arm is released, swiftly describing an arc, at the end of which the carrier releases the clay target and sends it spinning through the air, just as one would a stone.

Should the carrier be improperly adjusted, that is, too loose or too tight, or possess any defect, then the target will not be properly thrown, or will be broken on leaving the carrier. In other words, the carrier of a clay target trap is akin to the main spring of a watch, and if it is out of order the trap is useless.

Any expert trapshooter will say that you can shoot at clay targets which do not have just the right "spin," or, in other words, which do not properly rotate, and though you may hit it with six or eight pellets of shot, yet the chances are against the target being broken. On the other hand, one pellet will often serve to break a rotating or "spinning" target all to pieces.

Years ago the "gun fan" had very poor and crude trapshooting facilities. However, perseverance by the "dyed-in-the-wool" devotees of the sport brought about better conditions, and today one can enjoy this sport in almost any city or town. Should there be no gun club with a permanent trap, a hand trap answers the some purpose. Anyone can easily operate it. It is ideal for private shoots, picnics, on decks of motor boats or yachts, and for hunting parties. It can throw targets in any number of angles.

Trapshooting, like several other things, "becomes better with age."

There are more than a quarter of a million trapshooters in the United States.

PRINCETON CLUB TO CONDUCT TOURNAMENT

All Entries Must Be in by Friday of Next Week.

The annual tennis tournament, under the auspices of the Princeton Club, of Plainfield, open to all boys attending the Plainfield schools, will commence on Saturday morning, October 7, at 9 o'clock, on the Plainfield Country Club courts.

As there are likely to be a large number of entries contestants will have to begin promptly and the lists cannot be kept open for late comers. All entries with the entrance fee of twenty-five cents, should be mailed or handed to Burnham Carter, 940 Woodland avenue, Plainfield, by Friday noon, October 6.

Contestants should state whether they are under or over 16, as it may be decided to divide the contestants into two groups as was done last year, one group consisting of those 16 or over, the other of those under 16. First and second prizes will be awarded by the Princeton Club of Plainfield.

BOSTON RED SOX RECRUIT WILL OPPOSE DUNELLEN

The Knights of St. Peter baseball team will go to Dunellen on Saturday prepared to take the scalp of Tommy Apgar's Dunellen team. Jake Deinzer, in whom Bill Carrigan and his scouts think they have another "Babe" Ruth, will do the pitching for the Knights.

Tommy Apgar wants to win this game. He believes that he can turn the trick without the assistance of additional talent. Therefore, the Dunellen lineup will not be changed. The game will be given an early start in order that the shadows of night may not interfere with the plans already made.

The power of the press can be applied to any business by using good Printing.

A printer's best work is not obtained on the competitive basis. It cannot be.

The man who asks for competition in price seeks estimates on so much stock, composition and presswork and nothing more. He does not bargain for the skill, originality, time and individuality of the printer, and he does not get them.

We get only what we pay for in this world and nothing else that is worth having.

William F. Arnold, aged 57 years, for the past thirteen years, city treasurer, custodian of school funds, and well known in banking circles, being vice-president and cashier of the City National Bank died at his home, 817

William F. Arnold.

Third place, at 10 o'clock last night, following a stroke of apoplexy which he suffered about 7 o'clock yesterday morning. Prior to the time he was stricken, Mr. Arnold had been enjoying good health. On Wednesday night he attended a meeting of the Joint Sewer Commission and took an active part in its deliberations.

The fact that Mr. Arnold had had a stroke was discovered by his wife when she went to his room early in the morning. She found her husband unconscious and was unable to arouse him. Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, the family physician, was immediately summoned, and following an examination could offer but little hope for recovery. However, later in the day the physician said that there was a slight chance as Mr. Arnold had partially regained consciousness. This lasted only for a brief time. Soon afterward his condition became critical again and he failed to recognize any member of the family before he passed away.

Mr. Arnold's death removes from Plainfield a highly respected and valued citizen, and it was the general expression of his many friends today that it would be difficult to fill his place, both as a city official and in his position at the City National Bank, with which institution he had been connected for so many years. That Plainfield has suffered a distinct loss is the opinion of everyone who knew Mr. Arnold.

Mr. Arnold was born in New York city, being the son of Mr. and Mrs. David P. Arnold. He came to Plainfield with his parents when he was a year old, and while the family had a home in New York, for several years they spent their summers here. The Arnold homestead was at West Seventh street and Arlington avenue, where the Hartridge School is now located. Mr. Arnold attended the Plainfield public schools, being graduated from the high school at the age of 18 years.

Immediately after leaving school he took a position at the City National Bank, where he was rapidly advanced. Later he left the local banking institution and took a position with the Importers and Traders Bank, of New York, remaining there less than two years. Upon the death of J. K. Myers, who was vice-president and cashier of the City National Bank, which occurred on November 26, 1906, Mr. Arnold returned to the bank, and following the death of Frank Gardner, who was advanced to the position held by Mr. Myers, Mr. Arnold succeeded Mr. Gardner, continuing as vice-president and cashier until the time of his death.

Mr. Arnold was an expert in financial matters and possessed unusual ability in not only directing the successful career of the City National Bank, but in handling the city's finances. Through keen foresight he has on many occasions been able to save the city considerable money. The various accounts, together with their endless details, were always carefully attended to by Mr. Arnold, which won for him much commendation. Several years ago he became interested in the Plainfield Savings Institution and at the time of his death was president of that institution, which required considerable of his time and attention. He was also one of the Police Pension Fund Commissioners.

Mr. Arnold was a member of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. & A. M., Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., and Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum. He was also a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church and for many years its treasurer.

TROOP D IS TO BE HOME SOON

Among the Units Selected by General Funston For Relief.

MAY LEAVE IN A WEEK

Will Use Train That Carries Other Guardsmen to Douglas—Ought to Be at Sea Girt by October 15.

Troop D is coming home, and at once. The Plainfielders, with all other members of the New Jersey cavalry unit and those of the First Battalion of field artillery, will leave Douglas probably the last of next week, and should be at Sea Girt by October 15, at the latest. This means that they will be mustered out of service once back with their loved ones and friends by November 1, if the plans of the War Department are carried out.

There are 10,000 militiamen now on the border who will be sent home immediately. Recently many new units were ordered from their training camps to Texas, Arizona, and New Mexico for guard duty, and Gen. Funston was given authority to select the regiments to be released when the new troops are on the ground. His selection was announced by the Associated Press yesterday.

Movements will not begin, it was announced, until the incoming troops have arrived. The rolling stock used to bring them to the border will be utilized for the return trips of the regiments ordered back to their respective States.

The list of the troops that will go home is as follows: Second Maine Infantry, at Laredo; one regiment New York Field Artillery and First New York Ambulance company, both in Brownsville district; Rhode Island Battery, at El Paso; First Battalion First Massachusetts Field Artillery, at El Paso; First Pennsylvania Field Artilleyr, at El Paso; First Illinois Field Artillery, Wisconsin Battery and First Winconsin Field Hospital, at San Antonio; First Connecticut Infantry, at Nogales; First Montana Infantry, First Squadron New Jersey Cavalry and First Battalion New Jersey Field Artillery, all at Douglas; battalion of infantry from District of Columbia, at Naco, and First Squadron Utah Cavalry, at Nogales.

BROKAW GIVEN ONE YEAR AT HARD LABOR

Judge Beekman Delivers a Scathing Rebuke in Passing Sentence.

Clarence Brokaw, who was arrested on Long Island by Detective George Totten, of Somerville, and brought back to this State on a charge of desertion, was arraigned before Judge Beekman at Somerville yesterday, and was sentenced to one year in State Prison at hard labor. In passing sentence Judge Beekman took occasion to give the prisoner a scathing rebuke, in which he impressed upon him the seriousness of the offence with which he was charged. Brokaw was visibily affected by Judge Beekman's talk.

Brokaw deserted his wife and children a year ago, and it was not until recently that Detective Totten learned as to his whereabouts. He was found living with another woman on Long Island. Brokaw was formerly engaged in the automobile business. He will be taken to Trenton on Monday.

MAYOR WILL HELP MAKE LATZKO'S PARADE BIG EVENT

There will be a grand old time on the Canadian side of Green Brook tonight if Morris Latzko and his "wet" advocates have a parade. After hearing of the elaborate plans that have been made for their reception, it is possible that Latzko will call off the affair and find some other way to give his followers refreshment.

Mayor "Bill" Smalley said this morning that the reception room, also known as the "cooler," had been made ready and Chief Marshal Weiss, assisted by the police cohorts, will act as a reception committee, while Recorder Fred Hand will preside at the presentation to follow.

AUGUST BURGOIN.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from the mortuary parlors of J. J. and C. A. Higgins, on West Fourth street, and interment will be in Evergreen cemetery.

Two Troopers Narrowly Escape Fatal Injuries From Horses—Water Wagon Put in Use—Sore Arms Common in Camp.

By JAMES J. McNAMEE.

Douglas, Ariz., Sept. 25.—Mainly through the efforts of Jersey soldiers sufficient interest has been aroused to warrant the founding of a Knights of Columbus council, and personal canvassing by Jersey knights has resulted in twenty-five applications for membership being filed. When National Warden Thomas McLaughlin, of Newark, visited the camp while in the West last July, he assured the Jerseymen that he would come West when the installation ceremonies were held and the organizers are now planning to extend an invitation to the Newarker.

For the benefit of soldiers and prospective members the Knights have opened a club room in the heart of the city and this is serving as a gathering place each afternoon and evening. Among the Jerseymen interested is the upkeep of the new club rooms are: Dr. H. T. Redden, Orange; Joseph M. Rath, East Orange; Frederick W. Dury, Orange; Thomas H. Goggin, Bloomfield; Paul A. HEALTH REGULATIONS WILL BE ENFORCED

Dr. A. F. VanHorn Addresses School Teachers on Contagious Diseases.

After spending four days in institute work under Dr. Maxson and at the Somerset County Institute at Somerville, the city teachers are at work today putting the final touches to the preparations for the opening of school Monday.

The medical examiner, Dr. A. L. Van Horn, gave the assembled teachers a talk this morning on contagious diseases, their characteristics and symptoms, and the action teachers should take regarding them.

He expressed the feeling that it was safe to open school Monday and they should have no fear regarding the matter. The pupils will be carefully supervised and all possible precautions taken to avoid contagion. No pupils who have been exposed to the disease will be admitted to school until they have been released from quarantine by the Board of Health.

The new Emerson School building is not yet completed because of unavoidable delays in construction, so that it cannot be used before some time in November. The Emerson School pupils will be cared for, however, by putting the Lincoln School classes on morning time from 8:30 to 12:30 and the Emerson School classes on afternoon time in the Lincoln School building from 12:30 to 4:30. The pupils from these two districts are expected to report at the Lincoln, accordingly, Monday morning, the Lincoln pupils at 8:30 and the Emerson pupils at 12:30.

SEWER PLANT FINISHED; TO BE ACCEPTED NOVEMBER 15

Contractor Bader has finished work on the purifying plant of the Joint Sewer Commission near Dunellen and has so notified members of the Board. This means that it will be formally taken over by the commission November 15, as had been planned. While the plant has not been accepted officially, President Blatz, Councilman Hylan and other members of the Board has gone over it and are satisfied that it is complete in every detail. It is said that the contractor lost $20,000 on the job, because he figured on labor at the wage which prevailed before munition works began to bid for workers of all classes, and was therefore unable to get out at anywhere near his estimated cost.

RESTAURANT MAN IS A SUICIDE

Michael J. Ahern, aged 52, committed suicide this afternoon by shooting himself in the head in his apartment on the top floor at 119 North avenue. He had recently purchased the restaurant at that number, and for several days had been feeling ill. He went to his room about 12 o'clock and when his wife found him at 2o'clock he was dead. He had come here last May from Philipsburg.

THREE WOMEN HURT AT AUCTION SALE

Horse Frightened by Trolley Siren Bolts into Crowd at Scotch Plains.

Frightened by the blowing of a siren on a passing trolley car, a horse attached to a light spring wagon full of prizes to be distributed among the hundreds of people present, bolted into the crowd attending the Flanders' Park auction sale at Soctch Plains yesterday afternoon and knocked down four or five people. Those more severely injured are:

Mrs. Charles Wicht, 209 Leland avenue, Plainfield, probable fracture of the skull and several ribs broken; condition serious.

Mrs. Emma Kohl, 231 Union street, Elizabeth, severe burnises and contusions. Will recover.

Yesterday was the first day of the auction sale of a recently developed tract by the Scotch Plains Improvement Company, and the offer of gifts had lured hundreds to the spot from all over the county. After the sale of land the distribution of presents was begun and shortly after 4 o'clock a horse and wagon came from Plainfield with the articles to be given away.

At the sounding of the siren the horse bolted into the crowd before any one could stop it, and knocking everything from in front of it continued several hundred yards to the barn on the Cole farm. Automobiles took the injured to their homes where they were attended to by doctors. Today it was said the condition of Mrs. Wich and Miss Ford was serious.

ALUMNI STUDENTS WILL FORM CLUB

A preliminary organization meeting of the alumni commercial students of the Plainfield High School was held last night at the home of John C. Evans, 1231 Lennox avenue, for the purpose of discussing plans for the establishment of a commercial club among the young men and women who have entered the business world. The meeting was called by Mr Evans and a number of the alumni met at his home to give their views. Mr. Evans has just returned from New Haven, Conn., where a very flourishing graduate commercial club has been conducted during the past five years.

THIEF ENTERED FRONT STREET STORE YESTERDAY

Rather than pay a fine cent carfare to Scotch Plains, an unidentified burglar forced an entrance into the rear of the store room at 173 East Front street between the hours of 6 and 7 last evening. A gold watch and a portable typewriter were among the articles taken. The typewriter was recovered. Police Sergeant O'Keefe is on the case.

The store room is temporarily occupied by the Scotch Plains Improvement Company. This concern is operating an auction sale of lots at Scotch Plains. As a part of their plan of advertising a variety of valuable gifts are distributed among the visitors at the sales and are on display at the Front street address. It was obviously the purpose of the burglar to raid the display window. The timely entrance of one of the attaches of the place interrupted him and the thief escaped through a rear window.

"GET-TOGETHER" MEETING.

A "get-together" meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church was held yesterday afternoon, at which time plans for a social to be held on the night of October 27 were made. Committees for the affair will be appointed later, and other plans are being made for an active winter. The first regular meeting of the fall will be held in October, when an all-day session with a luncheon at noon will be held.

508 BABIES AT MILK STATIONS

Report of Visiting Nurse Association Shows Good Work Done.

BUT 7 PATIENTS DIED

Not One of Those Cared for at Station Fell Victim to Infantile Paralysis—Total Cost for Summer $142.18.

The Visiting Nurse Association held its first meeting since the summer vacation yesterday, and the following report was submitted:

"This has been a very trying summer for all organizations in Plainfield, for in many directions the paralysis epidemic has prevented regular work. In the milk stations and baby clinic the attendance fell off as soon as the people began to have the reports of the spread of this dread sickness and the strict quarantine in the west end of town kept many from attending. Otherwise the work has gone on well and has been very successful.

"The Visiting Nurse Association wishes to thank the doctors who so generously gave their services to this good work, Dr. Currie, Dr. Pratt, Dr. Titsworth and Dr. Gray. The stations have been open for four months and these doctors have helped regularly. Without their assistance none of the work could have been done.

"The stations were open four days in each week, two days at the Day Nursery and two days at the corner of Richmond street and Cottage place. The total attendance was 508, averaging eight a day for the 61 days that the stations were open. The number enrolled was 128. Of this number only 42 came regularly, as the other 86 dropped out because of the paralysis scare.

"Eight prizes were given to those who came most regularly and who gained the most. The prize winners were: Italians, 3; colored babies, 2; Americans, 3. The highest gain was

GREETINGS FROM DR. W. E. BIEDERWOLF

Evangelist Sends Message From California to People of Plainfield.

The following telegram received by Arthur M. Harris, of this city, from Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, the evangelist, who conducted a campaign in this city and is now in San Jose, Cal., comes as a greeting to the people of Plainfield on the eve of "Rally Day" in the local Sunday schools:

Mr. Arthur M. Harris,
Plainfield, N. J.

Hello Plainfield! Mr. Biederwolf and all his party extend finest and kindest greetings to the good people of Plainfield churches. Wish you could know of our very deep interest in you and our concern about your Christian experience. In our party worship we often pray "God bless Plainfield."

Sorry, indeed, to hear of the regulation about Sunday school attendance made necessary by your duty to safeguard the health and life of your children. I met some mighty fine young people while in Plainfield. Sorry they could not be in Sunday school this summer, but wish I might have a letter telling me of enthusiastic opening of Sunday schools on October 1. Listen, boys and girls, and let me call to you across the continent, and urge you to go to Sunday school October 1. There is no better place in this world to go. Go and make October 1 a day of thanksgiving that you have been spared from the plague that made it wise for you not to go these few months past.

October 15, our closing Sunday in San Jose, California, is your Go-to-Church Day in Plainfield. The church needs you and you need the church. The church is the best institution God ever gave this world. Champion her always. The church is the hope of this country. Be faithful to her call. The church is the bride of Christ, and so the mother of God's children. If she has imperfections, deal gently with her, as you would with your own mother, when sick, and seek lovingly to remove the disease. Boost always; don't knock. You can not saw wood with a hammer. Go to church every Lord's Day when possible, but go October 15 and help make it a time worthy to be remembered in your city's history. May it be a great day for the church life of Plainfield. Here's hoping we can come back again. Pray for us.

W. E. BIEDERWOLF.

MAY KEEP AERO PLANT IN CITY

Business Men Have Conference With President Mingle and Officers.

SIDING IS DISCOVERED

Testing Field Will Be Looked Over Tomorrow—President Schwed Acts Promptly Following Press Story of Threatened Loss of Industry.

With the idea of overcoming obstacles which might make it necessary for the Standard Aero Corporation to leave Plainfield, a meeting was held this afternoon at the Kensington Hotel between officers of the organization and representatives of the Business Men's Association of Plainfield. As a result of the conference it is probable that plans will be perfected within two weeks which will result in the plant remaining in Plainfield.

It was following an editorial in the Daily Press suggesting that the local business men should do something to keep the plant here, that President Schwed, of the Business Men's Association, called today's meeting. In addition to members of the organization, the Aero Company was represented by President H. B. Mingle, Secretary Meenan and Engineer Charles Day.

President Mingle explained to the business men that the principal difficulties confronting them, which could be overcome in other cities, were the absence of a proper field for experimental and trial flight purposes, a railroad siding, and a properly heated factory building. He said that the company is now employing 160 men, with a pay roll of over $3,000 a week, and the prospects are that this will be doubled if they get certain contracts. In anticipation of the possibility of the contracts coming to them it is necessary to have a factory ready in which the work can be done. One of the present buildings is not properly heated, and they have been unable to get assurance from the owners that it will be. Mr. Mingle said that the company did not want any financial assistance, but did want to be assured that the above mentioned obstacles were removed.

J. D. Loizeaux told those at the meeting that he was sure that an adequate field could be found within five miles of this city, and that a railroad siding is already available, which the officers of the corporation knew nothing about. After discussion it was decided to name a committee of the business men to co-operate with the manufacturing company, and if the suggested field can be procured, efforts will be made to adjust the heating problem. The siding matter, it is expected, is already solved.

President Schwed named Mr. Loizeaux as chairman of the committee, the other members being Leslie R. Fort, Irving Walsh, of the Plainfield Trust Company; Max Tepper, Arthur E. Force, John S. Johnston and Mr. Schwed. If it can be arranged Mr. Mingle will be taken out tomorrow morning to look over the proposed field.

At the meeting today, in addition to those named on the committee were T. R. Van Zandt, Secretary J. H. DeMott, George J. Finger and Clifford L. Applegate.

JOHN D. IS WORLD'S FIRST BILLIONAIRE

John D. Rockefeller has become the world's first billionaire.

Standard Oil Company of New Jersey stock, with its equity in subsidiary companies, quoted at $675 the day the Supreme Court dissolved the corporation, five years ago, went to $2,014.07 a share yesterday.

Mr. Rockefeller owns 247,692 shares of this stock. This alone, without his vast holdings in railroad and bank shares and in National, State and municipal bonds, including $10,000,000 of the 1915 Anglo-French loan, stand him in $498,864,036.44, and in addition to this he is understood to own a large part of the stock of the United States Steel Corporation. Financial authorities have no hesitation in saying that Standard Oil's latest rise has put him easily into the billionaire class.

HENRY J. MOHRING'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Henry J. Mohring, who was instantly killed Wednesday afternoon at the Rock avenue Central Railroad crossing, was held this afternoon at 2:30 from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Charles S. Wilson, 526 West Fifth street. The service was in charge of Rev. Hauser, pastor of the German Reformed church. Many beautiful floral pieces were sent by relatives and friends of the deceased, a number of set pieces being included in the number. The interment was in the Evergreen cemetery.

SERIES OF CHART TALKS.

A series of chart talks, entitled "From Paradise Lost to the Times of Restitution," will be given in the meeting room of the Associated Bible Students, 240 West Front street, beginning Sunday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock. The subject for Sunday will be "The World That Was." All are cordially invited.

GERMANY SAYS SHE'S SATISFIED

Reichstag Opening Address Tells of Her Position in War.

WAR REACHES CLIMAX

Arrival of Bremen in America is Mentioned—Many Members Are in Uniform—8 British Boats Sunk in One Day.

Berlin, by wireless to Sayville, Sept. 29.—In opening the autumn session of the Reichstag President Kaempf mentioned the arrival of the submarine liners Deutschland and Bremen in the United States. The galleries were crowded to capacity as the Reichstag opened. All foreign diplomats in Berlin were present. Among the Reichstag members were many in uniform, some in bandages. President Kaempf in his introductory speech said the military, economic and political war had reached its climax. Germany's position, he said, was satisfactory in every respect.

The speech of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg in the Reichstag contained no peace proffers, which he declared would be useless in view of the attitude of the Entente allies.

Germany will persevere until victory is hers, the Chancellor said. He declared that this year's harvest had made Germany's position much more secure than was the case last year.

In his attack upon Great Britain he declared that that country was breaking one international law after another and was above all Germany's most egotistical, fiercest and most obstinate enemy."

"A German Statesman," he said, "who would hesitate to use against this enemy every available instrument of battle that would really shorten this war—such a Statesman should be hanged."

The Chancellor declared his contempt for those circulating reports that all Germany's means of fighting were not being employed to the fullest possible extent. He added that in order to disappoint the enemy "who is on watch for every breach of our inner determination," he would not give details.

"We Will Win," Says Chancellor.

"When in August, 1914," he went on, "we had to draw the sword we

TROOP UPSET OVER ITS LATEST RUMORS

Barry, Stegman and Creager Discharged and on Way Home.

By JAMES J. McNAMEE

Douglas, Ariz., Sept. 29.—Trooper Barry left Tuesday night, Trooper Stegman Wednesday night and Trooper Creagar Thursday night. All will go direct to Plainfield, all having been given discharges from the service under the dependency clause. Rumors that the Second and Third New Jersey regiments are to come here soon have upset the camp, and have almost put an end to work of the guardsmen. This means, of course, that the boys now on the border will be ordered back to their native State and, O, how they would hate that—about like Mr. Wilson would hate to see himself elected.

SOMERVILLE DOCTOR IS INDICTED ON GIRL'S STORY

Dr. John F. McWilliams, one of the most prominent physicians of Somerville, was indicted by the grand jury of Somerset county yesterday on a charge of malpractice. Evidence in the case against him was furnished by Eva Ross, a domestic formerly of Plainfield. The young girl is in the Elizabeth hospital and has been in a serious condition. A confession made by her there resulted in the arrest and indictment against Dr. McWilliams. Pat Sedicino, an Italian, will be used with the girl in making a case. Dr. McWilliams made bond in the amount of $1,500. His case will be tried October 16.

MRS. ANN GRIFFIN.

After a lingering illness, Mrs. Ann Appleton Griffin passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. Madison Hare, Scotch Plains, this morning. Mrs. Griffin had lived with her daughter ever since Rev. Dr. Hare became pastor of the Baptist church several years ago. Funeral services will be at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

LABOR VS. CAPITAL SUBJECT OF TALK

G. A. McKeen Addresses Open-Air Meeting at Dunellen.

Garfield Arthur McKeen, who says he is Republican in name only, spoke last night at North and Madison avenues under the auspices of the local branch of the Socialist party.

Mr. McKeen's subject was "Scientific Socialism Simplified," emphasizing the Socialist contention that "Labor creates all wealth and is entitled to all that it creates," the speaker said. "He that wants more than he produces is a thief; he that wants less than he produces is a fool, and he that wants just what he produces is a Socialist."

Mr. McKeen called the two old parties the "Siamese twins," and said that the workers were bound to be "skined" in case they voted for either one. "Isn't it better," asked the speaker, "to vote for what you want and not get it, than to vote for what you don't want and get it?"

W. A. Houghtaling, of Washington avenue, has been a sufferer from ptomaine poisoning.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis M. Webber and Mr. and Mrs. William Yoemans attended the Trenton Fair yesterday, making the round trip in one of the H. E. Nelson taxis.

DUNELLEN SCHOOLS WILL RE-OPEN NEXT MONDAY

The meeting between the Board of Health, the Board of Education and the school teachers held in the Lincoln School last evening relative to the advisability of opening the local schools on Monday next, resulted in the decision that it would be perfectly safe to do so. Although the citizens were invited to attend the meeting, none were present; neither were any of the protests which it was said would be made, received. Doctors Whitford and Cooley were in attendance and they coincided with the general opinion of the others, which was to the effect that there is no reason since the epidemic is on the wane, why the schools should not be opened Monday, as will be done in other neighboring places.

William Guest, who has been working in the office of the Hall Printing Press Company this summer, gives up his job tomorrow to return to school.

Twenty-five years of married life were completed on Tuesday by Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Force, of Mountain avenue, the borough. Owing to the illness of Mrs. Force, however, no celebration of the event was held. Mr. and Mrs. Force were married on September 26, 1891, at Arlington, by the Rev. E. S. Jamison, of that place. Mrs. Force was formerly Miss Carrie Fenner, of Pluckemin.

Mr. and Mrs. Force have two children, Miss Alva Force and LeRoy Force, both of the borough.

Euchre prizes were awarded to Miss Nellie Fitzpatrick, Miss Mollie Lyons, Peter McDonough and Michael Lyons.

Editorial

WATCH THE GOODS, THE SERVICE AND THE REPUTATION BEHIND OUR ADS.

Briefly, this means that eternal vigilance is the price of success, and that TRUTH WILL PREVAIL.

As the bee teaches the lessons of industry and thrift so we try to make stocks in this store educational through their newness, novelty and variety, for only by following the paths of Industry can we ever reach the land of Thrift. To prosper, we must never lose sight of the fact that the steady application of productive labor means diligence in our task. Industry CREATES, and indolence inevitably RETAKES even the little things we have.

New Hats Prettier Than Ever

The military trend seems to have supplied the inspiration for the new Fall models. This is disclosed by the visor effects introduced. The high crush and the medium soft crown dominate, in draped styles and styles suggestive of the tam. Large, medium and small hats are shown in an amazing variety. Ribbons, birds and feathers dominate in the trimmings. There is no end to the beautiful colorings. Come and see them tomorrow.

WILL DISCUSS PLANS FOR RELIGIOUS WORK

Y. M. C. A. Committee Will Introduce Many Features This Year.

The religious work committee of the Young Men's Christian Association will hold its first meeting of the season this evening at 8 o'clock, when plans for the fall and winter activities will be worked out.

In connection with the work of this department it is quite possible that oftentimes the extent and effectiveness of the spiritual life of the local association is lost sight of in the more spectacular work of the other departments, and to correct impressions that there is little or nothing done religiously, it is interesting to know that during the past eight months of the current year the whole strength of the associaion was given to the Biederwolf campaign, the employed officers being relieved from their work almost entirely during the period of the campaign. Later on many men and boys who took a stand in the meetings were interviewed personally and successfully urged to join churches. Many meetings have been held Sunday afternoons when some 538 boys heard straight and Gospel talks. Four hundred and fifty men heard the inspiring messages of John Callahan, chaplain of the New York Tombs. There have been enrolled in Bible classes 125 men and boys, scores of personal interviews have been held.

During the coming year the religious work program will include one Sunday afternoon men's meeting each month, when speakers of reputation and power will be heard. Bible study will occupy a large place, there being at least six classes for boys and two or more for men each week, one of the latter being a sort of fellowship class preceded by a light lunch on Sunday afternoon.

The foreign field is also to receive consideration, the association at present being interested in the support of the secretary at Valparaiso, Chile.

CHIEF DOANE RETURNS FROM ENJOYABLE TRIP

USED SCIENCE TO STOP WIFE'S TALK

Some Men Get Divorces When Wives Talk Too Much, but Not John.

Some men ask for divorces when their wives are talking too much. Some have been known to administer beatings. Leave it to John Kearne of St. Louis to use science.

Kearne and his wife went to Shaw's botanical gardens in St. Louis the other day to study the various plants. A gardener went with them.

"What is that?" inquired Kearne, pointing to a queer plant.

"That is the dieffenbachia seguine," responded the gardener. "If you touch it to your tongue it renders you speechless."

It was some time later when Kearne approached his wife.

"Shut your eyes and open your mouth. I've something good," was what he said.

The Kearnes were on their way home when Mrs. Kearne remarked that her mouth and tongue felt funny. She lost her power of speech. She went to the city hospital and was treated. The physicians could not diagnose her case.

Mrs. Kearne recovered the next day, and she told of Kearne's offering. Kearne confessed.

GETS SKULL BY MAIL; CHINESE DEATH WARNING

Oriental Gang Has Long Hounded Man Who Knows Its Secrets.

Walter G. Patterson, short story writer and one time newspaper man, of Media, Pa., has received by parcel post from San Francisco a human skull, which he believes to be a warning of impending trouble sent by the Hip Sings, a Chinese tong. Mr. Patterson's story is a most unusual one.

Years ago, when he was just out of Johns Hopkins university and had gone into newspaper work as a reporter in Butte, Mont., he attempted to get a story of the underground life of Chinatown and inadvertently walked into a meeting of Chinese gunmen in an abandoned mine. To save his life he joined the tong and began the study of Cantonese. When he had gained some proficiency he was elected to go to San Francisco with others to take part in a war with another tong and on the way deserted the Chinese who were with him and attempted to flee from that part of the country.

He was hounded for years by members of the tong, he asserts, who several times attempted to kill him, and was finally shot with a poisoned dart, which partially paralyzed him and kept him in Bellevue hospital, New York, for more than a year before he was able to be about. Mr. Patterson believes that in some way the tong discovered that he has been living in Media and sent the skull, with his tong name, Yet Sho, written across the forehead, to show that he has not been forgotten by them.

DISCOVERS DEATH GOD.

Dutch Explorer Finds One of World's Rarest Specimens.

Captain Theodore De Booy, a young Dutch explorer, arrived in New York recently from Santo Domingo with nine cases of specimens, 2,000 in all. Captain De Booy had been on a four months' expedition in the West Indies and found "the rarest specimen in the world."

This treasure is a marvelous hunchbacked "god of death" in the form of a pottery water bottle. The bottle was found in a cave, where it had stood since long before the time of Columbus. The natives are afraid of caves and consequently never discovered the jar.

"There is only one other like this in the world," said the explorer. "This is a male effigy; the other is a much smaller female. The jar was probably used for ceremonial purposes and is priceless as an archaeological specimen."

Native burial places were discovered for the first time by this expedition. The custom was to expose the bodies to carnivorous fish, and the bones, stripped clean, were then buried. A great bowl was placed over these and a smaller receptacle containing food. Some of these bowls were brought back by the captain.

The specimens, which include hatchets and all manner of other utensils, are now part of the American Indian museum in New York. Though before the age of steel, they are carved from the hardest rock known. Captain De Booy will start upon a new expedition within a few weeks.

BILL SIGNED TWICE.

President Feared Sunday Signature Might Be Held Unconstitutional.

To make certain of the legality of the eight hour bill, which he signed on a Sunday to avert the threatened railroad strike, President Wilson signed the measure for the second time. He feared that the railroads, in attacking the constitutionality of the law, might contend that it was not effective because it was signed on Sunday.

The bill has gone to the senate department to become a public record bearing the president's signature twice, with the dates Sept. 3 and Sept. 5.

RAILWAY WRECKS

Quick Rescue Work the Rule When a Smashup Occurs.

"SAVE LIFE" IS FIRST ORDER.

To Accomplish This Every Effort Is Strained, and When That Work Is Done "Clear the Tracks," Regardless of Property Loss, Is the Next Task.

Marvelously efficient is the system of wrecking machinery in use in these days for quick work when a smashup occurs on one of the great railroads. Some of the lafest inventions and appliances for clearing tracks after a wreck are described in the Popular Science Monthly. The magazine says:

"Wrecking trains are located on every division of important railroads, standing idle in the yards waiting for calamity—a crane car, with sufficient power to lift a freight car as a child lifts a toy; a supply car, containing ropes, cables, chains, jacks, crowbars, tools, lanterns, fire apparatus, dynamite, rails, ties; a caboose for the wrecking crew.

"When the word comes over the wire that the express and the fast freight have tried to see which could butt the other off the track the wrecking crew assembles in a hurry. They are picked men—these minutemen of the rails—each with his specialty. Mechanics, trackmen, men skilled in explosives, strong men, slender men, at least one small but muscular man, they come from roundhouse and shop, freight-yards and office at the supreme call. The wrecking boss takes command, the best engine available backs down, and with a clear track the wrecking train gets to the disaster, often ahead of the special containing doctors and nurses.

"There is only one order to be obeyed when the wrecking crew gets into action—'save life.' But once the victims are extricated—and they are taken out in remarkably short time—the order changes. It is not, as might be expected, 'save property.' It is 'clear the line.' It makes no difference that five jumbled freight cars contain expensive automobiles, or pianos, or phonographs, or fruit, which might be saved by careful work. If the contents cannot be saved in less than an hour there is only one thing to do. The big steam crane is backed down to the mess; a long, tentacle-like hook descends, chains and ropes are brought into play, and slowly, surely, almost daintily, the crane swings the wrecked freight car and its contents to one side.

"Sometimes the easiest way to clear the lines is to burn the wreck or blow it up. Tracks can be quickly relaid if damaged, but nothing can replace lost time. The price of the cargo of automobiles is nothing against a five hour delay, for the price of delay mounts in stunning geometrical progression. A few hundred dollars for the first hour, it may be many thousands of dollars in the second or third hour. A stoppage of the lines may mean a stoppage of the whole railway system, with hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of freight tied up, confusion, loss, waste.

"And well he knows his work—the crane for this car, the jacks for that. This engine looks like a scrap, but probably will run; put her on the other track. That engine looks all right, but is vitally wounded; throw her off. This car is too inextricably tangled with another in loving embrace to take to pieces, part by part; burn it up and throw the trucks to one side. The small man, a necessary factor, crawls into and out of holes too small for his stronger mates, attaching chains and ropes, reporting conditions, doing work as valuable as that of the Hercules who with a crowbar heaves up a tangle of wheels that a jack may be slipped into position.

"The doctors and the nurses and the relief train have come and gone. Down the line stands an impatient express, behind it a long freight. In the other direction a local is filled with fuming commuters, and perhaps the president's special is close behind. All along the division and soon to spread through the whole system is delay, stalled trains, trains waiting orders, trains costing the company thousands of dollars a minute.

"Over the tangled debris one man stands supreme, snapping his orders like the crack of a whip, utterly unmindful of the property he destroys that other property may move. And as if by magic the lines clear. The last of the bent and broken cars are turned on their sides and slide down the bank. The limping engine goes off behind a switching engine sent for the purpose. If the delay looks long, a temporary sidetrack has been swiftly built and the several waiting trains puff slowly by. The wrecking train whistles. Its crew, driving the last spike to make the track secure, pull out jimmy pipes. The big crane folds its single arm and rests. The men pile into their caboose. The wreck is off the lines—time, fifty-five minutes. The wrecking train has finished its work."

What Nothing Is.

If any man thinks that he can conceive well enough how there should be nothing, I will engage that what he means by nothing is as much something as anything that he ever thought of in his life, and I believe that if he knew what nothing was it would be intuitively evident to him that it could not be. Absolute nothing is the aggregate of all the contradictions in the world.—Jonathan Edwards.

Wouldn't Need It.

Ethel was going to a party at a neighbor's house where she had already caught tantalizing glimpses of unlimited quantities of cake, fruit and ices. At the last mother inconsiderately held her back for final instructions.

"Now, remember, darling, to say 'Yes, please,' and 'No, thank you.'"

"Oh, yes, mother," Ethel said. "I shall always say 'Yes, please,' but I don't think I shall have to say 'No thank you.'"—New York Times.

Woman.

A woman may be a fool—a sleepy fool, an agitated fool, a too awfully noxious fool—and she may even be simply stupid. But she is never dense. She's never made of wood through and through, as some men are. There is in woman, always somewhere, a spring. Whatever men don't know about women (and it may be a lot or it may be very little), men and even fathers do know that much. And that is why so many men are afraid of them.—Conrad.

4 pounds 14 ounces. Besides the eight prize winners, 12 babies won honorable mention for regular attendance and gain in general health and weight.

"During the summer seven babies were sent to the hospital and three were boarded where they could have better care than they received at home. Six babies died out of the 128 enrolled. Three died at Muhlenberg Hospital, one at the German Hospital in New York, and two at home. The latter had not been brought to the stations for a long time before they were taken ill and died. All were cases of mal-nutrition and one was mentally as well as physically defective. None of the babies enrolled at the stations this summer have contracted infantile paralysis.

"The whole object of the milk station work is to watch the babies carefully through the hot summer months, give instruction to the mothers, and prevent disease. Children who were ill were referred to the family doctors when they had any, or to the clinic at the hospital. Only infants were cared for at the stations. The two or three older children who were brought were sent elsewhere for treatment. One child had a broken arm and was sent to the hospital clinic for X-ray and to have the arm set. Another child had an infected finger and was sent to the hospital where the finger was amputated. The work of the milk stations in this way was confined to the little helpless babies and is solely a matter of advice and instruction in regard to the proper care and the proper feeding.

"Less milk has been given away this summer than in the two preceding years as more of the fathers are having steady work and good pay. Thanks to the generosity of a number of ladies, several baby carriages were given to the mothers who could not buy them and in this way the mothers were enabled to keep their children out of doors all summer. The Charity Organization helped the work by supplying milk and netting for the babies' beds and carriages.

"The cost of the milk stations for this summer was about $142.18. Besides this $120.88 had been spent for the welfare exhibit and baby welfare work in the spring and much of this material was also used for the milk stations in the summer.

"Rent (Richmond street), $48; helper, $20; scales, $14; Milk, $22.28; prizes, $27; supplies, $10.30. The 'helper' was a little Italian girl, who came each morning, swept out the building, kept things clean and helped weigh the babies. For this service she received $5 a month.

"The babies who won prizes for most regular attendance, $5 in gold each, were Frances Thompson and Jack McNeice. The first prizes for the best gain were given to Frank Pepe, wh gained 4 pounds 14 ounces, and Frank Johnson, who gained 4 pounds 5¼ ounces. Each received $5 in gold. The two who won the second prize were Joseph Olson, 3 pounds 3¼ ounces, and Mike Bencivenza 4 pounds 13 ounces, $2.50 in gold each. The third prizes were won by May Mesco, 4 pounds 6 ounces, and James Henderson, 2 pounds 13 ounces. In awarding these prizes, the points noticed were the best gain and the most regular attendance.

"The following babies won honorable mention: John Delipolli, Mary Fotea, Nellie Mandano, Carmelia Morello, Minnie Pepe, Jimmie Scribedo and Angelina Visco. These attended the Richmond street station. The others from the Day Nursey station were Ann Hennessey, Wilbur Goldsack, Susie Horowitz, Sarah Hill and Charles Henderson.

"The regular work for the association has been carried on all summer. The reports for August show 252 cases cared for, and a total of 405 visits besides the milk station work."

K. C. CLUB OPENED AT BORDER

Thomas W. Kunz, West Orange; Sergeant Bernard Donn, Bloomfield; First Sergeant Russell J. Hampson, Orange; R. W. Dodd, Caldwell; Joseph Lynch, Paterson; Charles Affelt, Paterson; John T. Caulfield, Plainfield; A. C. Merrill, Montclair; Michael E. Davis, Newark, and J. R. Kiefer, Verona.

The rooms have been fitted up with writing desks, reading tables, a piano, for the comfort of the militiamen and other people, and it has been made a regular New Jersey headquarters. Last night an entertainment was held, the following program being rendered: Vocal quartet—W. J. Tracy, Newark; John Meyers, Paterson; William Messinger, Paterson, and W. L. Erwin, Paterson. Recitation—"A Convict's Christmas Eve," by Corporal Gillespie, Verona. Piano duet—H. B. Enderlin, Verona, and F. J. Smith, Englewood. Vocal solos—by Jack O'Connor, Bisbee. Music was furnished by the Eighteenth Infantry band and refreshments were served at the conclusion of the program. Similar affairs will be held weekly in the future as long as the Jerseymen remain here.

Lieutenant George W. Wilkinson, who was kicked by a horse while returning with the Fifth Squadron of Cavalry yesterday afternoon from an eight-day hike, is reported to be painfully, though not seriously injured. Wilkinson, who is connected with Troop A, of Newark, is confined to the First Field Hospital, the kick having injured him just below the hip. The accident happened between Forrest and Douglas on the last lap of the trip, and but for the fact that he carried a metal first-aid kit strapped to his belt just over the base of his spine, it is likely that Wilkinson would have been fatally hurt. After kicking him in the leg the horse turned around and launched another blow at the lieutenant's base, crushing the metal kit.

Shortly after the arrival home of the cavalry Trooper Ned Cady, of Plainfield, who is connected with Troop D, was thrown under a horse and came near losing his life. As it was he escaped with a few bad bruises and cuts.

Owing to the prevelance of sand storms several water wagons have been put into use and these are kept at work throughout the entire day watering the streets and picket lines. Twelve members of Batter A, of East Orange, accompanied Captain Claude Lanterman to Bisbee for a day's outing today. Similar excursions for the rest of the outfit have been planned by the captain and after every one has seen Bisbee other nearby places of interest will be visited.

United States secret service men here are watching a shipment of 200,000 rounds of seven millimeter ammunition which arrived in Douglas yesterday from the East, consigned to Michakena and Lucas, of this city. It is believed the ammunition is intended for Mexico as the army of that country is equipped with seven millimeter Mauser rifles for the most part. Michelena is American born and has held positions under the United States government, according to the local authorities. Lucas is understood to be the proprietor of a pool hall here.

"Battling Joe" Nicolas, of Paterson, who is connected with the Fifth Infantry of New Jersey, was one of the principals in a boxing festival in the Montana militia's arena last night. "Red" Charles Gardner, of the Montana outfit, hung the Indian sign on the Patersonian almost before they had gotten a good start, a haymaker to the point of the jaw doing the business. This afternoon the Eighteenth Infantry and Fifth New Jersey baseball teams will meet at the regulars' park. This is the first game of the season between these two combines and much interest centres around the engagement. Saturday night the Douglas Y. M. C. A. basketball team defeated the quintet representing Companw A, of the Fifth Regiment, by a score of 10 to 7 on the electric lighted open air courts of the association. Another game has been booked for next Thursday night, when the Y. M. C. A. boys will line up against Company D, of the Fifth.

Sore arms are once more noticeable throughout the Jersey camp, the para-typhoid innoculations having been completed with telling effect on some of the patients. Two more "shots" of the toxin will be administered within the next fortnight.

Corporal Edward Feigenspan, of Newark today took up his new duties as squadron adjutant to succeed Lieutenant Hermann Bertram, who has secured a ten-day furlough pending action on his application for a discharge.

W. F. ARNOLD DIES

Edith Arnold, and four brothers, James K. Arnold, former councilman of North Plainfield, and now tax collector of the borough; George W. and Lucious C. Arnold, of New York, and Oscar M. Arnold, of Westfield. There is also one sister, Mrs. Mary L. Merritt, of Baintree, Mass.

The funeral services will be held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, the pastor, will be in charge. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

ScotchPlains, Fanwood

Owing to illness, Mrs. B. J. Shreve, who was to have spoken to the women of the World Wide Guild in the Baptist church last night, was not able to be present. Mrs. J. Hervey Buchanan, of Plainfield, gave an interesting talk about Dr. Kinaman. Miss Edith Shreve read several letters from Dr. Kinaman, who will sail as a missionary to India in the fall of 1917. During the evening there were piano solos by Miss Marion Clark and Miss Ivy Hargreaves, and a vocal solo by Miss Isabelle Daniels, after which refreshments were served.

The Rev. R. E. Marshall will be in charge of the prayer meeting in the Methodist church tonight. "The Life of Esther" will be discussed.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stiez have returned to their home in Long Island City, after visiting Miss Laura Bornman.

Miss Skellinger, a new teacher of School No. 1, is here, ready to take up her work on Monday.

The first fall vesper service at the association will be held on Sunday afternoon, October 8. The Camp and Conference Club will have charge of the service.

The fall rally of the association will be held October 9, and the enrollment in the various classes for the winter term will be begun that evening and continued on until October 14. The fall opening of the various educational and physical classes will be on October 16.

A hoodo gymnasium party will be held in the gym on Friday night, October 13. Miss Winifred Mann has charge of the affair and has been assisted in planning many unique and spooky surprises for the attendants.

Mrs. S. H. Patterson, of Park avenue, has returned after spending the past two months at Manchester, Vermont.

Miss Gertrude Conover, of Jackson avenue, is spending the week-end at Avon-by-the-Sea.

ARRANGING FOR HOLY NAME SOCIETY DEBATE

Teams Representing St. Michael's, of Newark, and St. Mary's to Meet.

William I. Toohey, of Carside avenue, Newark, representing the St. Michael's Holy Name Society and Debating Society, was in this city yesterday making arrangements for a coming debate, between the St. Michael's team and the one representing the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's parish, this city.

As a result of a challenge extended to the Newark society, a debate between that body and the young men of the local society will probably take place in this city about the 15th of next month. This is the first of a series of debates, which will be held from time to time. A team, representing St. Patrick's Holy Name Society, of Elizabeth, has accepted a challenge issued by the local team.

The subject chosen for the coming debate is a timely one and deals with the labor situation. The matter of arbitration, made compulsory by leigislation, forms the basis of the argument. The local debaters have elected to support the affirmative side.

Those who are members of the St. Mary's Holy Name Debating Society are Joseph McEvoy, Edwin Sullivan, Edward McCann, Frederick Greene, John Powelson and Joseph Gallagher.

WILL OBSERVE "GO TO SUNDAY SCHOOL DAY"

October 15 is the Time Set for State Wide Movement.

The Sunday school people of New Jersey through their State and county organizations are planning to get into their schools just as many people as possible on Sunday, October 15. They hope to have half a million. The day will be called "Go to Sunday school Day." It has been observed in otherr States—Kentucy, Georgia, other States—Kentucky, Georgia, and in such a way as to arouse the commonwealth from end to end.

People have come to see what a mighty interest the Sunday school is, enrolling as it does 18,000,000 of members in North America, and spreading with increasing power into all the world.

In New Jersey alone we have 40-000 people attending Sunday schools, and not children alone, but thousands and tens of thousands of adults, fathers and mothers, learning in the same building with their children, and great classes of men united in study, fellowship and services for others. During the infantile paralysis epidemic some Sunday schools kept open and had half as large an attendance as usual, but composed entirely of those more than 16 years old.

Now, on October 15, this great force for Christian conflict will be mobilized, it will rally to the colors called from every quarter by every conceivable form of persuasion.

The Mayors of cities will sign proclamations, the leading citizens will sign manifestos, showing how the Sunday schools are making the State and communities secure, hundreds of newspapers will tell about the widespread preparation for the day, red arrows printed on all signs will point the way to the several schools, a multitude of personal invitations will be written and thousands of telephones will ring a welcome to the great observance.

On the day of the sessions many will be "personally conducted" by earnest friends and hundreds of conveyances will be enlisted to bring the more distant to the schools where a warm welcome and an interesting program will await them. Not only those who are regular members of the Sunday-school army are expected, but thousands of new recruits, very many who have never been to Sunday school and even more who went when children and have since dropped out.

AUCTION SALE ATTRACTS CROWD TO FLANDERS PARK

With ideal weather conditions prevailing at Flanders Park yesterday, a large crowd of Plainfield, Westfield, Scotch Plains and Union county people participated in what was, perhaps, one of the most successful auction sales of building lots ever held in this vicinity.

Considerable interest was shown in the spirited bidding, friendly contests wagered between the buyers furnishing a thrill of excitement. The owners of the property, however, were considerably disappointed by reason of the small prices obtained. Local dealers in real estate stated that the figures marking the consideration in the transfers was surprisingly low.

Attractive souvenirs distributed among the women attending the sale served to augment the size of the female contingent.

It is announced that the sale will continue each day, beginning at 2 in the afternoon untily Wednesday of next week, and that the free distribution of gifts will continue each day.

—Still-useful furniture may be sold for what it is worth to somebody else—if you give the selling-task to a classified ad.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1916.

IT ISN'T DIGNITY THE SENATE NEEDS.

It is a tossup as to whether the Hon. James E. Martine is libeled more by the highly laudatory articles of such hyphenated journals as the Staats-Zeitung or the disgustingly unfair criticisms of the equally un-American pro-Ally organs. Here are some extracts from an editorial which the Evening Post printed Wednesday:

"The renomination of James E. Martine in the Democratic primaries in New Jersey yesterday is nothing short of a disgrace to that State. In him the United States Senate surely touched the low-water mark. His personal conduct and bearing, his speeches, and his votes ought each to have insured his defeat by any set of thinking voters. Instead, he appears to have won by a vote double that given to his adversary. The shame of this is not mitigated by the smallness of the poll. That such a man had the effrontery again to run for the highest office in the gift of the State should certinly have made every self-respecting Democrat turn out to prevent what has taken place.

"Every self-respecting citizen of New Jersey, whatever his party faith, should vote for the Republican nominee, whether he be ex.Gov. Murphy of Mr. Frelinghuysen. There are situations which call for a complete putting aside of all extraneous issues, and this is one. The sole question in New Jersey from now on should be simply whether that great State should be misrepresented in the Senate or not. For the moment, the effect upon th Democracy and the possible misreading of Mr. Martine's defeat must be ignored. More important by far is the gold name of the State and the question whether German-American citizens shall be permitted in any degree to dictate the policy of this country in the interest of a conflict abroad. To that vote Mr. Martine has steadily toadied, as he has been toadying in Washington. We doubt not that the welkin will ring with the shouts of the professional hyphenates that they have inflicted a sound trounceing upon the Administration in this primary.

"Not even they can, however, afford to dwell very much upon this aspect of the vote. Not even they can exult over the choice of a man who has been a laughing stock in the Senate when he has not aroused disgust. But they will profit, of course, by the fact that the Democrats have thus handicapped their national campaign by this entanglement. Thousands of Democrats will surely cut the Senatorial candidates of their party. But even at the risk of the loss of the State and national tickets, the Democratic voters must do their patriotic duy in November and make it impossible for Senator Martine further to lower the tone and the repute and the efficiency of that great legislative body for which he is utterly unfit and to which he should never have been elected."

The editor of New York's 3-Cent-Literature merely expresses his own opinion of Senator Martine, or perhaps the opinion of the financiers who dictate the policy of The Post, and there are some 50,000 Democrats in New Jersey who will resent his assertion that they have disgraced the State they love. In what way has James E. Martine made himself the laughing stock of the Senate? may we dare ask the high-brow editor. He neglected to prove his case and the evidence in the hands of the people of New Jersey will not substantiate such a charge, not even when it is made by President Wilson and the editor of The Post. Does his disgraceful conduct consist of having dared follow his own conscience when a matter of vital interest to the nation was before the House? Many of the Democrats who voted for Martine did not approve of his stand on the Gore resolution, but they know "Jim" Martine too well to question his motives. Suppose that he has blundered. Is he to be forever condemned as unfit for no other reason than that his blunders have provoked the displeasure of the greatest blunderer of all? If Martine's presence "lowers the tone and the repute and the efficiency of that great legislative body, and he is utterly unfit," perhaps the editor of The Post can explain why it is that he is so often called upon to preside over its deliberations. The Congressional Record will show that he has been in the chair almost as many hours as the Vice President himself.

The real crime of Senator Martine consists of his having dared be an American at a time when it is "not being done, you know." His victory in the primaries was not due wholly to the German vote, because there were thousands of Democrats who have no sympathy for the German cause who voted for Martine. They have tired of seeing the American flag dipped every time the British Union Jack appears on the horizon and they feel the same toward the German flag or the black banner of Mexican bandits.

"Jim" Martine is a rough and ready citizen, we admit, and he is an American and his blunders are of the head not the heart. He may not add dignity and poise to the "greatest legislative body in the land," but he adds honesty and fearlessness, and that's what it needs most. And in making these statements the Daily Press is not advocating his re-election. We are merely replying to an unjust and uncalled for attack on a Plainfield citizen.

ROOSEVELT PROMISES TO "SKIN 'EM ALIVE"

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 29.—If present expectations are realized tomorrow will go on record as a red letter day in the history of Battle Creek. The occasion will be the initial appearance of Colonel Roosevelt to begin his Western trip in the interest of the Republican ticket. Interest in the Colonel's speech has not been lessened by the announcement from Oyster Bay that he intends to "skin 'em a live." Fifty thousand visitors are expected in Battle Creek to hear what the Colonel has to say. Preparations for their entertainment are being made on an elaborate scale. A parade will be staged and there will be a big barbecue at which every visitor will be given his fill of "health food" without charge.

The purpose of the session, as set forth in the Governor's proclamation, are the adoption of the general revision of the statutes, legislation which will permit the use of the so-called lands reserve fund, and the consideration of petitions for altering the harbor line of Portland Harbor.

PETER ANGELO, UNDER INDICTMENT, ARRESTED HERE

Peter Angelo, nineteen years old, of Bound Brook, who is under indictment by the Somerset county grand jury, was picked up yesterday afternoon on Arlington avenue by Lieutenant Higgins and was turned over to Detective Totten, who came to this city for him.

Angelo was up in the city court several weeks ago on the complaint of Barbara Yannconi, a fifteen-year-old girl of Bound Brook, but when it was found that he was wanted on a previous complaint in the same case in Somerset county he was turned over to them. Last spring he took the girl to White Plains, where he said he married her, but after living a short time with her, he left.

Arraigned before Judge Beckman today, he was held under $2,000 for trial October 16.

WISCONSIN ENDEAVORERS.

Eau Claire, Wis., Sept. 29.—A large and enthusiastic attendance of young people marked the opening here today of the annual convention of the Northwest Wisconsin Christian Endeavor unions. The sessions which are being held at the First Presbyterian church, will continue three days, concluding with a public meeting Sunday. Many homes in Eau Claire have been opened for the entertainment of the visiting delegates.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

He Bent His Ear.

Here is an example of real poetry. We know it is good poetry because we got it out of The Bookman. Note the rhyming of "wings" and "sins."

He bent his ear, and he heard afar,
The growing of tender things;
And his heart broke forth with the travailing earth
And shook with tremulous wings
Of sweet brown birds that had never known
The dirge of the city's sins.

Mrs. Eli Haskins has saved up enough soap wrappers to get a chiny closet and hopes in ten or twelve years to save up enough more to get a hand-painted pickle dish or something to put in it.

Smokin' and chewin' has been forbid at the meetin' house during services and Hank Purdy says this reform wave which is sweepin' over this country is certainly fierce and pussonal liberty is gettin' to be a dead letter.

Hi Higgins says he has got the rheumatiz jumpin' pneuralgia, lumbago and shingles and two of his cows has died. The mortgage has been foreclosed on his west forty, his well has gone dry, two kids have got the measles, his corn crib has burned up, his oldest son is in jail and his wife has eloped with a travelin' man, but outside of that he is gettin' along fair to middlin'.

Overedoing the Thing.

Bro. Johnson of Lowell says:

Not long ago our old home town of Mayville voted the saloons out, and now the village waterworks have gone dry—which is too much of a good thing. Reminds one of the long dry spell when vegetation was parched and good people gathered at the church to pray for rain. Gentle petitions were sent up, but Deacon Strong was not satisfied and in thunderous tones he bellowed for rain, more rain, and lots of it. Before the people could get home there came a cloud burst and water fell in torrents, carrying away the bridges, furrowing the hillsides and converting marker lines into rivulets, which destroyed the young plants. Deacon Strong was castigated: "Pesky old fool; he always overdoes it."

New Amateur Poet.

Dug Berry has sent in the following beautiful piece for the paper:

A maiden stood upon the porch, the clock was striking nine,
When down the street there came a lad who sauntered up the line.
He told her he was lonesome, and he asked her if she'd wed.
She listened very calmly to the things the young man said,
And as he vowed his love was like a lurid flaming torch,
She said: "Doggone you, Harry," and knocked him off the porch.

CHORUS:

"I like you, Harry Higgins," said she,
"I like you well;
I think we'd be contented and happy for a spell.
I wonder if you mean it—I wonder very much,
Now, don't you kid me, Harry, or you will get in dutch."

Bill Will Start Housekeeping.

Here is what a court awarded William Lindsay for the furnishing of a new home:

A Remington rifle, a gas lamp with hose connections, a tooth brush holder, a nickle plated soap dish, a cribbage board, a kitchen cabinet, a watch, a shoe hammer and last, and a photograph of a friend.

His wife, Anna B. Lindsay, was granted a divorce on the ground of cruelty and was awarded $750 alimony.

Glad to See Him.

Uncle Abe Simpson, having fallen heir to a large fortune left him by a brother in the old country, returned yesterday morning from an extended visit at the county poor farm. He was met at the station by 181 relatives and a brass band.—Pewamo News.

- Proctor's Theatre -

The last link in the greatest chain of photoplay attractions this city has ever seen is now completed, for today at Proctor's Theatre first run Paramount pictures are introduced to Plainfield amusement seekers. At first thought this does not seem to be such a big event, but even when one considers that Paramount pictures are recognized as the standard by which other companies base their output, that Paramount pictures are the oldest and original high class photoplay attractions, that Paramount pictures cost considerably more than any other program, and that Paramount pictures are only presented in the leading theatres in each city, the statement that first run Paramount pictures have invaded the local field will be hugely appreciated. The Proctor management has up to this time commandeered all the productions of the leading photoplay manufacturers, and it only remained to secure Paramount pictures to complete a weekly program of photoplay enterainment that is unsurpassed in any city at any price. The weekly program now presented at Proctor's consists of Paramount, Triangle, Fox, Metro, Greater Vitagraph and World productions—the cream of photoplay attractions, and when one stops to consider the prices at which these phenomenal attractions are shown, he is astounded and made to realize that right here in his home town, he can see the greatest photoplays produced at far cheaper prices than in any other city, be it larger or smaller, in the whole United States. This is a broad statement to make, but it is nevertheless absolutely true.

The star and attraction selected to inaugurate the presentation of first run Paramount pictures is Leonore Ulrich and "The Heart of Paula," respectively. This is a picture of distinct appeal with many unusually beautiful settings, tinting and photography. Host of the action takes place in a Mexican town, and this picture thus gains a certain timeliness in view of the present relations of the United States and Mexico, especially as the short shrift methods of Mexican revolutionists are exploited. Miss Ulrich has a congenial role and makes an appealing and engaging figure of Paula. A Spanish girl whose love for a handsome American (Forrest Stanley) is the pivot of the plot. A double feature program is presented every Friday and Saturday, starting today—the added attraction today being a William A. Brady production, entitled "The Almighty Dollar," with E. K. Lincoln and Frances Nelson as co-stars. The management wishes to announce that owing to the tremendous cost of presenting first run Paramount pictures they have made arrangements starting today and every Friday hereafter to have the Saturday scale of prices prevail.

Tomorrow the Paramount offering will be "The Race," much of the plot which has been utilized for the presentation of Anita King's recent coast-to-coast automobile trip as the "Paramount Girl." Victor Moore is the leading figure in this picture (an unusual production to say the least) and is assisted by Miss King and an all star cast. The supporting feature tomorrow will be the latest Metro attraction, entitled "The Flower of No Man's Land," starring Viola Dana.

.· Plainfield Theatre.·

Without any exaggeration, the bill presented at the Plainfield Theatre for the first time yesterday afternoon and night, is the best the playhouse has offered since the fall vaudeville has been presented. Every number is a crackerjack and laughter and applause was continuous throughout the two performances. The same bill will be retained for today and tomorrow, and Plainfielders who like a good vaudeville program will make a mistake by not seeing it.

"The Pottery Shop," featuring Lee Beggs and Company, is a powerful sketch in two scenes. The play is full of human sympathy and is remarkably presented by the three character of the cast. "Lee Beggs," as the father of the young girl whom the millionaire pottery owner has slighted, portrays his part in a strong manner and is rewarded by the fruits of his labor, to humble the millionaire as far as to make him seek aid at his hands. It is seldom that such a production as "The Pottery Shop" is seen at a local theatre. Don't miss it.

"Niblo's Talking Birds" vie with the other acts on the program for second honors. The birds are possessed of human intelligence and gossip throughout the show. The remainder of the vaudeville bill is made up of the following high class acts: "Rose and Fowler," in a sister team give a repertoire of song and character numbers; Budd and Clair, comedy kings, entertain with clever impersonations, and Dealy and Cranter, comedians, are a laugh from their entrance on the stage until their exit.

Pathe pictures lengthen the program, among which are included the animated pictorials of the Pathe Weekly. Announcement was made at the theatre last night that Bob Fitzsimmons, assisted by Bob, Jr., will be a feature of the vaudeville program at the theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday.

VACATION DAYS FOR TROOPERS AT DOUGLAS

By JAMES J. McNAMEE.

Supply Sergeant John Foster Sickler brought back as a souvenir of the eight-day hike a Carranza-like growth on his face. "Sic" certainly looked the part of a real fighter but the rest of the troop was not far behind him in personal appearance. We take it that one of the features of the outing was the cultivation of a formidable appearance as well as an acquaintance with warlike tactics.

Captain Borden insists that we deny that he has been encouraging the growth of a goatee, intimating that war correspondents as well as soldiers sometimes imagine strange things. We are at a loss to account for what bore a resemblance to a goatee, but there certainly must have been something unusual about the captain's appearance to suggest this ornament.

"Joe" Van Deventer warned us not to publish this one, but we've been tipped off that he can't shoot very straight and are going to take a chance. After listening for a half hour, more or less, to a thrilling yarn related by Warren Ackerman to the effect that the latter and Reggie Rowland had ridden for a mile the night before perched on the tire holder of a speeding automobile, wondering what would become of them if they fell off, "Joe" came across with this one: "Well, the best place for you two fellows to land would be on your heads for they're hard enough to withstand any kind of a bump."

"Oh, I wasn't worrying about getting hurt," chimed in Reggie. "I was just thinking about you and a couple of other fellows who have been crying around here about being "broke" and away from your little fireside in Plainfield. You poor homesick soldiers would have to scrape together enough coin to buy flowers and inasmuch as there isn't a chance in the world to make a 'touch' around here we'd hate to see you embarrassed."

"Bus" Stewart got so used to traveling during the eight days on the road that he got a relapse today when some kitchen duty stared him in the face and wandered off to parts unknown. Rumor has it that he is concealing himself in the wilds of Pirtleville, discussing some advantages Arizona has to offer for eastern visitors.

Up to within the last few days the supply of rumors in camp held out pretty well, but the scouts are having the time of their lives trying to dig up some startlers just now. Just for the sake of excitement today some one suggested that the aeroplanes that have been hovering around here for several days were mapping out a course for the Jerseymen to march back to Sea Girt.

Joe Gallagher received a supply of two-cent stamps from a relative in Dunellen this morning. Some one evidently thinks the kind of stamps you buy in Douglas are not good enough for the soldiers.

Trooper Fox is suffering from an ailment which no one in the outfit has been able to pronounce. In view of the fact that the malady is sufficiently important to require confinement of the victim to quarters, Trooper John Kirby, who has become a past master at rounding up sicknesses, has his scouts out hunting for symptoms. (This one was contributed by Kirby.)

Weather Note.—Our daily sandstorm has just opened fire, so if this trooper stuff happens to be a little gritty just blame it on Mother Nature.

The following editorial was printed this morning in the Douglas paper: "When the Second New York Infantry regiment was ordered home from El Paso, 300 members of it made a plea to be allowed to remain on the border. It is very likely that their wishes will be regarded. It does not take long for the grip of the great Southwest to 'get' a person and the New Yorkers are not to be blamed for desiring to stay in God's country."

All of which goes to prove that all nuts don't come from New Jersey. There's a whole lot of difference between the white lights of Broadway and the lanterns of a border camp but the Plainfielders in Douglas stand willing to change places with these much abused New Yorkers who have been given an opportunity to hit for the east.

Corporal James Grosshauer says he is making application for a discharge so that he can get back and go to work. It would be quite a change to "go to work," especially for Sir James.

Trooper "Ferd" Collins says if the Jrsey camp only had a bank he'd feel right at home. He has been thinking seriously of opening a branch of the Plainfield Trust Company, but is far sighted enough to realize that it would be a case of all trust and no deposit.

Troop D has five new recruits to initiate this week. Of course everybody is hoping that the return call will be delayed long enough to allow the cavalrymen to perform this duty.

Clear, Peachy Skin Awaits Anyone Who Drinks Hot Water

Says an inside bath, before breakfast, helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Sparkling and vivacious—merry, bright, alert—a good, clear skin and a natural, rosy, healthy complexion are assured only by pure blood. If only every man and woman could be induced to adopt the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls, with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "run-downs," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance, awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do. —Adv.

Everybody Had to Do Just as She Wished.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Old Elf King's Daughters Dance At the Party.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

DADDY sat down with the children and soon as they were quiet told them: "The old elf king's daughters danced for his guests, and they danced so fast that some of the folks at the banquet got dizzy and had to leave the table.

"'P-r-r-r-r!' said the old Troid chieftain, who had come from Norway with his two sons to enjoy the party. 'There is some life in those feet and legs! But what else can they do besides dancing and pointing toes and doing whirligigs?'

"'We will soon show you!' cried the old elf king. And he called his youngest daughter to him.

"She was as thin and transparent as moonshine. She was the most like a ghost of all the daughters. She came forth from the dance and bowed. Then she put a little white stick in her mouth and vanished instantly. This was her accomplishment.

"'I wouldn't like my wife to do that!' cried the old Troid. 'And I don't think my sons would appreciate it.'

"The second daughter now came forth. She could walk by her own side just as if she had a shadow, and no elves have shadows. The third was quite different. She had studied in the marsh witches' brewery and understood larding alder stumps with glowworms.

"'She would make a good housewife,' said the old Troid. He saluted her with his eyes, for he was afraid if he drank her health he might drink too much.

"Now came forth the next daughter. She had a big golden harp to play, and when she touched the first string all the elves lifted up their left legs, for all elf folk are left legged, you know. And when she touched the second string everybody had to do just what she wished.

"'She is a dangerous woman!' cried the old Troid. But both his sons left the elf hill, for they were tired of the party.

"'What can your next daughter do?' the old Troid asked the elf king.

"'I have learned to love the people from Norway,' she simpered. 'And I shall never marry unless I can go there to live.'

"The smallest of the sisters flew over to the old Troid and whispered in his huge ear: 'That is only because she once heard a song which said that when the world comes to an end the rocks of Norway will still stand. She wants to go there so she won't perish.'"

Training a Husband

BY MAS EVA LEONARD

Marian Is Learning How to Wring Concessions From Her Husband.

"Marian, who has been meddling with the papers on my desk?" The angry words were hurled down the stairway like stones.

"I have not destroyed a single paper, Morris. The room had to be cleaned and——"

"You know what my wishes are with regard to my papers. Why were they not respected?" interrupted Morris. Marian had come to the foot of the stairs to try and placate her infuriated lord.

"Morris, you will find all the papers that were on top of the table in that basket tray on the right-hand side. Not one was destroyed."

"Destroyed!" snorted the irritated man. "As if that were all that was necessary. I suppose you think it nothing that I have to spend hours hunting for papers that should be right where I could lay my hands on them."

"Morris, neither you nor anybody else could lay hands on most of those papers. They were a foot deep and so covered with dust that——"

"I don't care how deep they were, nor how much covered with dust. They were just as I wanted them, and I see no reason why they could not be let alone."

"I'll come and help you find them," said the cheerful wife.

"You will do no such thing. As if you would know which paper I wanted. That is the trouble. You do not realize the importance of those things. A scrap of paper with a note on it may look like a bit of waste paper and still be very valuable." Marian had followed him to the study and was gazing ruefully at the littered table that she had so carefully cleaned that morning.

"Nothing was destroyed," she began, but he held up his hand for silence.

"Couldn't you have some drawer to shove the mess into, so it would not look so disorderly? I am surprised that you are willing to have your study look so. You are neat about most things," she continued.

"Please go away," he snapped. "You have made trouble enough."

"I wonder if he would hiss like a hot iron if I should touch him with my wet finger. The idea of making such a fuss because his papers were moved when none of them was destroyed," she thought scornfully.

The next day as Morris was going down cellar he called:

"Marian, why are all these newspapers piled up on this ledge? They are in the way and are collecting dust. I don't like the looks of them here."

"'I don't care how deep they are or how covered with dust; they are just where I want them,'" quoted Marian, her eyes twinkling as she peeped around the cellar door.

Morris reddened. "That is a very different thing. These are old newspapers," he explained.

"I am very much disturbed by the way you keep your study and you seem disturbed at the way I keep the cellar way. What is the reason we cannot concede to please each other?" She laid her hand upon his arm. "You are not so hissing hot that I am afraid of burning myself if I touch you today." She smiled up into his face. "I'll clear out the cellar way if you will keep your desk looking so I do not need someone to lead me by it, I want to lay my hands on it so much."

"Perhaps it will be necessary for me to lock the study door." Morris saw that he was expected to see the funny side of the question, but it was a very serious matter with him.

"Perhaps I could clear out the upper drawer and have all the papers that I am working on there, as you suggested." A ghost of a smile crossed his face as he spoke.

"Oh, splendid! And I could dust the top to my heart's content. That was a fine concession. You are the noblest Roman of them all." She kissed him and added, "I will clear every paper out of the cellar way. Nothing that could offend the eye of the great shall ever be seen there again."

"I never know what she will do next; she changes every day," mused Morris as he slowly ascended the stairs. He did not know that his little wife was trying all the tactics that her fertile brain could think of to reduce the friction between them.

USEFUL SEPARATE BODICE.

Multiplicity of Styles in Separate Waists Make it Possible to Be Well Dressed for All Occasions and Under All Conditions.

By Mary Glynn.

A separate waist in its infinite variety, fills every need that can come into the average woman's life. With a well fitting and stylish looking skirt of good material, a woman can by changing her waists have what might be called a complete wardrobe. Imagine if you can the comfort of traveling about the country with a comfortable big coat or Velour Delaine or fur, wearing a smartly made skirt of black satin, deeply hemmed with black velvet, and carrying in your suit case no less than a dozen waists of every kind and color, of Georgette crepe and chiffon for dinner wear, of taffeta and satin for afternoons, or wash crepe and linen and voile for the morning; for trains and for motoring. It is the ideal way to do this, and a woman who makes up her mind to use seperate waists and skirts is liberated indeed from the slavery of trunks. Many of the new fall waists have wide neck frills and lace trimmings which makes them extremely becoming to all types of figures. If one is too thin, this defect is covered. The too stout figure is given softer lines, and therefore looks less heavy in a waist of this style. The varied cut as well as the varied colorings and materials in ready-made waists makes it possible for everyone to be easily fitted. There is hardly a town of any size but has interesting looking lines of waists, so one never need feel the lack of a change whether at home or en route for an autumn vacation. A goodly number of new waists are to be worn outside the belt, so this adds another interest to the new fall lines. Because in addition to having separate waists, there are basques, smocks, tunics and Russian blouses all of which really belong in the waist department. Small wonder then that women can hardly wait to choose their autumn supply of waists.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Recent legislation increasing the salaries of the bandsmen of the United States Marine Band was due greatly to the efforts of Mrs. Barnett, wife of Major-General George Barnett, commandant of the United States Marine Corps. In appreciation of these efforts the men recently gave a concert in her honor at Washington, and presented her with a sapphire-studded gold purse.

Mrs. Mary Ann Hughes, of St. Paul, 67 years old, was recently adopted as a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. McGeoy, of the same city, who are 45 and 38 years old, respectively. She will be entitled to share fully in their estate with their own four children. The action was taken as reward for thirteen years of faithful service by Mrs. Hughes in the family of Mr. and Mrs. McGoey.

Miss Louise Pound, who has been elected a vice president of the Modern Language Association of America, is professor of English at the University of Nebaska and a sister of Professor Roecoe Pound, of Harvard University, the noted authority on jurisprudence. Miss Pound was educated at the University of Chicago and at the University of Heidelberg, holding the degree of doctor of philosophy from the latter. She is, aside from her highly scholarly attainments, a noted athlete. She has both golf and tennis championships to her credit, and last year was the winner of both the central Western (Kansas City) and Western championships, women's doubles. She has contributed to various literary and philological periodicals.

Mrs. George W. Blackwell and Howard L. Blackwell, of East Orange, mother and son, were delegates together to the convention of the National American Woman Suffrage Association at Atlantic City this month. Although there were several other men present as official representatives of woman suffrage bodies, Mr. Blackwell was the only one who had the honor of having been "brought by mother." The Blackwells are close relatives of Alice Stone Blackwell, editor of the Woman's Journal and Suffrage News.

Miss Sarah Gillstein, an attractive Jewish girl of twenty, of Providence, R. I., has been sued for breach of promise by her ex-fiance, Harris J. Yaffe, of the same city. A formal ceremony of the betrothal, according to the ritual of the Jewish faith, was performed between the two, Mr. Yaffe claims, and his ambition now is to recover from the faithless one his gifts of a diamond ring, "an expensive lavalliere" and a wrist watch. Mr. Yaffe likewise ungallantly recalls the fact that he had made it a custom "to send a chicken once in a while over to the Gilstein home for Sunday dinner," the fact that he was invited to the dinners not serving to make the memory less galling, on the contrary.

Among the many plans under discussion to relieve the anticipated dearth of husbands in France after the war, that of an official matrimonial agency conducted by the State, proposed by Eugene Brieux, the noted playwright and sociologist, appears to many French people as practical. With a view to increasing the number of marriages and to multiplying homes, towns and villages would establish matrimonial bureaus through which young people desiring marriage would become acquainted. At the same time encouragement and opportunity to emigrate to France's colonies and "grow up with the country," finding ampler and quicker chance for fortune-building there while spreading French influence and civilization, would be given these young couples eager to tempt the adventure and raise sturdy families of French citizens in France's "overseas empire." A campaign against the marriage contract and dower, the classic "dot" which has been the greatest barrier to the marriage of the French girl without a fortune, has also been started by Mr. Brieux, who is one of the best friends of woman in France, and other thinkers who see large difficulties looming ahead socially as a result of the war. Some predict a great flood of spontaneous and genuine sentinment in which may be drowned for a time the "interest" which has presided largely so far in the traditional bourgeois marriage.

Bound to Disagree.

"You don't get along very well with your mother-in-law, I hear," said a friend to a young husband.

"No, I don't," answered the bridegroom. "Nobody can. Even the food she eats doesn't agree with her. When she comes into the room everybody shuts up. The other day she got into a folding bed, and the bed shut up."

ONE PIECE GOWN.

What Paris Says About This Delectable Garment.

The one piece dresses shown at the fall opening of the Martial-Armand collection are made on straight lines somewhat longer than present styles, and are accompanied with mantles to match. Apron effects appear on some, panels are a feature of other models, while still others have the skirts draped.

A variety of materials is embraced for these one piece frocks, including cloth, thin silk, velvet, muslin and satin. Fur used in combination with embroidery, showing such colors as gray, blue, green and taupe, forms the trimmings.

The evening dresses in this collection are of faille, satin and velvet and show a plentiful use of metal, tulle, jet and lace.

Long court mantles of embroidered tulle or lace are attached to many of the evening gowns at the shoulders in such a way as to form a square. Oriental ideas in bright colors are developed in other mantle models, while some of the velvet mantles in red, green or yellow are trimmed with fur and heavy gold lace.

Maison Agnes also features one piece dresses at her opening. They are combinations of satin and serge, are elaborately embroidered and finished with high neck and long sleeves and are intended to replace the tailored suits.

Some of the costumes have embroidery design continuing down on to the skirt in Louis XV. waistcoat effect. Gowns that are combinations of satin with chiffon, also charmeuse with mousseline are popular. The top of the bodice is of mousseline or tulle, contrasting with dress material. Embroidery and fur bandings are generously used on these models.

Still quite short are the evening dresses. They are made with a pointed train and square decolletage, are most often fashioned of metallic tissue or a brilliant metalized silk, veiled with vivid color tulle. Some are of metalized broche faille or taffeta. Metallic laces are lavishly employed and cape effects are produced on these gowns, falling below the shoulders at the back to the waist in very rich gold or silver laces or tulle. The brilliant effects are very much sought after and they are produced by the use of rhinestone and spangled trimming.

Ample mantles, with sleeves, are made of all kinds of velvet. They have large standup fur collars and are developed in rather dark colors.

Canning Hints.

In boiling or stewing fruits the sugar should always be added after the fruit is taken from the fire. If added during the cooking more sugar is needed.

Baked apples are among the most wholesome and most digestible of food products. Children and invalids are seldom harmed by them, even when other fruits might not agree.

Apples are more than 84 per cent water. Watermelon—rightly named—contains more than 92 per cent of water.

Berries should always be washed before being hulled to prevent washing away of considerable fruit juice.

The quickest way to peel peaches and plums is to immerse them quickly in boiling hot water, when the skin can be removed very easily. If done quickly this process will not soften the fruit.

Pound for pound figs are more nourishing than bread. There is no good reason why we do not all of us eat twice as many figs as we do.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

Raking 'Em Over

HOLY CROSS GETS BUSY.

Well, they "went and done it." The Holy Cross lads have started things and have proved to the sporting public that they are in earnest. First practice will be held on Saturday afternoon, when it is anticipated that about thirty candidates will report for try-outs. Perhaps in no other year has so much enthusiasm been shown. At the meeting held in the Daily Press office on Wednesday evening, a large gathering of football players was had. Several new men were introduced to the manager and the year's prospects were talked over in clever fashion. It is very probable that the Franklins will open the local season on Cricket Field. This team hails from Newark and always furnishes the best that can be had in the football line. Clean playing features their work and they are always welcome here. Many other games have been scheduled and it is highly probable that the Vikings, of Bayonne, will prove the best attraction, although the sailors from the U. S. S. Wyoming always make a high bid for honors in that respect. A rule has been made regarding the non-appearance of players at practice. It has been decided to permit no player, who is inattentive to his practicing duties, to play regularly. In other words, Manager "Doe" Doyle and his corps of assistants—he has a host of them—have decided that now is the time to get busy.

• • • • • •

EDDIE STALLINGS AS COACH.

Eddie Stallings, although not a resident of this city at the present time, will coach the Holy Cross football team, according to present plans. Stallings coached the squad last year and proved to the satisfaction of both fans and players that he is fully capable of the task assigned to him. There is a slight possibility that Eddie cannot be secured. But Doyle will do all in his power to secure the former coach. In a day or so something definite will be known.

THOSE RESIGNATIONS.

"Almost persuaded" is the verdict we can render. [illegible] thought he would resign from the Holy Cross team. B[illegible] thought the same thing—at least, we are told he did. Evide[illegible] of these young men will have to think again. Joe Green has reconsidered his initial intention and will remain with his fellows, rendering assistance in every possible way. Coyle will also stick to the ship. "Sink or Swim" was the slogan of the two. Both are swimming along nicely. Neither desired to sink out of sight. Green will probably retain his position as assistant manager, as he is too light for football material. Coyle will play at his old position, quarterback. "Almost persuaded."

• • • • • •

WILL THEY DESERT?

A report is in circulation to the effect that several local baseball players will report at Red Bank on Sunday, ready to battle for the championship of Monmouth county. According to the report, a magnate from the shore visited this city a few nights ago and signed up the seven. Each one of the young men secured intends to keep his promise, say some. Three or four of the fellows have another "promise" to keep. They are members of local teams that have games scheduled for Sunday. With which team is each going to play? Is it going to be Plainfield or Red Bank? We would like to be informed.

BILL DANIELS DELAYED.

Bill Daniels, upon whom Coach Ralph Patch depends to no little extent, may not be home from the border in time to join the football team on October 6, when the first game is played. Naturally, Coach Patch is a bit worried. Daniels is expected to be the mainstay of the team. While the game on the sixth, being with South Side, is not a Union county title contest, still the locals would like to start the season with a victory. And the start certainly could be more auspiciously made with Daniels in the van. Perhaps William may be on hand, but things do look dubious just at the present time.

AVOID BROOKLYN.

"Avoid Brooklyn! The apoplexy germ is rampant. It is sweeping over the plains of Flatbush up to the very edge of the sea. Even faraway Coney Island is infected and the Williamsburg sugar refinery district is restless. From 3 o'clock on today Brooklyn, its suburbs and contiguous country—hinterland, as they say in some places—will be gathered around the tickers and scoreboards. The plutocrats among the fans who aren't saving up for the high-price world's series tickets will be in the grandstand.

"If Brooklyn wins—if—there will be a return to confidence. If it loses—oh, well!—King Manuel gave up his throne and survived; Napoleon saw his power slipping and crossed his arms wearily as he started for St. Helena, and they say Socrates felt relieved when they slipped him the hemlock cup. History has been one shock after another—without absorbers, too—and still the world goes merrily on. Charlie Ebbets might have left for Hot Springs and thanked fate he didn't burst a blood vessel, if Joe Tinker's Cubs captured the series. He and his team would be out of first place, had this happened while the Phillies were downing Cincinnati. And first place is a pretty good thing not to be out of, when you've printed the world's series tickets with about eight games to go, with your new spring suit and a 1917 model car ordered.

"A defeat today would just about break twenty-two hearts on the players' bench, for it would convince the entire team it is slipping two days before the final series with the close-following contenders from Philadelphia."—Newark News.

Miss Molla Bjurstedt Among Those Who Will Stage Exhibition Match.

Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the national woman lawn tennis champion of the world, will play on the courts of the Cranford Canoe and Tennis Club on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Harold Throckmorton, of Elizabeth, will assist Miss Bjurstedt in her contests with Dean Mathey and Lindsay Dunham.

It is thought that a large gat[illegible]ering of tennis enthusiasts will be on hand to witness the match, inasmuch as the four principals are well known in this vicinity. Dean Mathey is a member of the Cranford Club and a resident of Cranford.

AMERICAN ATHLETES OFF TO COMPETE IN SWEDEN

Speedy co-operation from the State Department made it possible for Andy Ward, national champion sprinter, to accompany J. G. Loomis, Ted Meredith, Bob Simpson and Fred Murray, on their journey to Sweden, which began with the steaming of the Oscar II from Hoboken yesterday. It was not until a few moments before the Scandanavian American liner left that Ward received a passport. The quintet of America's best athletes left to take part in the athletic games of Sweden, Norway and Russia, and expect to be gone for several weeks.

A large delegation of athletes and admirers were present to wish bon voyage to the distinguished hurdlers, sprinters, jumpers and runners, who will carry the Stars and Stripes against foreign competition. Among them was F. W. Rubien, of the Jersey City A. A. U.; T. Cassidy, of the Jersey City A. A. U.; Jack Kelly, formerly athletic director of the Bronx Church House; Dan Ferris, of the Iris[illegible] [illegible]can A. C. Several women [illegible] along the athletes.

[illegible]THERN FOOTBALL.

[illegible]mond, Va., Sept. 29.—South[illegible] football history for 1916 will begin tomorrow with nearly all of the prominent college elevens in the field for points and valuable experience. While most of the scheduled contests are of a minor character there are possibilities, nevertheless, of some early season thrills. Vanderbilt will have a try-out with the Southwestern Presbyterian University in Nashville, North Carolina will take on Wake Forest at Chapel Hill, Washington and Lee and Randolph-Macon will come together at Lexington, Alabama will meet Birmingham College at Tuscaloosa, and the North Carolina Aggies will play Roanoke College at Raleigh. More in the nature of practice contests will be the game between Kentucky State and Butler at Lexington, Sewanee and the Morgan School at Sewanee, Tennessee and Tusculum at Knoxville, and Furman and Clemson at Clemson.

ASSAULT CASE POSTPONED.

The case of Edward Mitchel, charged with assault and battery, has been postponed indefinitely and he will be held in the county jail, being unable to furnish bail, until such time as Arthur Tompkins, the complainant, is able to appear before him. Tompkins is still in Muhlenberg Hospital as the result of injuries sustained a month ago when he was brutally beaten by Mitchel on West Third street.

League Limelight

NOTE—Short, snappy articles relative to the personality, popularity and prowess of each of the many baseball players in this city will appear in the "Sport Topics" daily. This department is conducted by the sporting editor, who welcomes suggestions.

FRANK MULLIN.

It certainly is about time that we resumed this little feature. The lack of space and—we must confess—inattention on our part caused a cessation of activities in the "League Limelight." However, we will start once more and endeavor to ontinue without interruption.

Frank Mullin is the youngest lad in the Mullin family, although he towers above each of the older lads in height. Frank has been playing baseball for a considerable length of time and was a star on the Laurels, a Parker Field team. He has played with the Farmers in the City League and was easily one of the few "live wires" on the team. Of late he has been pastiming with the Highlanders, an outfit composed mainly of City League talent. With this team he has been a consistent performer. His ability to field a baseball is pronounced. While he is weak with the stick, he is improving. If he masters the ability to clout the ball, he will be second to no baseball player in Plainfield and the immediate vicinity. Frank is ambitious and takes care of himself. Physically he ranks with the best of them, and mentally he is a "topnotcher." Surely, Frank is entitled to success.

In addition to conducting a "League Limelight," we will start a new feature entitled "Gridiron Greats." Watch for the initial article.

RAHWAY PRINCIPAL SPEAKS TO TEAM

Says Studies Come First and Football Next.

The Rahway and Battin High School elevens have decided that Plainfield is not going to capture the Union county championship. "Hub" Stine and his Westfield lads have come to the same conclusion; therefore, it would appear that the local lads will have to alter the opinions of these various outfits.

The Rahway team has been indulging in light practice during the past few days and Coach Carl Eliason has about decided on the team he will put in the field. Superintendent Little has informed the Rahway lads that studies come first and athletic endeavors second.

Battin has had only a small turnout of candidates of late, although the average has been twenty-five. That is considered a small number for a city of the size of Elizabeth. The Westfielders have been taught a few things by "Hub" Stine and it is thought that the boys have profited by the lessons.

HERBERT PEACOCK OUT OF QUARANTINE TODAY

Herbert Peacock, the nineteen-year-old Plainfield High School athlete, who has been a victim of infantile paralysis at his home on West Front street since last July, was released from quarantine today. Improvement is steady but very slow and it will be months before he can walk again.

WILL TOMMY MULLIN PLAY IN PERTH AMBOY?

From reliable sources we learn that the seven local baseball players who were considering a little trip to Red Bank on Sunday, have consented to think the matter over. At least, one of the lads has refused to accept the Red Bank offer and will play with his mates on Sunday.

It does not look as though the Tabs would lose Tommy Mullin. Billy Pfau, the Amboy leader, has scheduled a game with Rahway and Tommy has been invited to play in Rahway. It is not known whether or not Tommy intends to accept the invitation.

MOHAWK FOOTBALL MEN EXPECTS BUSY SEASON

The Mohawk football team is scheduled to take on the Scotch Plains gridiron representatives tomorrow afternoon. The Mohawks have been practicing every evening and believe that they will emerge from the battle victorious.

Charley Lundstrom, the manager of the Mohawks, is looking for games. Charley says that he has a capable squad and is willing to take on all opposition.

—If you have something to rent, you have something to advertise—and something that it will pay you to advertise adequately and persistently.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE FOR HOLY CROSS

Manager Doyle Deems it Important That Every Man Be on Hand.

The first football practice of the season will be held by the Holy Cross squad on Cricket Field tomorrow afternoon. Manager "Doc" Doyle wants every candidate on hand and will give special attention to new talent. On Monday evening, practice will be held on the field adjoining Marshall's Laundry on Watchung avenue.

The Glenmores, of Brooklyn, one of the fastest elevens in the metropolitan district, will take on the local eleven at an early date. Manager Doyle's present plans include a schedule of eleven games, all of which will be played at home.

George Trust, locally called the "Georgia Peach," will join the Holy Cross team, but it is not probable that he will be on hand tomorrow afternoon. It is also improbable that Jack Wilson or Lou Brown will be on hand. Each of these three lads is dated to play with the Dunellen baseball team on Maurer Oval tomorrow.

BILL DANIELS WILL RETURN OCTOBER 8

Bill Will Be Unable to Participate in South Side Game.

Coach Ralph S. Patch, of the Plainfield High School squad, has cause for worry. At least, it is reported that he has. According to those who have been freely dispensing data regarding the doings of the Red and Blue eleven, Bill Daniels will not return from the border in time to participate in the initial encounter with South Side High School.

Bill has been in Arizona with Troop D for about three months and during a portion of that time has been in football training. Bill is recognized as the mainstay of this year's eleven and the delay in his returning naturally has had its effect on the Red and Blue coach. Fortunately, Daniels is expected "in camp" before the tussle with Westfield.

A light workout was held yesterday afternoon. More candidates are responding daily to the call for talent. Smith is the only candidate for fullback at the present time. It is highly probable that he will have no competition for the position and that Daniels, Smith, Alpaugh and Snyder will compose the Red and Blue backfield this year. Butler and Vail look well at the ends, while Hooper, Somloch and Stevenson seem reasonably certain of positions in the line. Inasmuch as school reopens on Monday, it is highly probable that the squad of candidates will be greatly increased at that time.

RUTGERS PREPARES FOR TOUGH BATTLE

Villanova Expected to Provide Best of Competition for Tomorrow.

What promises to be one of the best early season games of the year will be staged on Neilson Field tomorrow afternoon when the strong Villanova team will meet Rutgers. Both of these elevens made excellent records last year, and the game tomorrow promises to be both close and exciting.

Rutgers has been practicing since Labor Day, under the direction of George Foster Sanford and a corps of assistants. The team lost several star players by graduation, including Nash and Talman, but it is believed that substitutes from last year's squad, and several scholastic stars will be able to fill, acceptably, the places left vacant. Witpenn and Elliott, halfbacks, have been shifted to end, Kelly and Hazel having taken their places in backfield. Besides these two Freshman stars, Weller, a Brooklyn high school boy, is the only man on the team who has not played with Rutgers last year. The tentative lineup for the Villanova game as announced by Coach Sanford is as follows: Elliott, left end; Robeson, left tackle; Rendall, left guard; Mason, centre; Garrett, right guard; Weler, right tackle; Witpenn, right end; Cap. Scarr, quarterback; Bracher, right halfback; Kelly, left halfback; Hazel, fullback.

IN THE TENNIS FINALS.

Tennis enthusiasts will be given a splendid opportunity to witness an interesting match at the Plainfield Country Club tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock when F. C. Baggs and S. H. Voshell oppose Phil and Ludlow Van Deventer in the finals of the night tennis tourney held on the Country Club courts a few weeks ago. Owing to the inclement weather, it was found necessary to postpone the night finals until tomorrow afternoon.

Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania's football practice was short and sweet yesterday afternoon. One reason for this was the presence of Coach Tobin, of West Virginia, who arrived in advance of his team to look over the field and get acquainted. Another reason is that Coach Folwell does not wish to work his team too hard before meeting the heavy opponents on Saturday. He thinks the men are now just about right.

The kicking game is giving Folwell the most concern. He has all the backfield men at work punting, but none has come up to the standard and therefore the backfield arrangement is somewhat in doubt. The scrub players were bedecked in red uniforms in anticipation of a scrimmage, which was called off.

Stevens.

Football practice at Stevens Tech yesterday brought out forty men. Coach Rodgers and Captain Middleton devoted much time instructing the new men how to fall on the ball and tackle the dummy.

A few simple plays were run off and then the backs spent more than an hour kicking and passing to the ends.

The squad was split into three teams and these were lined up against each other. The men walked through the plays, as Rodgers deemed it inadvisable to scrimmage too soon. Middleton was at his old position of centre. The remaining line and backfield positions are unsettled owing to the short time the squad has been out and the new material.

Yale.

The Yale football team went through a rather ragged practice yesterday afternoon, the lack of good team work on the part of the backfield causing the coaches some worry. Three touchdowns were made by the varsity, however, LeGore, Bingham and Jacques making the scores again and Jacques making the scores against a rather weak defense.

Another new quarterback was tried yesterday. He is LaRoche and is the ninth man tried in this position since the opening of practice. It is probable that the backfield against Carnegie Institute tomorrow will be Smith at quarter, Bingham and Jacques halfbacks and LeGore fullback. Hutchinson may go in at fullback and LeGore to a halfback position, however.

Games Tomorrow.

Villanova vs. Rutgers.
West Virginia vs. Pennsylvania.
Yale vs. Carnegie.
Fordham vs. Lafayette.
Princeton vs. Holy Cross.

FRANK WALL WILL PLAY WITH KNIGHTS

Local Tab Fielder Will Play Third Base in Somerville.

The Somerset Knights of Columbus will take on an all star combination at Somerville tomorrow afternoon. Joe Dunne, the leader of the Knights, will accept nothing but victory, and is making every sort of preparation for this all-important tussle. The All Stars are sure of victory. All of which testifies that both managers are "in the same boat."

JAKE DEINZER TO TAME APGAR TEAM

Will Oppose Dunellen Outfit in One of the Two Games.

Manager Tommy Apgar is getting ready. His boys are going to retire early this evening in order that the morrow will find them already for the fray with the Knights of St. Peter baseball team, which is scheduled to invade the precincts of Dunellen tomorrow afternoon.

It is considered possible that George Ortleib may face the Knights in the game tomorrow and that Johnny Dixon will be on the mound on Sunday, when the Apgarites take a little trip to New Brunswick. Eddie Bergen will do the catching in both encounters and Jack Garretson will play first base.

Jake Deinzer, the "no-hit" pitcher of the Middlesex team, will be on the mound in one of the games and Hugh Geoghan will do the hurling in the other attraction. All trolleys will lead to Dunellen tomorrow afternoon.

WAR NEWS

knew we had to protect our hearths and homes against a mighty and almost overwhelming coalition. Ardent, and until then unknown and often ignored, patriotism flamed up in all hearts, defying death and certain of victory. Today, after two years of fighting, struggling, suffering and trying, we know more than ever before that there is only one watchword, namely, persevere and win. We will win.

"Last winter there was pusillanimous anxiety as to whether our foodstuffs would suffice. They have sufficed. This year's harvest makes us much more secure than was the case last year."

The Chancellor announced in his peroration his firm determination to carry through inner reforms in the State organization which the great masses by their conduct of the war had earned and deserved.

Referring to the actual conditions on the war fronts, the Chancellor said that the attacks made by the Central Powers in the southeastern theatre had frustrated the great plan of the entente to sever the connection of Germany with the Orient by the separate conquest of Turkey, Bulgaria and Austro-Hungary.

Somme Can't Change Situation.

"On the whole," therefore," he said, "we see isolated successes of our enemies on the Somme, which cannot influence the general situation. On the other hand, we have the successful repulse of all enemy attacks and the frustration of the enemy's intentions in the Balkans and the failure of his plans. This the gigantic war is proceeding.

"The war aims of our enemies are announced without disguise and can allow of no misrepresentation. Their purpose is territorial covetousness and our destruction. They proposed to give Constantinople to the Russians, Alsace-Lorraine to the French, Trentino to the Italians and Transylvania to the Roumanians.

"Since the first day of the war we have sought nothing but the defence of our rights, our existence and our freedom. Therefore we are able first and alone to declare our readiness for peace negotiations. Does any one dare to demand that we should make declaration that the conclusion of offers in the face of Premier Briand's peace today would be a sign of weakness or that memory was dead? The Entente continues the war because it hopes to be able to attain Utopian war aims.

"The last of conquest of our enemies is responsible for the daily heaping mountains of corpses.

"The British leave no doubt," he said, "as to what they wish to make of Germany. Our existence as a nation is to be crushed. Militarily defenseless, economically crushed, boycotted by the world and condemned to lasting sickliness—that is the Germany which England wants to see at her feet. Then, when there is no more German competition to be feared, when France has been bled to death, when all her allies are financially and economically doing slave work for England, when the neutral European world must submit to every British order, every British blacklist, then upon an impotent Germany, the dream of British world supremacy is to become a reality."

British Steamer Sunk.

Madrid, Sept. 29.—The British steamer Roddam, 3218 tons, from Newcastle, has been sunk in the Mediterranean, evidently by a German submarine. Eleven members of the crew were landed today on the Spanish coast.

Try to Pocket Bapaume.

Paris, Sept. 29.—French and British troops have begun to pocket Bapaume on the Somme front, as they did Sombles. South of Bapaume the French have renewed their attacks on the Fregicourt morval line, where fresh progress hsd been made, the War Office announced today in its communique.

U-Boats Sing 8 Ships in a Day.

London, Sept. 29.—A despatch to Lloyd's today reports the sinking of the British ship Second by a German submarine. The Second was the eighth victim of submarines in 24 hours.

Take Four From Germans.

A strongly defended farm southwest of Le Sars, on the Somme front, was captured from the Germans in a night attack, it was stated in a report issued by the British War Office today.

MRS. GAFFNEY RESTING WELL.

BUY IT IN PLAINFIELD

If YOU spend your money AT HOME with HOME MERCHANTS you get a second chance at that same old dollar; when that dollar goes out of town, it's—"Good-bye Mary."

A dollar is no "carrier pigeon." Send it away and it will never come back. Keep Plainfield made money in Plainfield.

Consider the power of a dollar when it is spent at home. It is like magic. It circulates—it pays off a hundred obligations—it creates business and puts people to work in this community. But the dollar sent away to an out-of-town house does nothing for Plainfield—it is dead to us—out of commission forever as far as we are concerned.

There are only two kinds of dollars—the "Dollar With Wings" and the "Development Dollar."

The "Dollar with Wings" flies away with a value that rightfully belongs to the home community. If spent with a Plainfield Merchant its value would stay with you and help to build up your interests.

The "Development Dollar" goes to build up Plainfield. It stays right here in our own community—it puts people to work here—builds roads and schools and churches and homes.

No matter what your position in life may be, some of its benefits "filter" down to you. "Letting George do it" is poor logic. We want YOU to cultivate the "Try Plainfield First" habit.

TAKE HEART, SINNERS, YE ARE NOT TO BE DENIED

Philadelphia, Sept. 29.—Ecclesiastically speaking, the time is approaching when warning sinners of "damnation" will no longer be good form. The correct thing to do will be to speak of the perils of "condemnation," which, scholars tell us, is a better translation of the Greek.

All of which refers to the Book of Prayer of the Protestant Episcopal church, which has been using "damn" and "damnation" for generations, but which, if the commission of revision has its way at the forthcoming general convention at St. Louis will eliminate "damnation" and substitute "condemnation."

Condemnation, says the commission, is a better translation of the crude terms which interfere with the beauty of the service, and last, but not least, little boys sitting in the pews are inclined to put an entirely wrong construction on the word "damnation."

Most clergymen of the Diocese of Pennsylvania agree with the Commission on Revision of the Prayer Book and favor striking out the word "damnation."

"It will be universally approved," said the Rev. Dr. George C. Foley, of the Protestant Episcopal Divinity School. "The revised version of the Bible omits 'damn' and 'damnation. It should never have been put in the prayer book."

On the other hand, the Rev. Dr. Floyd, W. Tomkins, rector of the Church of the Holy Trinity, who has a national reputation as a Bible teacher and expositor, prefers the old phraseology.

"I should hesitate to change it," Doctor Tomkins said last evening. "I see no good reason for making the change. 'Damnation' or 'condemnation'—either is correct. The words 'damn' and 'damnation' are good old Anglo-Saxon expressions and have been used by Christians for generations, and it seems to me exceedingly foolish to change them now."

PROF. HOPPER NAMED AS COUNTY REPRESENTATIVE

A special meeting of the Union County Manual Training Teachers' Association was held at Elizabeth Court House on September 28, 1916.

The principal speakers were Assistant Commissioner of Education R. E. Reuther, and County Superintendent Johnson.

A. F. Hopper, supervisor of the Manual Arts Department, Plainfield High School, was selected as a delegate to represent Union county in the forming of a State organibation of manual arts teachers.

Saved by a Dream.

A farmer living at Lapford, England, dreamed thrice in succession that he saw a pit dug in one of his fields and some of his property cast into it. At the third time of dreaming he got up, dressed and went out. He heard the thud of a spade and caught sight of a man digging by lantern light. The digger fled at his approach. It was a grave upon which he had been at work. By its brink lay a huge knife. On his way back the farmer met one of his maidservants. She had had a quarrel with the man to whom she had been engaged, she said, but he had prevailed upon her to meet him for the last time at 2 o'clock that morning, when he had something to show her. "This is what he had to show you," said the farmer, leading her to the grave.—London Tatler.

Pretty Poor Pilot.

"I was out with Umson in his automobile the other evening," said the fat plumber to his friend the thin carpenter.

"Didn't know he had one."

"Yes; he bought one secondhand."

"Did you have a good ride?"

"I nearly lost a year's growth."

"Speed fiend?"

"No, but he can't guide the thing straight."

"Poor at the wheel, eh?"

"Poor at the wheel? Why, man alive, Umson couldn't steer a street car."—Exchange.

Lawyers' Way.

"I can't understand why those two lawyers call it a deed of trust."

"Why not?"

"From the care with which they are drawing it up it is quite evident that they don't trust each other."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

"What was all the argument between you and the judge yesterday?"

"Oh, we were discussing the merits of our respective cars."

"That's a foolish thing to do. You can never convince a man that your car is better than his."

"I know that, but I got him so mad that he committed himself to the statement that my car can't make over ten miles an hour. The next time I'm brought up before him for speeding I'll remind him of that."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

PLAINFIELD PRESS COMPANY,

The Old Fashioned Horse

The old fashioned horse was no wonder for speed.
He hadn't the rate of a minute per mile.
But, if you'll remember, the bills for his feed
Were only a tenth of the gasoline style.
He wasn't as fleet as a motor machine.
His record for distance was shorter of course.
But cleaning a car gives no pleasure as keen
As smoothing the coat of the old fashioned horse.

The old fashioned horse, he was skittish at times,
But skittish and skiddish are words far apart.
This new turning turtle was none of his crimes.
He stayed right side up, just the same as his cart.

His driver was never the lord of the road,
But simply obeyed all the statutes in force.
So, seeing the scorchers' contemptuous mode,
What wonder I sigh for the old fashioned horse?

HALF SHARE RENTING MORE POPULAR AND PROFITABLE

Government Experts Complete Interesting Farm Survey.

A farm management survey by experts of the department of agriculture of 246 tenant farms in the truck region of southeastern New Jersey, the results of which have just been published at Washington, brings out significant facts bearing upon the relation between systems of renting, types of farming and the returns realized by landlords and tenants.

It was found that during the period of the survey half share renting was both more popular and more profitable than cash renting; that the late truck farming was safer financially than early truck farming, and that the highest average income for both landlord and tenant was derived from a few of the larger farms upon which dairying was an important enterprise and for which the tenant paid as rent half the returns from the dairy as well as half the crops.

TO TUNNEL THE BOSPORUS.

Engineers Call Project Both Feasible and Financially Profitable.

A project for the construction of a tunnel under the Bosporus is being discussed at Constantinople. Engineers have worked out detailed plans showing that the project is feasible and financially profitable, while its strategic importance is obvious.

Earlier projects for direct communication between the European and Asiatic shores of Turkey, inspired by the construction of the Anatolian and Bagdad railway, were devoted to the subject of bridging the narrows at Rumili-Hissar.

The consideration of the idea to tunnel under the Bosporus recalls the many projects and actual work begun on a tunnel to unite Great Britain and France under the strait of Dover.

1,607 YEARS AROUND TABLE.

Twenty Octogenarians Hold Dinner In Stroudsburg, Pa.

The combined ages of the twenty guests who attended the recent fourth annual luncheon of the Octogenarians' association of Monroe county at Stroudsburg, Pa., totaled 1,607 years. The host was Dr. E. C. Vanalten, eighty-one years old.

The officers re-elected were: President, H. R. Besecker, eighty-one; vice president, J. S. Williams, eighty-four; secretary, Charles Yetter, seventy-five; chaplain, Dr. C. Even Allen, eighty-seven.

SUIT AGAINST RAILROADS.

Government Seeks to Punish Them For Neglecting Cattle In Transit.

The federal government has filed suit in the United States district court in Trenton, N. J., to recover penalties of $500 from the Pennsylvania railroad, $6,000 from the Erie railroad, $500 from the West Shore railroad and $3,500 from the Lehigh Valley railroad for alleged keeping of cattle without water and proper rest for more than twenty-eight hours while in transit. This is in violation of federal statutes.

"Marys" Hold Reunion.

There were Marys everywhere in Noblesville, Ind., the other day. Even the lamb was present. Outside the big exclusive circle those with less magnetic names looked on. It was the second annual national reunion of Marys. From seven states Marys came to greet their sisters in name. Prizes were awarded to the handsomest Mary, the homeliest Mary, the tallest Mary, and a blue ribbon was pinned on the lamb.

RUSSIANS WHO WERE TO RULE CITIES MADE TO CLEAN STREETS

"It is reported from Sofia," says a report from Berlin, "that the Russian army which entered eastern Roumania had with it a whole brigade of officials who were to administer conquered Bulgarian cities.

"These officials were captured and are now at work cleaning the streets of the same cities which they were to govern."

PLAN TO WIPE OUT ENGLISH SPARROW

League of American Sportsmen to Inaugurate Campaign.

WILL ENLIST ALL MAYORS.

State, County and Town Officials Will Be Asked to Help In Fight Against Sparrow, Which Is Driving Out Song Birds—Several Cities Already Engaged in Movement.

The League of American Sportsmen, whose object is the preservation of wild life, is considering the question of inaugurating a nation wide campaign for the destruction of the English sparrow. Its officials say this bird has made such headway here that it is driving out the smaller song and insectivorous birds and that it has become a question of whether we will have only the English sparrow to represent our bird life or destroy it and regain some fifty species of useful and beautiful birds that used to inhabit farms and countryside all over the land.

The league intends to issue a proclamation declaring war on the English sparrow and setting aside a week, possibly in April or May of next year, to be devoted especially to waging it. The governors of every state will be asked to aid the work. Printed instructions as to the plan of the campaign will be sent to the mayors of all incorporated cities and villages, to the heads of the school systems in every county, to college presidents, to principals of preparatory schools, to the heads of the boy scouts in each state and to other organizations which might be expected to extend sympathy and aid.

Methods of Fighting Winged Pest.

Four principal methods of action will be employed: Tearing down the nests, trapping the birds, shooting them under police supervision and under licenses issued by the police authorities and, in cities where water pressure is available, turning the hose on the birds at night after they have gone to roost.

The president of the league, G. O. Shields, of 111[illegible] Simpson street, New York, says he would like to hear from persons interested in the matter, both those who favor the plan and those opposed.

He makes the statement that in the case of the hundreds of thousands of bird boxes placed in this country in the last ten years, fully 75 per cent have been appropriated for their own purposes by the English sparrows. In cases where bluebirds, wrens or other birds that are desired by those who put the boxes up have taken possession of boxes, the sparrows have driven them out, thrown their eggs to the ground, and taken full possession themselves.

Bluebirds Driven Out.

"I have traveled nearly 4,000 miles this summer," says Mr. Shields, "have visited more than fifty towns in the middle west and in the east, have walked more than 100 miles and, though I always look carefully for birds, have not seen a single bluebird this season. The bluebird is, perhaps, the most modest and most inoffensive of all our native songsters, and so it has retired more generally before the onslaughts of the English sparrow than any other of our native birds, though all have been driven out to a greater or less extent.

"There are several important precedents for our proposed action against the sparrows. San Diego, Cal., started a war of extermination against them a year ago. It has been vigorously conducted, on about the same lines as we propose, and as a result most of the sparrows in that city have been killed and the others driven out. The California state university has cleaned its campus of them, and Meriden, Conn., has cleaned them out. The California state game and fish commission has inaugurated a state wide war against the intruders.

"If one city the size of San Diego can kill the sparrows and drive them out, every town and city in the land can do it, and we believe that at least 99 per cent of the people in this country will approve a war of extermination against this condemned nuisance, and that they will join heartily in it."

WAR MAKING MEN OLD; HAIR SOON TURNS GRAY.

The effect of the war in prematurely aging the fighting men in all armies has become the subject of serious scientific discussion in England, France and Germany. Investigations have shown that men under thirty in a few months in the trenches turn gray.

The effect is noticeable not only in the British army, but among the French also and among Germans, many of whom, giving their ages as twenty-one to twenty-seven years, present the appearance of men over forty.

"The gray hairs come quicker to the officers than to the 'Tommies,'" says a Canadian army surgeon. "I have never known of hair actually growing white overnight, but it often happens within the space of a week or ten days."

Prominent Bankers, Diplomatist and Educator Appeal for Funds in the Name of the Suffering Soldiers of France.

The National Allied Relief Committee, co-operating with the War Relief Clearing House for France and her Allies, is sending out what perhaps will be the most broadcast appeal yet issued on behalf of the war sufferers of Europe.

This appeal is for funds for the relief of the soldiers of France wounded in the fighting around Verdun.

Those who signed it are: August Belmont of the banking firm bearing his name; Hon. Jos. H. Choate, Ex-Ambassador to England; Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University; A. STRENUOUS WORK AT PLATTSBURG

A. B. Wilson Discusses the Real Value of Military Training for Citizens.

THE DAILY ROUTINE

Business Men Are Taught the Elements of War in Approximately Four Weeks and Given Start in Preparedness.

The real benefits provided by the military training at the Plattsburg Camp, are concisely set forth in a resume of the work given by A. B. Wilson, local manager of the New York Telephone Company, who was acting corporal of Company B, Eighth Training Regiment, at Plattsburg. Mr. Wilson in discussing the subject of "Military Training" said:

"Although several of the constituents of Plainfield and vicinity have attended the military training camps under the auspices of the United States government for citizens, to the great majority who have not been able to avail themselves of this privilege, the following might be of interest:

"Arriving at the Plattsburg camp, one resisters and is immediately placed under a company commander to be equipped with a rifle, belt bayonet, and other paraphernalia used in the United States army. After he has successfully passed the physical examination given under the supervision of army surgeons he immediately enters into the study of elementary drill tactics and the manual of arms.

"After the first week's study of the above and the ordinary formations, the civilian enters into sham battles, known as 'company combats.' Such tactics cover a period of two or three days.

"As each soldier should know how to handle a rifle and shoot properly, a course of several days is provided for in target practice and the civilian who enters the target range knowing nothing about the rifle is turned out under most circumstances as a good marksman.

"The Plattsburger who knows the ordinary tactics proceeds with his companw in marching to harden himself and in war tactics to show him what is necessary in both offense and defense. This is followed by what is known as the 'hike,' covering the last week of the camp.

"While on the 'hike,' the bugle sounds the reveille, which means that the soldier must get up at 4:45 a.m. After breakfast (known as 'mess' in the army) is served, the soldier washes his own dishes, takes down and wraps up his portion of a shelter tent in a bundle with his blankets, and cans, which in the army would contain his rations, and immediately assembles for the day's marching and manoeuvres. The former covers a period of about three hours with hourly halts for rest of about ten minutes each. Either during the march, or after the day's march is completed regimental combat is entered into, in which the student is taught the various formations carried out at the order of a commander necessary in a march as at war.

"With this, the sternuous work of each day is completed and immediately afterward conferences are held in order to show how a company of soldiers at the top of a ridge might be beaten by a few skirmuishers coming up from a valley.

"The time is so arranged that the business man is taught the elements of war in approximately four weeks and only the elements, for even the older army officers confess that the game is of such a peculiar nature that the best of them can not carry out warfare as the business man would run his business. The four weeks pass quickly and the embryo soldier returns to civilian life with two ideas uppermost in his mind—first, he knows that he is trained in the fundamental principles of war and would know just how to carry himself if it were necessary for him to volunteer in the army in the services of the U. S. A., and secondly, he is now convinced that peace is best and that war is only to be resorted to after all other means fail.

"The Plattsburger is instilled with the idea that the man who sits at his fireside and talks of his country going to war because it has plenty of money and an army, should be encouraged to spend at least one term at a military training camp and he then, like the civilian military camp attendant, would call for peace and peace assured by our preparedness to defend this good old U. S. A."

EDUCATOR'S NOTEBOOK

The most important event in the astronomical field during the past year, according to the members of the American Astronomical Society, which held its nineteenth annual convention at Philadelphia this month, was the discoveries concerning the nature of sun spots made by Professor George E. Hale at Mount Wilson Observatory, California. Dr. Hale's discoveries are to the effect that the rotating fields which he has located on the sun's surface probably have some connection with electrical storms on earth. His work is closely connected with the star distance observations, and with many other modern astronomers he holds the view that the sun is only another star that appears larger and brighter because it is nearer, and that many theories regarding it will be verified or disproved only by the study of the other stars.

The first comprehensive school of graphic arts to teach the technology and art of the printing industry in all its branches, is to be opened in Boston this fall at the Wentworth Institute. This new school is intended to give young men who wish to enter any department of the printing or publishing trades an opportunity to secure a broad foundation for their work, and will supply tuition in machine and hand composition, platen and cylinder press work, photo-mechanical processes of various kinds, lithography, book binding, etc. In different countries of Europe there have been for a long time conspicuous examples of high grade printing schools, having far reaching influence on the industry. Many are very elaborate, occupying elaborte buildings and possessing costly equipments. The most notable examples of schools of this kind are the Royal School of Graphic Arts at Leipsic, and the corresponding schools in Paris, Vienna, Budapest and London. Thus far nothing of the kind has been attempeted in America, though the United States with its unparalleled newspaper and magazine development might well call above all other fields for an advanced intitution of the sort. The Boston departure will therefore be watched with particular interest.

W. G. Aachung Kung, a grandson of the great Chinese statesman, Li Hung Chang, is at present on tour of the United States studying problems relating to agriculture and the methods employed in American agricultural colleges in scientific training for agriculture. Mr. Kung is a graduate of Cambridge University, England, and his father is foreign secretary of the Chinese republic. The young man expects to be himself appointed commissioner of agriculture in one of the Chinese provinces upon his return to his native land.

FORFEITS $10,000,000 TO BECOME A BRIDE.

Mrs. John C. C. Mayo of Paintsville, Ky., widow of the eastern Kentucky coal baron who died in New York city two years ago, and Dr. Samuel Fetter of Portsmouth, O., have just been married in Ashland, Ky. They will live in Paintsville.

Under Mr. Mayo's will Mrs. Fetter will lose half of her first husband's fortune, estimated at $20,000,000. When her son was taken ill last winter and was brought to a Lexington hospital Dr. Fetter was engaged as the family physician, and the romance which led to the wedding began.

Mr. Mayo began life as a penniless schoolteacher in the Kentucky mountains. On the discovery of coal there he began operations which netted him a fortune.

MURDER SOLVED BY MAKING A CLAY FACE OVER SKULL

Victim Disappeared Two Years Ago—Identified When Features Are Reproduced.

The semblance of a dead man's features, modeled in clay on the skull of his skeleton, which then was dressed in a suit of clothes, proved the accuracy of the scientific methods of the New York police department, resulted in the identification of a victim of murder and landed two men in jail in Brooklyn, where they are held charged with the killing of two men whose skeletons were dug up after two years.

The bones were uncovered by the laborers at work in a lot at Canarsie. The first was found on Sept. 12, the second was dug up Sept. 23. Detectives and scientists went to work on the reconstruction of the head from the characteristics indicated by the skull. A little hair remained, enabling them to choose a wig of the proper color.

Then came the testing of this grewsome but scientific synthesis. The skull with its new investiture of tinted clay, with a rakish hat surmounting and the whole perched convincingly enough on a skeleton form on which was draped a suit of clothes, was set up in the office of the detective bureau, and certain Sicilians were called in.

One frightened, furtive glance at the silent figure, its artificial eyes peering from the shadows under the hat, and each Italian huskily whispered, "It is Dominick—Dominick La Rosa!"

The New York police say this is the first time in the annals of crime that the reconstruction of the face of a skeleton or skull has been used in the detection of crime or for the identification of the victim of a murder.

La Rosa and his friend Rosario Passarelle disappeared in November, 1914.

TROOPERS PREPARE FOR AN INSPECTION

Five Recruits Sent From Fort DuPont Assigned to Local Cavalry.

By JAMES J. McNAMEE.

Douglas, Ariz., Sept. 25.—Under the direction of a corps of regular army officers the equipment and men of the First Squadron of New Jersey Cavalry are being inspected today for reasons that are still a matter of speculation. The enlisted men insist that this work is being done to save time at Sea Girt, and officers claim it is merely to ascertain the status of the unit and the degree of officiency that has been attained during the three months' stay at the border.

Troop D, of Plainfield, was ordered to prepare its outfit for inspection early this morning and this is occupying the attention of men and officers today. Little hard work has been done since the return of the outfit from the eight-day hike, forty-eight hours ago, it being the object of the officers to give the soldiers a chance to recuperate after the long, hard grind.

Official announcement was made today that the five recruits sent from Fort DuPont to the cavalry squadron would be assigned to Troop D. They are: DeCosta W. Elliott, of Philadelphia; Herrmann W. Assaym, Columbus; Christopher J. Campanello, Orange; J. C. Fregans, Orange, and George H. Assay, Ocean Grove. The men have already taken up quarters in the first squad of the troop and the non-coms are busily engaged teaching the rookies the ropes of military life on the border.

Shortly after the troop returned from the hike Saturday afternoon, Trooper Ned Cady was thrown from a horse and suffered slight injuries. His presence of mind in rolling from under the horse's body to a point where he would not be trampled upon in all probability saved his life. Trooper Schultze, who was sent home from the hike with a sprained elbow, is able to be about.

In commenting on the outing last night Captain Albert G. Borden and Lieutenant J. N. Charles declared it to be the best feature of the stay in Douglas. They claim that the eight days on the road profited the men as much in the way of real military training as the whole three months in camp have and the enlisted men were unanimous in stamping the trip as a big success.

The troop, without exception, was in the best of health upon return and every man had assumed a rugged, healthful appearance that indicated that he had gotten both enjoyment and good training out of the hike.

The new non-coms have assumed their respective places of authority in the unit and are already discharging their duties like veterans. Their appointment came the day before the troop left for Fort Muachuca and they had little or no chance to demonstrate their ability before departure. Now, however, the commissioned officers are watching the new material keenly ,and if early indications are to be taken as a criterion Captain Borden and his staff will have no cause to regret the appointments.

"ANTI-SOUR FACE" CLASS HOLDS "LIVE WIRE" MEETING

The members of Abraham Lincoln Chapter, No. 122, I. C. S. Fraternity of the World, who compose the class in "Anti-Sour Face" development, held a "live wire" meeting in the "Frat" rooms, last night.

President Harry W. Swivel was in the chair. Two crews were organized to boost the membership in the fraternity and their class in physical culture.

C. E. Tilley is captain of the "Reds," and A. Weed is captain of the "Blues." The team that enrolls the most members will be the guests of the losing team at a theatre or supper party.

George A. Keene, physical director, put the class through a series of physical efficiency developing exercises, and paid particular attention to the art of relaxation and proper breathing. The average business man and woman suffers from too much tension of nerves, muscles and cartilages, hence they cannot be in a thorough efficient condition, mentally or physically.

A thoroughly instructive and enjoyable evening was spent in developing health, strength and endurance.

All men are urged to join this class in physical preparedness against disease. Call, or address, C. Ivan Hill, 514 Madison avenue. The class meets next Monday night at 8:30 o'clock in the "Frat" rooms.

The rigid requirements of the medical milk commission fill a book—but the gist of it is simply this:

Certified milk is milk produced in a strictly sanitary way, free from disease germs and containing all the elements good milk should. The commission—a board of responsible physicians—certified such milk as safe for children to drink.

Is there anything more important to you than your children's safety?

SCIENTIFIC AGRICULTURE OF TENNESSEE PRODUCTS

State Experiment Farm at Knoxville Contains 745 Acres for the Development of Pure-Bred Live Stock Industry and Advanced Agriculture—Value of Property Worth $500,000

Five hundred thousand dollars in an Experiment Farm appears rather a large sum to spend in agricultural education; but it is not. This sum is an investment rather than an expense. It represents the value of 745 acres of land and farm appurtenances at Knoxville, Tenn., used for experimental and educational purposes that the horizon of the farmer might be broadened and enlarged along agricultural lines; that his crops may be made more diversified; that he may produce more foodstuffs at less cost, and that he may have the benefit of the scientific agricultural thought of the age in the prosecution of his farm work. The Experiment Farm is one of the show places of the city and is located right on the boundary line of the municipal corporate limits. It is accomplishing untold good for the farmers as well as the business men throughout the section, for in the last analysis that which benefits the farmer also automatically benefits the commercial lines in the territory served by the farms. The original Experiment Farm contained only 145 acres but in order that the educational and experimental agricultural work might be further extended, the citizens bought an additional farm immediately adjoining and across the river, from the original Experiment Station, containing 600 acres of land at a cost of $140,000. The intense development of the pure-bred live stock industry was the prime motive which actuated the purchase of this additional land.

Farms Prospering.

Four hundred and forty-two thousand dollars represents the increased farm valuation of cattle in Tennessee in one year, 1915. Other forms of live stock took similar jumps. Other states in the South also increased in live stock wealth in 1915, and the end is not yet. Agriculture is developing along safe and sane lines. Farm prosperity is one form of the South's development now being followed with interest by citizens of every state.

Business men of the cities have joined the farm thinking public in the belief that to make any country of great value to the people whom it serves its agriculture must be developed. To get agriculture up to its highest, live stock must be raised, and to get the most from the stock there must be pure-bred blood in the veins of the animals.

To refer again to Tennessee as an example of what the states of the South are doing, we find that 654 head of high-priced, pure-bred breeding animals have been brought into the state to improve the beef herds. Many heads of dairy cows have also been imported from other states. And the records that are available, from which the above figures are taken, are only those which show the activity of the live stock agents of the United States Department of Agriculture and the University of Tennessee. Many pure-bred animals have been bought without the assistance of these special agents.

Interest in Live Stock Keen.

People in the section are developing an interest in pure-bred live stock seldom seen even in parts of the country which have been known for years as live stock centers. The country contiguous is adapted to the raising of live stock. The farmers are progressive and so the demand for pure-bred animals is strong. Many large herds are now found in Knox county.

Interest in pure-bred live stock has been increased by the business men of the community. Said they: "The success of our business depends on how well the crops and the farms on which they grow succeed." And so they have placed at the disposal of the farming interests sums of money which have made possible lines of activity which would otherwise have been impossible. "The farmers have been turning money into our business," said these business men, "and it is only fair to pay some of it back in whatever way we can. Besides this, our future profits depend on how the soil responds to the work of the farmer."

The Board of Commerce representing the general business interests of Knoxville, the Clearing House Association embracing the banks of the city, and the Holston National Bank have looked at the industrial development of the community from the broad standpoint and have put their money back of the work in which the farmers are interested.

Fortunately for the business men so minded, the section has the University of Tennessee, with its College of Agriculture and State Experiment Station Farm. The business men turned naturally to the college officials to direct the funds which they were willing to place in farm development work.

It might be said right here that the funds are already beginning to show results and consequently the eyes of the citizens of the state are directed to the Experiment Station. These results, which might not be expected so soon for farm experimental and developmental work, is necessarily slow—have been brought about through the efficient leadership of those at work at the Station. Tennessee has selected men who are qualified and who know what the farming interests of Tennessee demand to make the state a leader. These men have said time and time again, and they are now putting their statements into action as a result of the purchase of additional land, that live stock will bring to Tennessee's agriculture wealth that can be brought in no other way. These experimentalists have called to the attention of the business and farming interests of the state so strongly the need for more live stock that the business men could not do otherwise than supply the needed capital for the work at hand.

Farmers Use Horse Breeding Farm.

The single piece of work which has been talked about most is the establishment of the Percheron foundation stud at the University Farm. The directors of one of the banks loaned the money for the purchase of the stud without interest, and expect to get the principal back from the sale of the offspring. Mazarin, a stallion of splendid breeding, heads the stud and about him are six mares of equally high breeding. Since the stud was established in 1914 many fine colts have been dropped. A live stock show which will place on exhibition these colts is planned. Any farmers in the community have the privilege of bringing their mares to this stallion. A fee is charged which is applied on the insurance premiums. The colts which come from the University mares which are a part of the stud are sold to the community and from them it is expected other Percheron breeding centers will be established in the county. The strength of this breeding work is increased by a similar stud established in West Tennessee at the Jackson Experiment Station Farm. Interchange of breeding animals as thought best will develop the draft horse in Tennessee to his highest usefulness and value.

The farming interests appreciate the work possible at the Experiment Station Farm and are eager to visit it. In fact, they come each year from all East Tennessee and form the greatest convention of its kind in the country. Over four thousand attended the East Tennessee Farmers' Convention on the big day last May. These were farmers and their families, city people and their families, all meeting together in common interest. But the meeting is a farmers' meeting, held by them and paid for by them. The meeting place, Temple Hall, at the University Farm, a structure costing $15,000, was built by them for the purpose of properly handling the crowds that come from all parts of East Tennessee at the time of the May meeting.

In addition to this gathering there has been a demand for a Fair. The East Tennessee Division Fair was planned to bring together the industrial and agricultural interests of East Tennessee. That means that farm exhibits will be prominent. Here the business men stepped in with their support for such a fair and gave $20,000. Everyone is eager to make this Fair stand for what the section stands for—better live stock on better farms. This fall the Fair will be held and the live stock exhibits will be large, for the city and the country are co-operating to show what the section can do.

Another annual exhibition points to the interest in live stock. The Fat Stock Show, held in January, has been fostered by the banks of the community. Last year $1,000 was offered as premiums. This year $1,100 is being offered. This show is held at the University Farm, and is becoming statewide in its scope. Farmers and stockmen are finding that they can bring their animals to this show and then sell them for more than they would get for them on the open market. This margin, together with the premiums they win, covers the expense of bringing the animals to the show.

From the prosperity of her best farmers and the possibilities of her farms, the county will soon be appreciated for her immense farm wealth. The county is not neglecting this field of industry. The people of the county have employed a County Agricultural Agent. He is the field representative of the United States Department of Agriculture and the Division of Extension of the University of Tennessee. As such, he has at his command the best farm information possible to secure. Standing back of him and his work are the business and educational interests of the city and county.

One can not pass by the live stock development of the county without remembering the recent rise of the creamery work. Starting with a barrel churn and three gallons of cream the University Creamery, co-operative in its plan, has developed into a plant serving several markets. Farmers are sending their cream to their creamery. They know the returns they get. They are weeding out the "boarder" cows. Pure-bred blood is being demanded in the herds, for men are learning that the pure-bred with a record is the most profitable.

A Great Southern Farm.

One great expression of live stock interest is yet to be noted. In many ways it is the greatest. Reference is made to Cherokee Farm. About the city this farm is well known. It is the pride of everyone. In a few years it will be known everywhere as one of the greatest farms devoted to educational work. Cherokee farm has 600 acres, and cost $140,000 without any appurtenances, stock, equipment, etc. It has been placed under the supervision of the College of Agriculture of the State University by a vote of the citizens of the county to buy it for the further expansion of the state's agriculture. On this farm live stock is being put as rapidly as funds will permit. Live stock, the citizens of the county believe, will build up this farm, much of which has been handled carelessly. The reclamation of Cherokee farm is of first consideration. Legumes have been seeded. Legume crops are being raised. Legumes and live stock will bring back the soil. Then the ambition of the county will be realized. Cherokee Farm will be before the eyes of all the states as the expression of loyal citizens to the belief that agriculture is the chief industry in any fertile country, and that live stock makes that industry permanently prosperous.

The purchase of Cherokee farm will benefit the present and the next generation, too, for the boys and the girls of Tennessee will come in contact with the results that are worked out there. Farm boys of the state are members of poultry and corn clubs. Cherokee will give them information as to the best method of doing their work. Farm girls are members of canning and poultry clubs. They, too, will look to Cherokee for the information and the inspiration that will make their work a success. They are looking toward the old farm now and as the new farm is developed it will bring out new facts to help them. The State Experiment Station was equipped and this farm bought for the benefit of both sexes and it is serving them now.

This is the day of organization—not only for the merchant and manufacturer, but for the farmer as well. A movement is now on foot which has for its aim the formation of a co-operative selling agency for farm products, which will not only give the farmer a better price for his products, but will enable him to increase the output of his farm because of a ready market and fair prices for his products. Such an agency helps the farmer, the merchant and the consumer: the farmer because it enables him to find a ready market and secure fair prices for his products; the merchant because he can buy uniform products from a central point where each product is graded, and the consumer because it insures a plentiful supply of farm products at regular prices, not subject to fluctuations due to an over-supply in one line and a shortage in another.

Bankers Take Interest in Farming.

Merchants and farmers are beginning to realize that much can be accomplished through co-operation each with the other. The farmers understand better than they ever did the value of co-operation among themselves and the good results which invariably follow in the wake of close contact with their fellowmen and which results in the exchange of ideas on subjects in which they are jointly interested. Banks take the interest in the development of the farm which they do because they recognize in the development of the agricultural interests of a section a subject interrelated with the development of the industrial and commercial interests of the community, the one being inter-dependent upon the other. By offering premiums and spending money in ways calculated to raise the standard of the farmer and in otherwise directing his effort along more scientific and advanced agricultural lines, the banks are serving the farmer in a highly beneficial manner. Money which they spend in this direction is regarded by them as an investment and not an expense. In this connection, the development of the pure-bred live stock industry and the development of advanced agricultural methods go hand in hand together, and it is felt that the interest radiating from the first pure-bred live stock farm in the South will rapidly spread throughout the entire Southern section to the economic and financial benefit of all concerned, for the Cherokee Farm represents the first farm in the South where pure-bred live stock will be featured and advocated.

NEW YORK CAR STRIKE IS ON ITS LAST LEGS

New York, Sept. 29.—With the general strike movement on its last legs: some of the leaders predicted today that the long threatened tie-up would come Monday, when another labor convention will be held in Beethoven Hall.

Others asserted that at this convention the Central Federated Union leaders will put through a resolution formally calling off the "general suspension work" plan.

"The fight is still on," declared Hugh Frayne, chairman of the new Board of Strategy of thirty-five. "We have not surrendered the idea of a general tie-up of all trades in New York." He said the apparent failure was due to the fact that many unions had not had time to call a strike.

In saying his men could find no evidence of a sympathetic walk-out, Police Commissioner Woods added: "As far as we can ascertain, it's all over. Of course we shall continue the same vigilance, but we look for the ban to be raised in a few days, when everything will return to its normal status." His views seem to be those of all policemen on strike duty.

WARDLAW SCHOOL TO OPEN MONDAY

Handsomely Equipped Building is Already for the Fall Term.

57 PUPILS ENROLLED

More Will Be Accepted—Boys Will Be Taken for the Entire Day—Complete Facilities for Athletic Training.

All is ready for the opening of the 1916-17 season of the Wardlaw School, and the new building at 1639 Park avenue is handsomely equipped for the work of training the boys of Plainfield and vicinity preparatory to a college course.

Several new ideas in instruction are to be introduced by Professor Charles D. Wardlaw and other members of the faculty, the most promising among which is the schedule which makes of the institution a "boarding school," yet permits all the boys to live at home. The splendid examples of its predecessor, Mr. Deal's School for Boys, are not forgotten in plans for a higher training. That Mr. Wardlaw's ideas are popular with parents is shown by the enrollment already of fifty-seven students, with more than twenty applications yet to be acted upon.

The school term opens Monday of next week. It is not expected that any of the boys will be ready for work then, as many of them are away with their parents and will not return until later, but by October 15 there will be sixty-five or more students in regular attendance.

The faculty of the Wardlaw School for this year will be:

Charles D. Wardlaw, A. B., principal, English; William D. Hartshorne, A. B., A. M., associate principal, languages, physical director; George W. A. Lyon, A. B., M. D., mathematics; Ernest E. Noonan, A. B., elementary department; S. Frederick Smith, music; Charlotte C. Wardlaw, art; Abbie S. Hague, A. B., elementary department; Miss Maud Van Boskerk, piano instruction; Andrew Krog, manual training. Mr. Krog is pattern maker at the Bosch Magneto Works. Additions may be made to the faculty before the term is ended.

The school will assume control of all pupils for the entire day. It will take them at 8:45 a. m. The morning hours will be devoted to class work, with a half-hour period for play. An hour will be given for luncheon. A little later this will be served in the school to those who desire it. A period of study is provided in the afternoon program and two hours of athletics. The boys will be returned home in time for dinner and their minds will be free from school work until they report there again the next morning.

Every facility for athletic instruction is provided in the new school house. On the first floor there is a large, airy gymnasium, and directly behind it is an outdoor gym which will be used in good weather. Two tennis courts and a field that will be used for football, baseball and soccer are on the Arlington avenue side of the property. Basketball, soccer, football, baseball, hockey, tennis and golf will be taught in addition to swimming. The school has the use of the High School pool one afternoon each week. A cadet troop will be drilled by Mr. Wardlaw, who is an officer in Troop D, N. G. N. J.

Extensive improvements have been made in the building on Park avenue, and it is handsomely finished as well as adapted to school work on each of the three floors.

The school building is so arranged that the majority of class rooms have a southeast, south, or southwest exposure. The assembly hall, office and reception room, class rooms, and hat and coat rooms are on the first floor. The second floor contains class rooms, a play room and an art studio, besides the locker and shower rooms in the rear extension. On the third floor are the manual training room, the reading and game rooms, and the rest rooms for the masters.

"CHARLES HALE" WILL BE SENT BACK TO MICHIGAN

John Hale, alias Frank Stevens, caught here several weeks ago after he had stolen a horse in this city belonging to Den Gavin, will be sent back to Michigan, where he will complete the remainder of a fifteen-year term. He was arraigned before Judge James J. Connolly in the county court yesterday on the local charge, but Judge Connolly decided that the charge be dismissed and he be sent back to complete his term in the Joliet penitentiary.

Besides serving a term in the Massachusetts State prison, Hale was sentenced from Grand Rapids in the superior court on January 6, 1909, for assault and robbery to fifteen years at hard labor. At the end of five years and five months he was paroled, but left that section of the country and had been a fugitive ever since.

TROOP D PACKING UP TO COME HOME

All Other Work Abandoned—They Leave Next Wednesday.

By JAMES J. McNAMEE

Douglas, Ariz., Sept. 30.—Troop D is packing up for the trip home and will leave about Wednesday of next week. The men have abandoned all manouevers and nothing but arrangements for the trip home are being attempted. No orders have as yet been received, but General Funston has designated the First Cavalry Squadron and two batteries of field artillery for relief, and their officers have been told to get ready to leave immediately. The New Jersey men will leave for Sea Girt and should be there on October 9 or 10.

PUPILS WILL COME TO PLAINFIELD SCHOOLS

City Board of Education Agrees to Take Them at Reduced Rates.

At a meeting of the North Plainfield Township Board of Education last night, it was decided to send the pupils of that section to the Plainfield public schools and not to the North Plainfield schools, as has been the case for several years. Friction regarding the tuition rates is assigned as one of the reasons why this action was taken, although the fact that the North Plainfield authorities could not assure the township children adequate facilities was the main consideration.

Arrangements have been made to convey thirty-four pupils from Watchung to the Plainfield High School. A tuition rate of $55 will be paid for each child. In addition, the pupils of the grammar grades in the Watchung school will be conveyed to the grammar grades in the High School building. This agreement is satisfactory to the township authorities and has been accepted by Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, of the local schools.

WEDDING CULMINATES INTERESTING ROMANCE

The marriage of Miss Amy Agnes Orchard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Orchard, of Birmingham, England, to Frederick H. von Dreele, of 725 East Sixth street, this city, which took place at the parsonage of the First M. E. church, Thursday night, marks the culmination of a romance begun in England. Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson performed the ceremony. The couple will reside on East Sixth street.

The bride and bridegroom have known each other for some time and when the arrangements were completed for the wedding, the latter sent for Miss Orchard and she arrived in Plainfield during the past week and they were married. Mr. von Dreele is engaged in the trucking buiness in New York.

MISS CROWLEY BRIDE OF FREEMAN L. PHILLIPS

Miss Mary C. Crowley, of Chatham place, the borough, became the bride of Freeman L. Phillips, of 33 Linden avenue, last evening, at a ceremony performed at the latter address. The Rev. D. W. Skellenger, pastor of Hope chapel, officiated.

Miss Emma C. Crowley and Charles Crowley, sister and brother of the bride, acted as bridesmand and best man for the couple. Following the wedding a reception was held at the home. Guests were present from Scranton, Newark and this city. The couple will reside in the borough.

AUCTION VICTIMS IMPROVING.

The three women who were injured by the running away at the Flanders Park auction sale at Scotch Plains Thursday, are all recovering. Mrs. Charles Wicht, of Leland avenue, who it was at first thought had a fractured skull, is not as severely injured as was expected, but cuts and buries will confine her to bed for several weeks. Miss Cecelia Ford, of Scotch Plains, had several fractured ribs and bruises, while Mrs. Emma Kohl, of Elizabeth, will be around in a day or two.

TO REOPEN SUB-STATION.

Sub-stations of the Public Library, which have been closed during the summer on account of the infantile epidemic, will be opened again next week. The station in the Washington School will be open as usual Monday evenings, and the station at the Jefferson School on Friday evenings.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Smith, of Madison avenue, has returned home ofater a vacation spent at Manasquan.

METHODISTS PLAN FOR ANNIVERSARY

ELABORATE PROGRAM

Celebration Will Begin Tomorrow and Continue to October 15—Former Pastors to Preach—Bishop Welch Here Tomorrow.

The Monroe Avenue Methodist church, of this city, will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary with an elaborate program of exercises extending from October 1 to the 15th, the opening services being held tomorrow morning, when Bishop Herbert Welch will preach. He was the first bishop to be elected at the last General Conference of the church. He will leave late in the Fall for the Orient and will be located at Seoul, Korea, as resident bishop.

In addition to the preaching by Bishop Welch tomorrow morning, Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, the first regularly appointed pastor, will preach at 7:45 o'clock in the evening.

The celebration will continue on Wednesday night, October 4, when Rev. H. B. Munson, pastor of the Nostrand Avenue M. E. church, Brooklyn, will preach. On Friday, October 6, at 7:45 o'clock, there will be an historical and social evening. Rev. F. J. Hubach, district superintendent and former pastor, will preach on Sunday evening, October 8, at 10:45, and in the evening at 7:45 o'clock, Rev. George Mooney, of Paterson, a former pastor, will occupy the pulpit.

There will be a religious service on Wednesday evening, October 11, with a sermon by Rev. Stephen J. Herben, pastor of the M. E. church of Westfield, to be followed Friday night, October 13, at 7:45 o'clock with an organizations' social. The celebration will close on Sunday, October 15, when at 10:45 o'clock that morning, Gerhard J. Schilling, connected with the foreign missionary work of the church, will speak, and at 7:45 o'clock that evening Mr. Schilling will exhibit a series of pictures covering foreign missionary fields.

The organization of a Methodist church in the West End grew out of a demand for a denominational institution in that part of the city. The original congregation was composed largely of the members of what was known as the Evona Union Mission who held their preaching and Sunday-school services in a building located at West Front street and Clinton avenue. In addition to these were a number of Methodists, mostly from the First M. E. church, who had thrown in their lot with the new organization.

The purchase of the original plot of ground and the church edifice erected thereon were the result of a local missionary effort of the First M. E. church, which resulted in establishing what is known as Grace M. E. church, of North Plainfield, as well as the Monroe Avenue church. The chapel was dedicated on Sunday, April 5, 1891, the dedication sermon being preached by Bishop Andrews, of New York.

On December 31, 1896, the property was turned over by the First M. E. church to the Monroe Avenue church. At the time of the dedication the Rev. Dr. Charles Bayard Mitchell was pastor of the First M. E. church and it was his spirit of missionary zeal that was largely influential in bringing about the establishment of both the institutions above referred to. At the last General Conference of the church held last spring at Saratoga, Dr. Mitchell was elected a bishop.

BIRTHDAY PARTY GIVEN FOR BERTRAM HARTSHORN

A pleasant surprise party was tendered Bertram M. Hartshorn, of 116 Madison avenue, last evening, when about thirty of his friends called to help him celebrate his natal day. The evening was enjoyably spent in playing cards and singing. All enjoyed the dancing by the three piece orchestra, composed of Herman Stadler at the piano, Robert Hartshorn drums, and Arthur Hartshorn at the violin. Vocal solos were rendered by Miss Idabel Conover, accompanied by Miss Carolyn Dentz on the piano, Harrison B. Fahn, Howard Dentz, Robert Dentz, Robert Hartshorn and Charles Bornmann, who were accompanied by Miss Grace Shipman and Herman Stadler on the piano and Arthur Hartshorn on the violin.

The home was attractively decorated for the occasion, the parlor being in red and green, while the dining room color scheme was in orange. The table centerpiece was a large bouquet of marigolds. At a late hour refreshments were served and the guests departed, wishing Mr. Hartshorn many happy returns of the day. He was the recipient of many gifts. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Bertram M. Hartshorn. Friends were present from New York, Brooklyn, Netherwood and this city.

TRINITY S. S. AT 9:45 A. M.

The Bible school of Trinity Reformed church will meet at 9:45 a. m. on Sunday, and not at 2:30 p. m. as stated in the announcement yesterday. The change to afternoon sessions will not be made until November 5.

2D ANNIVERSARY OF FLOWER GUILD

INTERESTING REPORTS

Mrs. John W. Stewart, National President of Guild, and Albert R. Lawton, of New York, Tell of Great Work Accomplished.

Observance of the second anniversary of the Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild at the First Baptist church last evening, brought out a large number of friends of the work. The exercises were opened with scripture reading by the Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, followed by prayer by Rev. Dr. B. S. Hudson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church. Selections by the guild orchestra and quartet were also rendered during the evening.

The report of the secretary of the guild showed that 71 people have been benefitted during the past year. The report further showed that 50 citizens have contributed flowers, including Grace Episcopal church and Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church from their Children's Day exercises, also flowers from a home wedding. Sixty-three bunches were taken to Bonnie Burn, 50 to Muhlenberg Hospital, two boxes to Jersey City, besides contributing to the 2,500 sick people in the city. The latter are remembered each week. The Garden Club donated 100 glasses of jelly and the Park Avenue church Harvest Home and Irving School, together with many invidiuals, sent approximately 25 bushels of fruit and vegetables.

In his remarks to the gathering, Joseph M. Harper, the president of the guild, said in part: "Two years ago the second of last April, the Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild came into existence. On account of the Biederwolf evangelistic campaign it was thought best to postpone the second anniversary until the fall.

"Our aim during the past year has been to make the Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild a permanent organization in Plainfield. To do this it was necessary to interest the people of Plainfield in our work. We saw plainly it was an impossibility to reach these people through our monthly meetings unless we made these meetings interesting and attractive. Therefore the guild orchestra was organized under the leadership of Mrs. J. C. Evans. The plan of inviting a young people's society to conduct the opening devotional services was adopted and various ministers were invited to make short addresses.

"It is not the large things in life that are the most important. A little act of service rendered a brother in his hour of greatest need that the world knows nothing about is what is recorded in heaven. It is these little insignificant acts of service that are apt to serve as stepping stones to greater opportunity. Let us then strive to put the best that is in us into our work of service and we will be sure some day to hear Christ say: 'Well done, inasmuch as ye have done unto the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me.'"

An interesting talk on the work of the national work of the guild was given by Mrs. John Wood Stewart, president and organizer of the National Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild. Mrs. Stewart is a resident of New York. Her talk was illustrated with stereopticons of what has been done in the gardens, hospitals and homes by the children and adult members of the guild in New York.

Albert R. Lawton, an active worker in the "Catch My Pal Society" of the Twentieth Street Friends' Mission of New York city, also addressed the members and told of what his organization was doing in the way of uplifting the down and out men of the city. The society is providing refreshments and recreation to men and assisting them in leading useful lives.

The service was brought to a close with benediction by the Rev. Dr. Bidney S. Hudson, pastor of Park Avenue Baptist church. The quartet was led by Elwood Waller, while Mrs. J. C. Evans directed the orchestra renditions. The illustrated pictures were in charge of Rodman Parvin and C. R. Banks, and the decorations in the rooms were made by Robert Love.

WINTER SCHEDULE AT Y. W. C. A.

Season's Activities Will Be Resumed at Popular Center on October 16.

ANNOUNCE FALL RALLY

All of the Various Departments and Classes Ready for Opening Under the Direction of Miss Katharine L. Miller, General Secretary.

Winter activities at the Young Women's Christian Association will begin on Monday, October 16, at which time the various departments in the physical and educational classes will commence instructions. Registrations will be received at the office of the association during the week previous. Instructors will be at the building for consultation all day Thursday and Friday, October 5 and 6, and Monday and Tuesday, October 9 and 10. At present the schedule includes twenty different classes and eight clubs. Announcement is made, however, that additional classes will be formed upon sufficient request in cooking, current events, languages, pattern drafting, public speaking, ribbon flower making and stenciling.

The Y. W. C. A. offers the young women of the city the use of a well equipped building, open from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m., serving as a place to rest, meet friends, or consult directory, maps, time tables, employment bureau, etc. Transients are accommodated from one night to two weeks at a reasonable rate. Young women have the use of a circulating library of 1,600 volumes, current magazines and daily newspapers. Membership means the pleasure of social gatherings, clubs for study and fun, the opportunity of making real friends, the opportunity for the study of practical home-making arts, the opportunity of gaining health, strength and grace through a well equipped gymnasium, the chance to enrich one's mind and life by Bible study, to broaden one's interests by mission study, to gain inspiration from splendid talks on Sunday afternoons, and the development of a Christian faith and experience through fellowship and service.

The dining-room of the association is open week days during the noon hours for all who wish to bring their lunches. Soup, cocoa, tea and milk are served at 3 and 4 cents a cup. Fifteen-cent suppers on Monday and Saturday evenings are served to business women. The latter is served from 5 to 7 p. m. Girls who take a membership in the association are privileged to attend all social and religious gatherings, take part in sports and recreation, join clubs and use the library.

A vesper service is held one Sunday each month at 4 p. m., with a good speaker and special music. On other Sundays there is a "Home Hour," with singing, reading and informal talks. During the second week in November the week of prayer will be observed in common with all associations in the world. A lenten lecture will be conducted as usual, the speaker to be announced later.

Miss Myrtle L. Fedderman will again instruct in the craft work, such as basketry, chair-caning, rope, reed work, wood-blocking and pottery. These classes proved immensely popular among the members last year and already the classes are near the limit of registration. The dressmaking will be under the direction of Miss Isabel Scarborough. GASOLENE EXPLOSION WRECKS AUTO GARAGE

Albert Manning is Severely Burned When Flames Come in Contact With Lantern.

Fumes from a quantity of gasoline coming in contact with a lighted lantern, caused an explosion which completely demolished the large automobile garage on Albert Manning's property at South Plainfield about 6 o'clock last night, entailing a loss of about $1,500 on building and a large quantity of materials stored there. No insurance was carried.

Mr. Manning went to the garage to get some gasoline for his touring car, which fortunately was not in the building. The explosion occurred just as Mr. Manning stepped into the garage and before he could escape he was severely burned about the hands and face. The South Plainfield fire department responded to an alarm, but was not able to save the structure.

PLAINFIELD TRUST ADOPTS NEW PLAN

After Nov. 1 Every Checking Account Will Be Placed on Statement Basis.

A new plan for simplifying the banking of its depositors is about to be introduced by the Plainfield Trust Company and it is anticipated that it will be very popular. By November 1, it is expected that a radical change will be made in the company's bookkeeping system, whereby the balancing of pass books will be done away with and every checking account put on a statement basis. These statements which will be made up on new model Burroughs adding and subtracting machines, will be ready for delivery after the first of each month.

Many of the leading banks of the country have adopted this modern mechanical bookkeeping system and the simplicity and accuracy of the plan are commending it to more and more up-to-date banking institutions.

Because of its progressive policy the Plainfield Trust Company is making remarkable progress and its disposition to provide its customers with every banking convenience is winning for it a constantly increasing number of friends.

MRS. ANNE GRIFFIN DEAD IN 90TH YEAR

URGE A RENEWAL OF U-BOAT WAR

German Journals Demand Defiance to United States' Threats.

DENY WE ARE NEUTRAL

Any German Official Who Fails to Use All Weapons Should Be Hanged, Says Chancellor—French Advance Lines.

Berlin, Sept. 30.—The most influential organs throughout German today are waging a campaign for a renewal of ruthless submarine warfare, which was halted on the threat of the American Government to break off diplomatic relations.

Believing that Imperial Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg's statement that any German official who failed to make use of all available weapons ought to be hanged indicates the Gerernment is willing to be forced to renew submarine operations, the papers are basing their demand upon the activities of the American Aerial Squadron in the French army and the continued shipment of war munitions to the Allies.

Ready for New Aattack.

London, Sept. 30.—Although rainy weather continues today on the Somme front, a renewal of intense artillery operations on the French front indicates that General Foch is planning to renew the attack.

The British advance is closing in still further on both flanks of the German positions before Bapaume. In a desperate battle on General Haig's right the Germans regained part of 500 yards of trenches captured by the British, but were driven out again.

French Advance Lines.

Paris, Sept. 30.—French troops east of Combles that are co-operating with the British in an attempt to encircle the Germans at Baupaume, have advanced their lines. The communique issued by the French war office today stated that bad weather is hindering operations, but that the French have made more progress north of Rancourt.

2 Steamers Sink.

London, Sept. 30.—Lloyds reports the sinking of the British Steamer Sallus, 1,752 tons, and the Norwegian Steamer Vindeggen.

Beat Off Counter Attacks.

Heavy German counter attacks delivered during rainstorms on the Somme front last night were beaten off, says the official report of the British War Office today. A division of the new British army took part in this latest burst of fighting and behaved with great gallantry.

Take Serbian Position.

Sofia, Sept. 30.—The capture of a position from the Servians at Kaimakcalan Height, northeast of Florina, was reported by the Bulgarian War Office.

STEADFAST CONFIDENCE.

The Following Statement Should Form Conclusive Proof of Merit to Every Plainfield Reader.

Could stronger proof of the merit of any remedy be desired than the statements of grateful endorsers who say their confidence has been undiminished by lapse of time? These are the kind of statements that are appearing constantly in your local papers for Doan's Kidney Pills. They are twice-told and confirmed, with new enthusiasm. Can any reader doubt the following? It's from a Plainfield citizen.

Mrs. J. Driscoll, 540 West Front street, Plainfield, says: "I suffered from a dull pain across my back and sides that clung to me constantly. Any hard work seemed to increase it. I also suffered from severe headaches and dizziness when stooping and was generally weak and depressed. I tried plasters and many other medicines, but without relief. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at L. W. Randolph's Pharmacy, finally relieved me." (Statement given August 28, 1905.)

On August 7, 1916, Mrs. Driscoll said: "I have told many friends about Doan's Kidney Pills and they, too, have been benefitted by this medicine and praise it as highly as I did. If ever I have such ailments again, I would take nothing but Doan's Kidney Pills."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Driscoll has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Advt.

AUXILIARY REQUIRES ADDITIONAL FUNDS

Help for Troop D Members and Families Needed for Another Month.

The Volunteers' Auxiliary has not appealed to the public for funds for some time, because of the fact that it was anticipated that the troop would be back in Plainfield before additional money would be required. This is not the case, however, and there is every reason to believe that the support of the Auxiliary will be required for another month in the interest of dependents at home as well as to aid the troop in the matter of the purchase of various necessities that they require at the border. That the Plainfield people have been generous is evidenced by the long list of contributors that follows:

E. R. Ackerman, R. F. Murray, Leighton Calkins, Mrs. S. B. Joost, Miss E. B. Hartridge, B. O. Bowers, E. F. Feickert, Anonymous, F. C. Colton, Rev. B. M. Bogan, Mrs. Caroline T. Lincoln, W. H. To date $1,153.50 has been subscribed, and after making disbursements for the month of September, there remains a balance on hand of but $42.49. To meet its October obligations the Auxiliary will need about $250. Those families who are dependent upon the Auxiliary for aid still need the money, as conditions have not changed in connection with their affairs, and it is hoped that this small additional amount will be quickly forthcoming. Contributions may be sent to E. F. Feickert, treasurer, care of The State Trust Company, or to George P. Mellick, chairman of the Auxiliary.

CIVIC ASSOCIATION MEETING.

A BLOW AT DEMOCRATIC GOVERNMENT

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

In the legislative grant to railway employes of ten hours' pay for eight hours of work, President Wilson professes to behold a demonstration of the power of the Government over the contending factions of labor and capital. No more grotesque reversal of the common understanding seems possible. In the precipitate enactment by Congress of a measure which, in so far as it went, was wholly acceptable to the unions, wholly unacceptable to the railroads, and generally condemned by the public at large, enforced as the demand for it was by the threat of a nation-wide paralysis of business, the ordinary observer can perceive nothing less portentious than an assertion of the power of organized coercion over a thoroughly intimidated Government.

Recalling Mr. Wilson's exceptional genius of psychological self-revelation, and crediting him with being a truthful man, we must accept his word as to the actuality of his peculiar vision; we must acquit him, therefore, of political cowardice, of partisan ambition, and of deliberate intention of treachery to the supreme interest of the people as a whole. But in proportion as we attribute to him moral integrity, we are compelled by this extraordinary expression of opinion to believe that the faculties of his intellect are tottering toward complete dethronement.

It seems incredible, but apparently must be true, that the visionary mind, running unctuously along the single track of its idealistic obsessions, may come to be so far removed from the common perception of fact and truth that defeat appears as victory, shame as glory, and the approaching degradation of a nation enslaved seems as the new freedom of a beatific salvation. Mr. Wilson, of course, may be right, and the unenlightened masses of our ordinary citizens may be wrong in their belief that the Government has surrendered incontinently to the demands of organized labor; but if so, the general distribution of rational incompetence among the American people surpasses the wildest estimates of our most pessimistic alienists.

Mr. Wilson finds himself free to admit that his assumed victory of the Government over special class interests is not a final solution of the questions at issue; and in this persuasion those of us who must regard it as a surrender most heartily concur. But while the President, in the blissful uplifting of his vision, recognizes only the difficulties involved in carrying to completion what he conceives to be an excellent beginning, we of the uninspired multitude are confronted with a far more disheartening task, that of rebuilding from its foundations the democratic form and substance of representative government which has fallen in ruins under the rule of his administration and party.

It is not as though this abdication of representative democracy were the first to be charged against the party in power; the shackles of a hundred million supposedly free people have been riveted, double riveted, and now triple riveted. Three years ago Congress, with the President's approval, forbade the employment against labor organizations of certain funds appropriated for the enforcement of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. Two years ago those organizations boldly demanded a complete exemption from the provisions of that law, and the ensuing rush of the legislative puppets of labor to do their bidding afforded a spectacle for the gods of unionism seated brazenly in the galleries of the House and Senate. The latest frenzied abandonment in practice of the democracy already dead in principle was the inevitable outcome of a consistent career of political cowardice and representative treachery extending through more than three years of progressive misgovernment. Frequent contentions between employers and employes are the natural and unavoidable consequences of differing points of view; but betrayal of the public trust is not an essential characteristic of legislative conduct. Hence the root of the remediable evil is not to be discerned in the conflicting interests of capital and labor, as Mr. Wilson seems to believe, but in the possession by the American people of a government utterly and hopelessly incompetent to deal with them in a manner of wisdom, justice and courage.

The remedy for the present conditions, then, does not lie with Mr. Wilson and his subservient Congress, but with the American people. It is not credible that a President, Senators and Representatives who have piled error on error, surrender on surrender, discrimination on discrimination, can be converted from folly to wisdom, from weakness to strength, from the servitude of injustice to the service of justice. It is evident, therefore, that nothing less than a wholesale removal from office of the politicians guilty of representative treachery can check the course of misrepresentative government, and that a re-establishment of genuine democratic rule will require the election of men clear in an understanding of the rights of the people, both individually and as a whole, and firm in a determination to uphold them. Of this duty and privilege, fortunately, the voters have not yet been robbed by the partisans of class legislation; and we may hope that the coming election will witness the outburst of a renewed spirit of the old freedom of true American liberty.

Mr. Wilson's record is patent to all, and respecting his candidacy the minds of the electorate for the most part are made up, each in accordance with its capacity of understanding. But if the average voter is to act advisedly it will be necessary for him to go to some pains to inform himself of the character and disposition of candidates for Congress. Persons who desire the conduct of government for the exclusive advantage of the present most privileged class have in the labor organizations an authoritative source of information concerning the preferable tools of their propaganda; but the free citizen unfortunately lacks an equally reliable means of determining who among the candidates presented to him will defend his freedom most ably and conscientiously and strive most earnestly to protect the rights of all classes alike. This being the case, the obligation of careful preparation for voting rests with the greater force on every man who holds sacred a belief that the government of the whole people, by the whole people, for the whole people is the only government of right and justice.

One short month ago unqualified Americanism with a thoroughgoing preparation for the national defense stood alone as the supreme issue in the minds of patriotic citizens; but this latest surrender of our rulers to the demands of organized labor has forced upon public recognition the equally grave issue of government by collective coercion. As the one involves the momentous problem of our international destiny, so the other surpasses all other questions of domestic concern. Both alike deserve most serious consideration in the present critical period of American development, and a wrong determination of either may result in irreparable injury to the nation and lead ultimately to the total destruction of our free institutions.

"HUB" STINE BELIEVES WESTFIELD CAN WIN

Although He Has Light Squad "Hub" Has High Hopes.

Herbert "Hub" Stine, the North Plainfield athlete who is coaching the Westfield High School football team, dropped into the office this morning in order that he might announce to the world that, although Westfield High may have unusually light talent this year, nevertheless the Union county title will not be allowed to go by without a battle.

"Hub" expects a colored candidate who is said to be as adept at the gridiron game as Bill Daniels. He also said that he will have a clever backfield, although the line will be made up of light, but tough and ambitious material. Stine will get a chance to look over Plainfield High School's stock on Friday. "Hub" believes in scouting only when his rivals are playing. He says that he detests so-called "scouting" at practice and that he will not make use of such a means.

When the Westfield manager and the coach read in the Daily Press that Rahway was without a game for October 21, negotiations were started at once, with the result that Westfield High School now has a chance to caapture the Union county title.

Here visitors can see the beautiful hand-block designs newly printed on fine Upholstering weight cottons draped over lounges and large reading chairs to illustrate just how they will look when in actual use.

There are flowers and more flowers and yet more flowers—in most effective colors.

Prices are 50c, 75c, $1.15 yard.

Third Gallery, New Building.

Lace Curtains from Abroad

Seven cases of lace curtains came off the steamers from France last week, and we have had three partly filled cases again this week—yet the bulk of our large French, English and Swiss importations arrived even earlier.

Customers tell us that our stocks of Princess lace and of the old-fashioned tambour curtains are unique.

There are wonderful collections of French handmade Marie Antoinette curtains, English copies of Period styles, Swiss-made Brussels and Irish Point curtains, and a wealth of beautiful real filet, cluny and hand-embroidered curtains from France.

Also our American makers have been busy and there are all sorts of fine little nets and scrim curtains and plenty of the creditable American-made Marie Antoinette lace curtains.

Every size, every price and convenient places where one can be restfully seated and see them.

Every One Who Loves Babies Is Invited to the Opening on Monday of

The Baby's Own Shop

Paris loves her babies! And shows it in a very characteristic fashion. She designs fashions just for them. So to Paris we went in search of the prettiest pretty things for small New Yorkers—and came back with our trunks full of most fascinating dainties. First of all may we introduce—

The New Silhouette for Babies

For the tiny baby it is the Empire line.
For little two and three-year olds, it is the taille au bust.
For four and six-year children the normal waistline and forme circulaire.
Dresses illustrating these silhouettes are among the new Paris things to be shown.

Original Model Frocks by

PAQUIN JEANNE LANVIN
FAIRYLAND LINA MOUTON

One of the Paquin dresses is a rose taffeta with an old blue ceinture, a little modesty guimpe, and tiny chiffon underfrillies. It is the copy of a party frock worn by a little Royal maid of the First Empire.

Lina Mouton has devised a net frock which falls loose and full from the shoulders over a more fitted underdress with girdle of rosebuds.

Fairyland contributes a prune colored coat militaire with a beret to match.

And there are so many more that we haven't space to mention them; individual and unusual party frocks for little girls of 4 to 6 years and some quaint serge or tricotine day dresses and beautiful little coats.

The Paris Hats

What exquisite white and pastel colored creations as well as the more practical darker shades. Here is the tam, the beret, the high crown Directoire hat and even a delicious little aviateur bonnet in pink felt.

Lanvin's cherry velvet hat embroidered in gold deserves a paragraph all to itself. Prices $5 to $45.

Christening Caps

Heaps of real laces and fairy-like hand-embroidery make these caps fine enough even for this first important occasion of a baby's life. $4.50 to $22.50.

Silk Novelties

The conteur bib which ties about the waist, pillow covers in novel shapes, hand-embroidered sonliers, little neck jackets embroidered in soutache braid and attractive new afghans.

Hand-Embroidered Lingerie Dresses

Miracles of needle work. There are simple hand-made frocks as well as very elaborate christening robes.

Lingerie and Blouses for Young Girls

Adjoining the Babies' Own Shop, is the Girls' Store, where we shall show some new negligee capes—copies of bonnets worn in Picardy, Brittany and Russia.

Also some new Basque blouses; one all white and silver; another in pink jersey with silver plush bandings and many more.

And Last of All come exquisite silken lingerie. The new culotte combination chiffon and taffeta dancing petticoats and a dainty brassiere and underbodice.

We can give but a hint of all these new things. We hope you will come and see them, for we believe that not often has New York seen such a tastefully chosen collection.

SERVANT PROBLEM IN HANDS OF ARCHITECT

Mary Roberts, of the Craftsman, Discusses Interesting Questions.

"The servant problem lies in the hands of the architect," says Mary Roberts, editor of The Craftsman, who keeps house and knows well what are the difficulties that beset the average home maker. "It is not our attitude, it is the architect who is going to help us out of our dilemma," she went on. "There is no use in talking now about improving the servaint problem by changing our attitude toward our employes. The time is coming when all women will have to do their own work; all women, not just the poor ones, who can not afford service.

"In the future, with an eye to the housewife's need at some time, if not all the time, to do her own work, architects are going to build houses more and more with three fundamental ideas in mind—permanency, simplicity and beauty. If the woman at the head of the house is going to make up her mind to do her own work, or a part of it, with the least possible friction and a maximum of happiness, she must also make up her mind to do away with fashion in furniture and in house decoration. She must make up her mind to live in a house that is built attractively in the beginning and will maintain that form of comfort and attractiveness to the end, not a house that will easily submit to alteration. For example, much of her furniture will be built in. She, and the woman who cleans for her, will have no heavy divans to push or lift around every cleaning day, for these things will be built in with the house."

MICHAEL AHERN, LONG ILL, TAKES LIFE

North Avenue Restaurant Proprietor Shot Himself Yesterday Afternoon.

Despondency over ill health led Michael Ahern, aged 52, to commit suicide in his bed room on the third floor over the restaurant, at 119 North avenue, of which he was proprietor, yesterday afternoon by shooting himself in the temple. Complaining of feeling ill, Ahern had gone to his room shortly afternoon and it was not until after 2 o'clock that his wife found him stretched on his bed with a revolver clutched in his hand. Dr. Ellis W. Hedges was called but pronounced the man dead for several hours. County Physician Wescott granted a burial permit and the body was taken to the undertaking parlors of P. Casey & Son.

That Ahern brooded over the taking of his life is evidenced by his actions for several days previous, which at the time passed unnoticed. Thursday morning he took his son, Howard, into the restaurant and spent several hours making the lad open and close the safe and showed him a large part of his business correspondence and books.

Yesterday morning he appeared in a local sporting goods store and looked at a number of revolvers, at last purchasing a cheap U. S. 32", which after being shown how it worked, he ordered sent to his place of business C. O. D. No one was in the restaurant at the time he received the weapon, but shortly after 11 o'clock he was talking with several men on North avenue, and said that his business was in excellent condition. It was at noontime that he went to his room. Later those in the store said they heard something that appeared to be the slamming of a blind, but it was probably the shot that sunffed out his life.

Going to call him about 2 o'clock to go into the store, his wife found him and immediately telephoned to Dr. Hedges, who upon his arrival called in the police. The bullet had gone in the man's right temple and came out in the middle of his forehead, death being instantaneous.

Ahern came from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., last May, when he purchased the restaurant from J. B. McDonald. He had been in the business for thirty-five years and for years had operated a similar establishment in his home city, where his brother is proprietor of a large hotel. He was born in Baltimore, but lived many years in Wilkes-Barre.

Besides a wife, Ahern is survived by two daughters, Lillian and Emily, three sons, Stanley, Howard and William and two brothers, Cornelius of Baltimore and John, of Wilkes-Barre, and two sisters, Mrs. Mary F. Rogers and Mrs. Catherine Harris, both of Baltimore.

RALLY DAY AND GO-TO-CHURCH SUNDAY.

"Ah! what would the wold be to us
If the children were no more?
We should dread the desert behind us
Worse than the dark before."

Thus sang Longfellow, and so many of us have felt this last summer and early fall as the children have been conspicuous by their absence from our places of worship. Tomorrow will be a glad day in all our Plainfield churches and in the churches of many another town and city. We shall welcome back the children and the younger young people with a warmth that will make them feel how much we have missed them, how rejoiced we are to have them with us once more.

It is an ill wind that blows no one any good and after the depression and disaster and desolation of the past months may yet come, under divine providence, a glad reaction, a gracious sequel. The readjustment may require a few weeks but I confidently believe that the Bible schools of the land will presently take a forward step in every way remarkable. Pastors and church officials will cherish a deeper interest in their boys and girls and these in turn will be more constant in attendance and more eager to learn; while teachers will be doubly faithful in the discharge of their duties Few of the latter, it is hoped, will have the experience of the lady to whom a former Sunday-school pupil said that he did not remember a single thing that he had heard in her class. Seeking comfort from a friend the lady was told with the sincere purpose of cheering her, "Oh well! you know some things are better forgotten than remembered."

Plainfield may well be proud of its Bible schools, with their capable officers and devoted instructors. No place with which the writer is acquainted directly or otherwise can greatly excel it in these respects. For size, for efficiency, for aggressiveness, the Bible schools of Plainfield rank high, but good as they are they can be made even better. Let one of the fixed determinations in all hearts tomorrow be that this possibility shall become a reality.

The Sunday-school is a vital part of the church, it is not a thing apart from it, it is the church in germ, the church at study, the church in prospect. Let no one lightly value its supreme worth nor underestimate its mighty potency. It is a big work and there is room in it for the best brains in the country. College settlements, civic leagues, municipal play-grounds are good, but the Sunday-school is a door to each, and greater than all.

The late William Reynolds tells of visiting a town of twelve hundred inhabitants which was a county-seat and where for more than forty years there had not been a church or Sunday-school. It was full of saloons and as one might expect when saloons abound the jail was full, and worse than that the prisoners were so numerous that they had to be chained on the outside of the building. Searching over the town he finally discovered three live Christians and with them organized a Sunday-school. Seven years after, visiting the same place, upon coming into the town he counted five steeples rising from as many churches, and entering the place itself found not a saloon nor so much as one criminal in confinement, and all the outgrowth of his previous visit.

This is not a fairy-story but the statement of a fact and is a sample of what a Sunday-school does for a community. Is the writer wrong therefore in saying that it is a vital part of the church and that the church proper, as we commonly distinguish, though the distinction is misleading, owes to the Bible school its utmost oversight, sympathy and support?

Tomorrow should be a fitting prelude to the Go-to-Church Sunday two weeks later. On that day, October 15th, the churches of Plainfield should be filled from front to rear, floor and gallery, with eager, enthusiastic worshippers and among them should be hosts of children for whatever the hour of service, and whatever the form of worship, that church is sadly defective that does not have in its congregation many children and that Bible school is equally lacking that has not in its membership scores of adults.

May October 1st not only be a prelude and prophesy of October 15th and the Sabbath between, but may October 15th itself be an indication of permanent future conditions in Plainfield. Let us then rally tomorrow and week by week henceforth and ever to the standard of our common faith, the cross of the Lord Jesus Christ, by which sign we conquer.

"Lizzie Laws."

Out in Missouri, where the folks are reported as desiring to be shown, they seem to have a name for everything.

Statutes framed interfering with personal liberty are termed "Lizzie Laws."

By way of a sort of annex to the United States, asks the St. Louis Post Dispatch, why can't we institute a comfortable smoking room and buffet for men only, where those who prefer liberty to death by boredom may occasionally withdraw from the Lizzies, yawn, stretch and enjoy some of the old vaunted prerogatives that used to make America seem worth while as a habitat of genus homo?

Is a jail or penitentiary the only place left for a man to go who would have such liberties as remain to him guaranteed from further infringement.

Plainfield Theatre.

"The Pottery Shop," featuring Lee Baggs and his company of players, continued to be the headline act at the Plainfield Theatre yesterday afternoon and last night. It is seldom that Plainfield vaudeville patrons are given such an opportunity to see such strong acting in so small a sketch. Lee Beggs' characterization of the old inventor, whose works have been stealthily taken by the wealthy owner of the city pottery works, and whose daughter suffers at the hands of the rich man's son, is carried out in realistic manner. "The Pottery Shop" will be seen at the theatre for the last time tonight.

The remainder of the well balanced bill contains Niblo's Talking Birds, who possess human intelligence; Dealy and Cramer, comedians; Rose and Fowler, sister team, and Budd and Clair, comedy kings. Pathe pictures intermingle with the acts.

Monday afternoon and night the theatre will be given over to the Maids of America, musical comedy. The vaudeville bill for Tuesday and Wednesday, which will open on Tuesday afternoon, will have as its headline feature Bob Fitzsimmons in a unique act. The well known fighter will be assisted by his son, Bob, Jr. Four other acts will round out the show.

The Maids of America Company, featuring the well known comedian, Al K. Hall, will be seen at the Plainfield Theatre, for one day only Monday, October 2, matinee and night.

If you are interested in automobiles you should not overlook this production, as every car of any importance is represented in one of the scenes. A car is also assembled by all the chorus girls on the stage before the audience. This is something out of the ordinary and well worth seeing. There are twenty musical numbers offered—some are of the popular up-to-date character and others were especially written for this production, such as "Queen of Nowhere," "Lingerie Ball," "My Honolulu Girl," "When the Band Begins to Play," "Frisco Bear," "When Uncle Sam Leads the Band," "Don't Rag My Melody," and many others.

Hall's eccentricities and funny actions have caused much amusement wherever the show has appeared this season, he being ably assisted by Bobby Barry, of the famous family of comedians. Mr. Barry recently ended a two years' tour through Australia, where he was starred in the Geo. M. Cohan's productions with big success, he has proven a fine asset for Hall for producing comedy. Miss Billie Hill, considered the most perfect formed woman on the stage, is the prima donna. She wears many pretty dresses. Alfaretta Symonds, a very lively soubrette, keeps things moving along with good speed as well as offering several numbers. Others are Mary Mack, Harvey Brooks, Joe Weston, Bob Calvert, Tony Shanem, Ed Bisland and a pretty chorus of twenty-four girls.

Proctor's Theatre

Yesterday marked a new epoch in the history of local amusements when First Run Paramount Pictures, recognized as the highest type photoplay features in existence, were introduced to local film fans at Proctor's Theatre. This is a big coup indeed and it was only after long negotiation and the expenditure of a large amount of money that the local management of Proctor's was able to consummate this arrangement. The initial attraction presented yesterday was "The Heart of Paula" with Lenore Ulrich in the leading role, and many pleasing comments were heard upon the good judgment of the management in selecting such a splendid attraction for introducing First Run Paramount Pictures to the patrons. Today the Paramount offering is "The Race," starring Victor Moore and Anita King. Capital has been made of Anita King's recent coast to coast automobile trip as the "Paramount Girl" for a thrilling story. A lot of exciting scenes have been provided, some of them actually taken during Anita's journey, and Hector Turnbull and Clinton Stagg have provided a good story to weave them together. The subject is to say the least out of the ordinary. The camera has looked out on unusual views, and the whole atmosphere of the piece is different from what one usually sees. The added production today is a Metro offering starring Viola Dana, entitled "The Flower of No Man's Land." John J. Collins has written and directed this beautiful production especially for Miss Dana. It brings into vivid contrast the arid wastes of the Great American desert, with the simplicity of far-Western ways, and the sophisticated complex existence of box-holders in the "Diamond Horseshoe" at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Monday a double feature Vitagraph program will be on view at Proctor's, consisting of Lillian Walker in a tale of exciting adventure, entitled "Hesper of the Mountains," and James Morrison in a gripping detective story, entitled "The Alibi." Tuesday is Triangle day, Dorothy Gish appearing in "Gretchen the Greenhorn."

ANNIVERSARY OF HOLIDAY.

New York, Sept. 30.—Methodists throughout the country are to observe tomorrow as rally day, the occasion being the 150th anniversary of American Methodism under Philip Embury. The Sunday School Board has prepared for the day a special program. In all the Methodist Sunday schools the children will be told the story of the hardships and heroisms, and the achievements of the early itinerants.

SEPTEMBER 30 IN HISTORY.

1830—France recognized the independence of all the South American republic.

1832—Birth of Field Marshal Earl Roberts, famous British General. Died November 14, 1914.

1898—John Hay became United States Secretary of State.

1911—By the breaking of a pulp mill dam, at Austin, Pa., the town was practically wiped out and more than 100 people killed.

1912—The governements of Bulgaria, Serbia and Greece ordered the mobilization of their armies against Turkey.

The War.

1914—Italian torpedo boat blown up by mine in the Adriatic; Italy protests against the use of mines to Austria.

Russians defeat Austrians near Donklo, Galicia.

1915—Thirty-five British and allied merchantmen reported sunk in the Mediterranean and "war zone" about England, during the month of September.

One million Aremenians reported slaughtered by the Kurds and Turkish irregulars during the months of August and September.

French report further gains in the Champagne sector and capture important defensive works south of Riport.

Germans lose Hill 191, south of Lassiges, and begin furious counter-attacks on the new French positions.

SENATORIAL CONTESTS.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 30.—Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Democrat, is stirring up Nebraska with an active campaign for re-election to the United States Senate. In his speeches this weeks Senator Hitchcock has pointed to his record in Philippine matters, he having advocated Philippine independence. The leaders of the Democratic campaign are confident of Senator Hitchcock's re-election although it is admitted he has a hard fight on his hands, owing to the peculiar situation now existing in Nebraska politics. He has the opposition of many of those favoring prohibition, and it is also possible that the pre-primary split with the Bryan faction may cost him a considerable number of votes.

DEER PLENTIFUL IN MAINE.

Bangor, Me., Sept. 30.—Hunters have begun to arrive in Northern Maine for the deer shooting season, which will open tomorrow. The game is reported plentiful, and good sport is anticipated. Notwithstanding the inroads that have been made in the depopulation of Maine since the railroads from Bangor penetrated the vast wilderness extending to the Canada line, this State still has, according to the best estimates obtainable, one-fifth of all the deer in the country. This is due to the game laws, which have been enforced as well as an army of wardens can enforce them.

THE FORUM

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

As this is the season for burning leaves, it might be well to call public attention to a case recently decided by the Supreme Court in this State (Davenport vs. McClellan, 96 Atlantic Reporter page 921). Defendant's servant raked up the leaves in the street and lighted them, and left the fire unguarded. A child five years of age played with the fire, the blaze caught on to his clothes and he was injured. The court held that plaintiff's act in starting the fire was unlawful and a nuisance and that he was responsible for the consequences.

We have plenty of citizens in this town who burn their leaves as the easiest way to get rid of them and care nothing for the rights, the comfort or the health of their neighbors. The case I have cited shows that there are other dangers in this way of disposing of rubbish and they will do well to take them into account.

ALBERT H. ATTERBURY.

Friendships.

There are three friendships which are advantageous and three which are injurious. Friendship with the upright, friendship with the sincere and friendship with the man of much information—these are advantageous. Friendship with the man of specious airs, friendship with the insinuatingly soft, friendship with the glib tongued—these are injurious.—Confucius.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES

A SELECTION OF EARLY FALL PUBLICATIONS.

Barr, Amelia A. Profit and loss.

"What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Around this idea Mrs. Barr has written a striking novel of the career of a young man who started life under mistaken ideals. He plays the game in a spirit of worldly ambition, steadily losing all the things that are really worth while. But ultimately, though hard luck and bitter disappointment, he gains clearer vision and sees the things in life worth achieving.

Deland, Margaret, Rising tide.

"In the 'Rising tide' the author lays bare the restless soul of the modern woman, who is bound to be a man's equal in all things. A novel very close to human nature."

Franck, Harry A. Tramping through Mexico, Guatemala and Honduras.

"Mr. Franck, 'prince of vagabonds,' penetrates as deeply into the Mexican character as into the Mexican landscape. He knows the peons as no foreigner probably has ever known them. He has visited the big towns, strayed into villages and hamlets, slept in hovels by the way, camped out with Indians, investigated prisons and schools, spent days and nights on lonely ranches, talking, listening, jotting down his impressions of types and classes the ordinary traveler ignores."

Galatti, Stephen, and others. Friends of France; the field service of the American ambulance described by its members:

"No more stirring or inspiring war stories have been published than these simple records of the experiences of American boys driving their Ford ambulances along the firing line, collecting the wounded. The field service of the American Ambulance is the most direct and adventurous part played by Americans in the great struggle, and these stories of the actual experiences of its members will be inspiring to overyone this side of the Atlantic."

Gibbons, Herbert Adams. Paris reborn, a study in civic psychology.

"An extended diary, written day by day in Paris during the first five months of the war—how Paris looked, how she took the good and the bad news—these and as many other great events and phases of an historic moment appear in a setting of conversation, rumors, sudden elations and disappointments, scraps of dialogue, amusing personal incidents—the flutter of the populace, the life of the hour. And steadily, during the course of the breathless narrative, one gains a sense of the significance of these events, in the midst of which the spirit of Paris has been born again."

Hough, Emerson. Magnificent adventure.

"A story of the Lewis and Clark expedition. Mr. Hough unfolds the tragic career of Meriwether Lewis, telling of his love for Theodosia, daughter of Aaron Burr, of Burr's conspiracy, of Theodosia's attempts to prevent the start of expedition, and the completion of the world's greatest exploration."

Lynde, Francis. After the manner of men.

"Backed by his loyal friend, Carfax, Vance Tregarvon comes to Coalville and goes to work. Suffice it to say that a love story—two love stories, in fact—becomes interwoven with the fortunes of the mine, and with the help of a mountain feud, these and other things keep Tregarvon and Carfax emtremely busy."

Munsterberg, Hugo. The photoplay.

"Professor Munsterberg has made a thorough study of the drama on the screen and in this little volume he gives the results of his phsychological and aesthetic investigation of the 'movies.' The young art appears in an entirely new light. We recognize its true meaning in the world of art and beauty, its significance for out time and its possibilities for the future."

Parker, Gilbert. World for sale.

"It is a daring thing to inject a gypsy quarrel and feud into the plans and hopes and love of a Canadian captain of industry. The love story is treated with delicacy and charm and is notable for its effect of freshness and beauty."

Radziwill, Princess Catherine. Sovereigns and statesmen of Europe.

"In this work the Princess gives her impressions of 'Sovereigns and statesmen' with a critical eye upon personality, temperament and character. Her main idea circles around the days which will see the close of the present war and the discussions from which will evolve the arrangements forming the basis of the Peace Treaty."

Smith, F. Hopkinson. Enoch Crane.

"A story of New York city, planned and begun by the author and completed, from an elaborate synopsis, by the novelist's son, F. Berkeley Smith."

Wells, H. G. Mr. Britling sees it through.

'Nearly every man of letters who has been interviewed since August, 1914, has been asked when, or if ever, we might expect to find in literature any adequate portrait or interpretation of the great war. It is too close, we have been told, too overwhelming, to be appropriate subject for literary treatment. It would not be wholly true to say that Mr. H. G. Wells has essayed the task thus declared to be impossible. But he has come nearer than any other writer to making a novel out of the war."

The Captain Brought All Kinds of Shells.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

Bibbley Wah's Friend, the Captain, Dealt In Seashells

"BIBBLEY WAH night!" clapped Jack and Evelyn. So daddy took them on his lap and told them: "One of the most interesting guests that used to come to Uncle Ben's farm was a sea captain who was the grandson of Uncle Ben's grandfather's friend. This captain sailed all the tropical seas and used to bring back all kinds of the most beautiful seashells for Bibbley Wah. It would take me all night to tell you the story of the different kinds she always carried around in her coat pocket. But what I want you to remember now is that seashells are so valuable that before the war England used to sell about $4,000,000 worth each year and that the United States uses about 1,000,000 tons of shells yearly."

"What for, daddy?" cried Jack.

"Oh, so many interesting things! But, first of all, try to think how many daddies of small families so many tons of seashells keep at work for money to support these same small families. One of the biggest uses for shells is for roadbeds. Oyster and clam shells are best for this because they are so hard. Then count all the pretty white pearl buttons on the back of Evelyn's dress, and you will see another use for mother-of-pearl, which is the lining of certain big seashells. Then look at mother's jewel case when you go up to bed, and you will find another beautiful use, inlaid work in blue enamel. Then many kinds of lovely handmade furniture are also inlaid with mother-of-pearl, just like your mamma's best tea table."

"The Indians used shells for wampum!" cried Jack, who was much interested in all things Indians did.

"Yes; Indians used shells for money and to string around their necks for beads. In fact, Evelyn's string of corals that Santa Claus brought her for Christmas are first cousins to seashells. Many wonderful old violins and fans are ornamented with mother-of-pearl, and just try to imagine the tons of charming shells that sea captains bring home for museums the world over. This is what Bibbley Wah's friend did—collected for museums. And we haven't half talked about the black lined shells that come from the West Indies and make such delightful cameos, like your daddy's stickpin. How these are cut out in little faces and profiles and portraits would take me a week of bedtime stories to tell you."

"Oh, daddy, please tell us a week of bedtime stories all at once!" cried the children.

But daddy only kissed them good night and pointed upstairs to bed.

So the children hopskipped off without teasing.

Training a Husband

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Morris Wants His Wife to Have a Reputation as a Crab, While He Is Known as a Good Fellow.

"Marian, do you know where the big coal shovel is?" called Morris Southy from the cellar.

"I loaned it to Mr. Waite yesterday," was the cheerful answer.

"Great Scott! Things are either loaned or lost in this place the biggest part of the time," was the impatient answer. "Here the coal has come and I have nothing to help myself with. The bin——"

"Haven't you cleaned that bin out? I supposed it was all ready for the coal," broke in Marian, tactlessly.

"It should have been, of course, if I could have found a minute of time to get it ready. There are some things in your department that are not done that should be, perhaps. Send one of the boys after that shovel, will you, at once?" Marian hurried to dispatch the boy. When he returned Morris was sitting by the cellar door.

"I can't do a thing till I get the shovel. I hate to be hindered this way when I have so much to do." He frowned nervously. "I wish you would not lend my things."

"Why, Morris, you are very friendly with Mr. Waite. You lend him your things. I have seen you. How could I refuse?" asked his wife in surprise.

"That is different. If I want to lend my own things that is my affair. I do not want anyone else to do it," growled the head of the house.

"What shall I say? We can't offend them; they are pleasant neighbors." Marian looked distressed.

"Say! I guess you can think of something to say, if you try," was the response.

"Well, if it is so easy, tell me what you would say," persisted Marian.

"That would depend on circumstances, of course," was the evasive answer.

Marian smiled. "Well, the only thing I can think of to say is that you are not here and do not allow me to lend your tools when you are away."

"Do not be foolish," snapped Morris.

"Not having a lively imagination, I am driven back on the truth," replied his wife. "You can take your choice: tell me what to say that will suit you; allow me the privilege of lending your things that you yourself would lend if you were here, or I shall say just that." Morris made no reply, but as Roger came in just then with the shovel he took it and went down cellar.

"The idea!" thought Marian angrily. "He wants to be a good fellow with the reputation of being amiable, but he would make me appear a crank to the neighbors. I will certainly not stand it."

That afternoon Marian had an important errand at the store and, taking the baby, left Florence in the care of the boys. After supper Morris sighed and said:

"I suppose you will be happy to know that I am planning to mow the lawn tonight."

"Oh, delightful!" exclaimed Marian, making no secret of her joy.

"Do you know where the mower is?" called Morris a few minutes later.

"It was in the shed this noon. I saw it." Marian hurried to the scene of action. No mower was to be found.

"Roger, do you know anything about the mower?" Roger was passing the shed.

"I loaned it to Mr. Jordon this afternoon. He came after it while you were gone," replied the child. Marian and Morris looked helplessly at one another.

"Could you beat it?" Morris' annoyance was minimized because there was now a good excuse for not mowing the lawn.

"You will have to assemble the family council and read the rules. You see it is not enough to instruct me," laughed Marian.

"We may as well laugh as cry over it. I see there is no use kicking against the pricks. My tools will be lent to someone. I must accept the inevitable." Morris marched contentedly toward the house.

BOTH PAJAMAS AND PANTALETS.

Bifrucated Garments Are All the Rage in Paris—America Does Not Hesitate to Accept Also.

By Mary Glynn.

A Parisian jokingly said when asked why bifrucated garments were coming in so strong in Paris, "It is in case of a hasty flight from a Zeppelin raid." Now, this, of course, is only a joke, though the fatc remains that French women are using undergarments in pantalet form, and sleeping garments which are in the pajama form. The explanation of the bifrucated petticoat is doubtless the wide dress skirt which is apt to switch about in the wind to such an extent that modest women object to showing so much of their stockings.

The divided skirt dispels this fear, because it can be made to cover the ankles neatly, while having only the appearance of an old-fashioned petticoat. One of the newest models is made of silk jersey and trimmed with triple ruffles of taffeta which encircle the ankles and extend almost to the knees. To make this garment even more artistic, there is a corset cover or camisole attached, made of the same color jersey silk and trimmed with medalions and bands of Val. lace.

A woman may feel quite comfortably dressed in such under-garment when lounging about in her own room, where she need only have a bright colored kimono or Empire lounging gown, to be perfectly comfortable and modestly dressed.

As for the divided sleeping garments, the newest pajamas for women are made either in the Pierrot style or in the Louis XVI. vogue. The former is in the familiar dress of the love-lorn clown of French tradition. The silk used is of a gaily flowered pattern, and about the ankles, the wrists, and the neck are pleated frills, and there are hugs silk pompoms of matching color in lieu of buttons. This is the Pierrot dress.

The Louis XVI. style is a smart little coat with flaring basque and almost tight-fitting trousers slashed at the ankles and filled in with lace daintily frilled after the style of the period. There are frills for the wrist also and lace on the front of the coat This Louis XVI style pajamas are in taffeta pastelle shades of wash satin and have in addition to the lace frills, velvet ribbons of contrasting shade as a trimming.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

STUDIES FIRST—TITLE NEXT.

The superintendent of schools in Rahway, in a neat little address, has made it clear to the football players on the Rahway team, that lessons come first and titles next. If a warrior wants to be on the team, he must study. That's the whole thing in a nutshell. Scholarship is going to count to a great extent. It has always been of great importance in Plainfield High School circles and it is very evident that other schools have determined to give athletic endeavors second place, when it comes to making a comparison with the importance of studying diligently and faithfully.

THOSE MOHAWK INDIANS.

The first principles of football are being impressed upon the youthful minds of East End lads. At least, the Mohawks, a team composed of youthful talent, have invaded the field and are out to take the scalp of all rival teams. Charley Lundstrom is leading the Indians and Charley is a past master at the game. Success, fellows.

VILLANOVA AND RUTGERS.

The football season is opening at New Brunswick today with the pigskin representatives from Villanova as the visitors. The Rutgers eleven, under the careful eye of Coach Sandford, has developed into a capable contender for collegiate honors. Robson, the colored youth who, as a member of Somerville baseball and football teams, was a tower of assistance to that school in scholastic battles, has been given a regular place on the team and it is expected that he will make good.

MARTIN AND BRIDWELL.

Jack Martin, a temporary manager, is to be supplanted by Artie Bridwell, the former Giant shortstop. We shall see just what difference the change will make in the caliber of baseball put up by the Brewers. Al Timme, the president of the club, is of the opinion that he is doing a great thing by signing Bridwell. Timme refuses to say that the new manager is "Bridwell," despite the fact that almost every New York newspaper carried a story to that effect. Mr. Timme says:

"I have a man in mind to handle the Brewers, and I went to New York to ascertain what McGraw thinks of my choice. He praised the man highly and said that he thought he would make an ideal manager. I cannot tell the name of the player at this time, but he was formerly a well known Giant, and is a close friend of John McGraw's. I have not broached the subject nor offered the job to him, as yet, but I am willing to go the limit to get him, and while I do not intend to be hasty in my choice the player I have in mind just now looks like the cream of the field to me."

SMALL CROWDS AT TIMES.

"Two or three weeks ago, when the Yankees played the Athletics in Philadelphia, 36 cash customers gathered in Shibe Park to act as eyewitnesses to the crime. This was hailed as establishing a low attendance record for the major leagues, and so far as the modern game is concerned, the assertion is probably correct. A search of the records shows that the Quaker City crowd was pretty much of a mob, however, compared with the old-time game in which the real major league record was set up. That was 25 years ago today, September 27, 1881, when Chicago and Troy were the contesting clubs. Estimates as to the paid attendance at that game seem to vary, some authorities saying that only seven fans dug up real mazuma at the gate, while others put the figure at 10. Certainly there were less than a dozen cash customers.

"Like the recent Yankee-Athletics pastime, the Chicago-Troy game was pulled off during a rainstorm, which was doubtless responsible for the slim attendance. Troy, which isn't nowadays able to support a New York State League club, was then represented in the National League, holding the franchise through four seasons.

"In the minor leagues there have been cases when games were played before only two or three paying fans. In 1885, it is recorded, a regularly scheduled contest between Allentown and Lancaster, Pa., had to be postponed because nobody at all showed up at the grounds, even the holders of passes staying away."—Sportgraphy by Gravy.

THAT LITTLE "IF."

"Somebody invented a large chunk of the world's series vocabulary, a very important section of the English language, when he added the word IF to Mr. Webster's famous collection," says the Newark News. "Every time a man sits down with the National League schedule these days and starts figuring he begins with IF. Then he gets his second wind and inserts IF, and runs across it again a minute later and finds it staring him in the face when he winds up. That's why, in picking the winner, instead of a prediction, we expound the intimation that Brooklyn will win if Philadelphia doesn't.

"A few days ago most fans thought Brooklyn would have some kind of a decent-sized lead after the opening of the series with the Philadelphia team, but it hasn't, so here comes the IF again. IF Philadelphia wins all three of this series, it will be in the lead, with a chance of grabbing off the title, while Brooklyn is closing the season with New York.

"Boston started a five-game series with the Giants. Here's a chance to get away from the IF. New York has an excellent chance to eliminate Boston. There is even a possibility—a faint one, it is admitted—that it will make another clean sweep. There is still a mathematical possibility of New York winning the pennant, be it remembered. Figure it out for yourself."

BRIDWELL NOT ANXIOUS TO "RESURRECT" BREWERS

According to present indications, Al Bridwell is not so sure he wants to lead the Milwaukee baseball team. Evidently, Al can see no future in leading the Brewers, and it is almost certain that he will get big pay for taking the chance. In all probability, Jack Martin would tell "Brid" that the stunt was dangerous.

The president of the club has stated that the local player will remain with the Milwaukee team and that he will continue in shortfield. In the opinion of the man who pays the bills, Martin is the best shortstop in the minors. Let us remember, Kid Gleason once said that Jack was the best shortstop in the majors.

A Psychological Problem.

Of interest to psychologists is the story told by a Boston woman, relative to her efforts to teach a child of three and one-half years the alphabet. The child mastered the entire alphabet with the exception of the letter T. "What letter is this?" she would ask, and each time the child would reply "Coffee."—Boston Traveler.

VANDEVENTERS PLAY FOR TENNIS TITLE

Contest With F. C. Baggs and S. H. Voshell Today.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon Phil and Ludlow Van Deventer will contest with F. C. Baggs and S. H. Voshell for the title of champions of the night doubles tourney held on the courts of the Plainfield Country Club a few weeks ago.

The Van Deventers, who represent Princeton in all scholastic encounters and who, by virtue of their prowess on the courts, have brought considerable honors to this, the Queen City, are out to win, but realize that in F. C. Baggs and S. H. Vosheil they have the best there is in the line of competition.

PADDY OLDE MAY PITCH FOR ALBERTS

Elizabeth Hurler to Oppose Cliff Randolph on Mound Tomorrow.

Jim Scott's Tabs are going to bingle with Joe Alberts' Scotch Plains All Stars on Avon Oval tomorrow afternoon, and each manager hopes that a large crowd will be on hand. This game will be the last one for this season and Scott is anxious to end the year's work with a victory.

Realizing that the overwhelming defeat handed his men on last Sunday did little to assist in gathering a large crowd for the game on the morrow, Scott has secured Cliff Randolph to pitch, with Tommy Mullin as catcher. Tommy will not play in Perth Amboy, but will stick with his own friends. In addition to doing the catching, Tommy has secured one or two other players for the Scottmen. Hannon and Coughlan will be missed, but there are other stars ready and eager to shine. Twing, one of the hardest hitters in this vicinity, will play in the garden for the Abstainers. Vic Shanky may play first base, with Benny Rosenson on short. It is reported that Trust will play in the outer workers, provided, of course, that Tommy Apgar has no game booked with the Knights of St. Peter. That matter is still unsettled.

Joe Alberts has not presented a lineup, but it is said that he will use Charley "Kid" Beck, the hardest hitter in Elizabeth, on short, with Harold Arthurs, also of Elizabeth, on second. Henny Alberts will do the catching. Either George Ortlieb or Paddy Olde, of Elizabeth, will do the pitching for the Alberts team. The outer garden work will be taken care of by Joe Alberts, Tony Denitzio and George Miller.

COLLEGE AND INDIAN LEAGUES TO HAVE ROAST

On Monday, afternoon, October 2, from 3 p. m. to 5 a. m., all members of the College and Indian Leagues at the Y. M. C. A. will enjoy a big opening get-together with a program of fun and frolic which will mean the biggest and best time ever held in the association for these fellows. Not only will there be games and comedy stunts but a good red 'hot dog" roast will be given around the friendship fires to be built in the large out-door gymnasium. This is going to be an outdoor feature, and with the aid of the snappy fall weather ought to have a lot of "pep" and provide the kind of fun a fellow likes. Such games and contests as tug-of-war, relay races, potato pick-up, swat ball, helter-skelter run and other stunts. A grand jumbo peanut hunt will make an interesting feature.

NEW GYMNASIUM CLASS AT Y. M. C. A.

Will Be Organized for Boys Between Ages of Ten and Twelve Years.

A new gymnasium class will be added to the schedule at the Young Men's Christian Association this year. Many boys who a re under the age of admission in the association have inquired regarding memberships during the past season and have gone away very much disappointed when told that they were too young to join. Parents of the boys have also called on the officers of the association and have tried to make special arrangements for their boys. This year it was thought wise to organize a class for these young boys, and plans have been made to that effect in arranging the gymnasium schedule. This class will be for boys between the age of ten and twelve years. One afternoon each week the boys will meet on the gym. floor and take up a regular course of gymnastic work. The gym work will be composed of corrective exercises, simple apparatus work, using the buck, German horse and mats. Some athletic events will be conducted and the boys will be taught such popular gymnasium games as volley ball, basketball and indoor baseball.

After the regular gym class a period of twenty minutes will be given in the swimming pool. An expert instructor will be in the pool with the boys at all classes and every boy will receive some individual instruction in swimming.

The membership fee for this class will be two dollars for the year Owing to the limited number that can be handled in this class, the first forty boys will be accepted and more applications will not be taken. The first class will be held Thursday, October 5.

WILL LOCAL MOOSE ENTER THIS LEAGUE?

State Circuit is Being Formed and Plainfield May Enter.

Efforts are being made to organize a Moose bowling league and the promoters are anxious that the local lodge enter a team. Up to the present time however, nothing definite regarding the local outfit has been done, but the probabilies are that if a league is formed, there will be five men from Plainfield contesting for first honors.

Preliminary plans for the organization recently were made in Paterson, where delegates from all over the State were in attendance. Just now the following teams have signified their desire to enter the league: Rahway, Elizabeth, Newark, Paterson, Passaic, Rutherford, Jersey City and Dover. It is very evident that Plainfield has not been represented at any of the gatherings. If the Queen City had a representative on hand undoubtedly he would have jumped at the chance to enter a local team. It is understood that enthusiasm among the local Moose runs high in regards to the possibility of entering a team in the league.

RED SOX HAVE ALMOST CINCHED A. L. PENNANT

Within sight of the American League pennant, the Boston Red Sox can now spend the remaining few days of the championship season grooming for the classic series to start within a week. Boston has so far intrenched itself that only one more victory will leave the club where it cannot be ousted from first place. Two victories will clinch the flag for good.

By defeating the Yankees yesterday the Red Sox were far enough in front to make it impossible for Detroit to catch up. Should the Tigers win their remaining two days the best they can do will be 88 won and 66 lost. Boston can lose all its remaining four game and finish with 89 won and 65 lost.

The Chicago White Sox are still in the hunt, but with faulty ammunition and poor sights. Their chances are practically negligible, as the Red Sox need only two victories in their next four games to dispose of the Windy City opposition. Should Chicago win its remaining pair of doubleheaders with Cleveland it will finish the sason with 90 games won and 64 lost.

SEASHORE "MAGNET" ENTICES LOCAL LADS

Red Bank Climate Evidently is Pleasing to Seven Stars.

The seashore has it good qualities. Seven baseball players from this city are now certain that they are going to take a little trip to Red Bank on the morrow. In doing this stunt two or three of the players are making things "dubious" for Manager Jim Scott of the Tabs.

Russ Stewart and Johnson, the former Netherwood battery, will play baseball at the shore and, it is said on excellent authority, that Eddie Hannon, Matty Coughlan, Eddie Coughlan and Francis Wall will also be "among the pebbles." It is also said that Wall will not desert the Tabs, but we will have to await developments.

Hannon and Coughlan have been playing with the Tabs all season, and their action in going to the shore certainly does not meet with popular approval. It is to be hoped that they will reconsider their action. At any rate, Jim Scott knows that there are just as good players at home.

SPORT NOTES

Playing with a cellar outfit has not kept Hal Chase of the Reds, from leading the National League batsmen.

Looks as if Howard Ermke, the Syracuse twirler, will stick with the Detroit Tigers. He has all the earmarks of a big time heaver.

The critics had no sooner labeled Benny Kauff a fliv than the Giant gardener starts to shine in all departments of the game.

The Pittsburgh club of the defunct Federal League owes $173,014. Which shows that the high cost of living has nothing on the high cost of pastiming.

Squire Ebbets is going to raise the prices of tickets to the world's series games in Brooklyn on account of the war.

It's always the dispised tailender that rears on its hind legs and puts some pennant contender out of business. Ask George Stallings. He knows.

An Indian with a war club is a trouble maker, even if said Indian denies he is an Indian. We refer to Zach. otherwise "Buck" Wheat, and his savage attack on National League twirlers this season.

During the scramble of the White Sox for pennant honors we lost all trace of the Cubs. However, we are pleased to report that the Tinkers are still in the league, even without the services of the great Zim.

If the Giants could have sandwiched in a mess of continuous games won between their early season success and their latest series of straight wins—but what's the use?

Ty Cobb and Max Carey, leading base stealers in the American and National Leagues, respectively, are running neck and neck for the pilfering championship of the big show.

It is said the answer of Buck Herzog's failure as pilot of the Reds lies in the fact that "Buck" wouldn't eat with his men. Perhaps after watching his hirelings play "Buck" wasn't able to eat.

Losing the fine chucking of Hughes and Allen was sufficient to cast the Braves' pennant chances into the discard. The two stars were not only the cream of the Stallings staff, but were also one, two in the list of National League pitchers.

Hugh Duffy favors a new league that would comprise Lynn, Lawrence, Lowell, Lewiston, Portland and Fitchburg. If Hugh will substitute Lymansville and Laurelhurst for Portland and Fitchburg, he will have the first and only alliterative baseball circuit.

The Smith family certainly is coming into its own as big yard pastimers. Pittsburg, Boston, Brooklyn, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis in the National League, and Cleveland and Washington in the American League all have a Smith on the payroll.

Pitchers who have taken part in more than forty games this season include: Alexander, of the Phils; Hughes, of the Braves; Mamaux, of the Pirates; Toney, Schulz and Schnell, of the Reds; Ames and Meadows, of the Cardinals, Leonard, Mays and Ruth, of the Red Sox; Johnson and Gallia of Washington; Doland and H. Covaleskie, of the Tigers; Shawkey, of the Yankees; S. Covaleskie and Bagby, of Cleviand; Myers, of the Athletics and Davenport, Groom and Weilman, of the Browns.

—An inefficient office helper may serve to turn the tide against you in many a possible business transaction.

Yale.

Brown in particular will bear close watching He played for two years on the scrub team, but not through any football shortcomings. Last season he could rip through the varsity almost any time, but scholastic trouble kept him on the scrubs.

Carnegie Tech, under the coaching of Walter Steffen, one time Chicago star, has come up fast in the last two years and will have a heavy team at New Haven today. It is said to be adept in the use of the forward pass. Tad Jones may start a pony back field, composed of Smith at quarter, Jacques at fullback and Neville at the halves. It's a light combination, but did fine work during the past week.

Church and Gates appear to have the call at the ends, with Captain Black and either Durfee or Zenner at the guards, and Sheldon and Balbridge at the tackles. Vorys and Callahon will be seen at centre. Harry Le Gore has a bad foot and may not play. Rex Hutchinson, who was counted upon to be Harry's costar, is moving too slowly to take advantage of the holes opened by the linemen Thus far Hutchinson has been a sad disappointment.

Harvard.

Harvard has made several changes from the line-up that faced Colby. Caner has been given a tackle and Horween has been demoted to a substitute position in the back field, with Hitchcock first choice. The squad has heard a terrific lot of talk in the last week and should show better team results.

Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania is likely to catch a Tartar in West Virginia, which has been working since August 1. The Southerners have one of the greatest backs in the country in the person of Rogers. Last year Penn had all kinds of trouble winning by 7 to 0.

Dartmouth.

Charley Brickley's Boston College team may give Dartmouth a hard game. At New Brunswick Rutgers will open against Villanova Fordham will start its season against Lafayette at Easton—a game that promises the hardest battle of the day.

By Peter P. Carney.

The other day a well known agricultural publication man remarked, when told that farmers engaged in trapshooting, that he was putting that fact down as one thing he learned that day.

If farmers can be advancing so fast in modern methods and city pleasures that the agricultural press can't keep up with them, then it seems logical to admit that the city cousins who imagined all a farmer did "was work eat and sleep" are just waiting for advice.

The fact is that along with other pleasures farmers are taking an active interest in trapshooting. And why shouldn't they? Nearly all farmhouses have guns as a portion of their furniture. Nearly all farmers have done more or less shooting, but at the present time in many States game laws are so rigidly enforced that "open" seasons are very short. Hence clay targets are the victims of the guns.

As hardly any live settlement is now without a trapshooting club, the shooting of clay targets also brings to the farmer social privileges. Here he meets men of all walks of life

Of course, there may be a country or hunt club near his place, but he is timid about joining, even though he is worth as much as many of their members financially. He has, like many other farmers, attended the farmers' annual dinner at such clubs, but feels more at home at a cosmopolitan trapshooting club. On such occasions, however, he has surprised those present with his shooting ability. Only recently at an eastern hunt club, clay pigeon shoot was held in connection with the annual dinner, for at this club the members are greatly enthused about trapshooting. The gentleman of the farm took the marksmanship honors.

It may not be the case that all farmers who can shoot are trapshooting club members. Some of them have purchased hand traps and have their shooting pleasures right on their own grounds, where wife, sons and daughters join in.

Investigation proves that farmers are participating in trapshooting and enjoying it very much.

CONNIE MACK LIKES FANWOOD BALLISTS

Philadelphia Leader Wants Hand and Lidgate as Catchers.

Connie Mack likes Fanwood and Scotch Plains, He likes Fanwood because Eugene Lidgate lives there and he favors Scotch Plains because Frank Hand is a resident of that place.

Connie tried in vain to induce Frank Hand to cast his lot with the Athletics. Frank could not see the proposition, inasmuch as he has accepted a position in the South. Eugene Lidgate was the next player approached. Eugene has decided to allow the Athletics to "roll on" unmolested. Incidentally, Lidgate will play in Allentown tomorrow.

DUNELLEN WILL HAVE FAST JUNIOR ELEVEN

There Will Be Only One Football Team in That Borough.

While Dunellen is not to have a senior footfall team, a full junior eleven is being organized. Practice is being held at every opportunity and games with such teams as the Mohawks and Scotch Plains will be arranged as soon as is possible.

The most promising candidate on the Dunellen squad is Damker, a former Trojan A. C. player, Damker played in the line with the Elizabeth eleven. Other candidates for positions on the eleven are: Fritz, Schuman, Marinak, Maskell, Wyckoff, Huff, Dealaman, Walker Waldron and Fred Schneiderwind.

According to unofficial reports, there will be no "big" team in Dunellen this year. The eleven which Tommy Apgar and his pals were promoting seems to have vanished.

LOCAL DELEGATES NAMED.

Miss Margaret C. Holly, of this city, and Richard McDonald, of the borough, are among the twenty-four attendance officers named by Governor Fielder as delegates to attend the convention of the National League of Compulsory Education officials. The convention will convene in Newark on October 9 and will continue until October 11.

The housewife is the "official buyer" for the home—in almost all families. She is, consequently, the official "ad reader" for the home.

If you are a student of the "ads" you KNOW WHAT IT OUGHT TO COST.

The shopper may often reduce the VALUE-GETTING POWER of her dollar to fifty cents—simply through neglecting to read the ads, or to know values—and by buying at "the nearest place."
